GRENADA RIOT TRAPS TOURISTS

Times News Services

Hundreds of tourists, including dozens of Canadians, are trapped on the tiny Caribbean island of Grenada after three days of disturbances that have closed island's only airport.

Shooting broke out at the airport Monday in a clash between police and about 500 demonstrators.

The demonstrators were dispersed by tear gas. Three were reported slightly injured.

The protest, organized by the opposition Jewel political movement, concerned the alleged fatal shooting of a young man by a policeman last Friday.

On Sunday, the demonstrators closed the airport on this West Indies island by littering the runway with oil drums, bottles, stones and other obstacles.

The runway was cleared Monday morning, but later the terminal building was stoned, leading to the exchange of gunfire.

The airport remained closed.

The island government has issued a warning that only persons with legal business will be allowed near the airport, located on the east coast of the mountainous island.

Wally Crouter, a Toronto disc jockey flew to Barbados Friday, then by private plane to Grenada Saturday.

In Grenada "there was a riot going on and on Friday a policeman shot and killed a boy... that really heated things up," he said.

For his return trip home Sunday Crouter boarded a private plane.

"The rioters had put oil barrels and other barricades on the runway but the pilot was able to get up," he said.

"They had tried to damage the plane too" so the pilot landed on a gravel strip on a nearby island to check the tail assembly of the twin-engine aircraft. "The plane checked out okay so we took off again for Barbados."

Two Toronto tourists, Scott and Mary McGregor, say they went to Grenada airport Sunday but found their flight cancelled.

McGregor, an Air Canada employee, attempted to arrange a sea charter to the nearby island of St. Vincent. Prices for the 90-mile sea trip had jumped to $100 a person.

U.S. Claims Justification To End Pact

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The United States today accused North Vietnam of inexcusable violations of the peace agreement, including illegal movement of 30,000 men and 400 tanks into South Vietnam.

It rejected as "utterly groundless" earlier Hanoi allegations of U.S. truce violations and said the North Vietnamese attitude was justification for Washington to suspend its observance of the Paris peace accord in whole or part.

Hanoi also was accused of conducting a campaign of terror, assassination and political obstruction.

The U.S. charges were contained in a lengthy diplomatic note dated April 20. It was dispatched last weekend to the International Conference on Vietnam.

The state department made public the note following a charge in New York on Monday by President Nixon's chief foreign affairs adviser, Henry Kissinger, that North Vietnam had engaged in systematic and cynical violations of the end-of-war settlement.

The note said North Vietnam had sent to South Vietnam 400 tanks and armored vehicles, 300 artillery pieces and "vast quantities of ammunition and vehicles" in violation of the arrangements since they took effect Jan. 28.

It also said Hanoi had moved 27,000 tons of military supplies through the demilitarized zone to South Vietnam and 26,000 tons into Laos.

Meanwhile, U.S. planes in some of their heaviest raids of the renewed Cambodian bombing campaign stalled a Communist drive just below Phnom Penh and government troops swept in today to regain patches of lost territory, field reports said.

B-52s, flying from Thailand with 30-ton bombloads, struck within five miles of the southern suburb of Takhmau, hit by rifle fire overnight.

Military sources reported that in separate raids farther south of the capital, nearly 60 B-52s dumped an estimated 900 tons of explosives just before dawn today around the rebel-threatened provincial capital of Takeo, 55 miles from Phnom Penh.

Government soldiers reportedly inflicted heavy casualties on Communist soldiers there Monday.

Air raids five to 10 miles below Phnom Penh rocked the capital for four straight hours before sunrise today in what military sources said was some of the most intense bombing of the air campaign in Cambodia, now in its 48th consecutive day.

Today's stepped-up air activity was designed to clear the way for expected government counter-attacks against Communist troops who have surrounded the capital and severed "all its major supply routes."

Vital supplies of fuel, ammunition and food were unloaded here today from eight ships that broke through a Communist blockade on the Mekong River.

The military command said one crew member was killed and four wounded when the convoy came under fire three times, once inside South Vietnam and twice in Cambodia.

In Saigon, the Viet Cong said today they will allow members of the International Commission of Control and Supervision to re-examine on Thursday the wreckage of an April 7 helicopter crash in northern South Vietnam in which four ICCS officers, including a Canadian, were killed.

In a letter to the ICCS military committee, the Viet Cong said they are prepared to receive an ICCS team in northern Quang Tri province to re-inspect the crashed helicopter and retrieve a second one that landed safely nearby.

The re-inspection is intended to settle a growing dispute whether the two helicopters were on course when flying an approved mission over Communist-held territory in Quang Tri.

The Viet Cong also agreed today with the Saigon regime to begin the first release of political prisoners held by the two sides.

INDIA EYES CIG BAN

NEW DELHI (AP) — The government said Monday it is studying legislation to outlaw smoking in India.

Deputy Health Minister A. K. Kisku told Parliament that the Tuberculosis Association of India and the Indian Association for Chest Diseases had passed a resolution against smoking and requested a legal ban on the habit.

"The proposal is already under consideration of the government of India in consultation with the state governments," Kisku said.

He did not say how such a prohibition would be enforced.

Derry Teens Riot

BELFAST (UPI) — Roman Catholic youths rioted at a housing complex on the outskirts of Londonderry early today, burning cars, smashing windows and showering British troops with stones.

Snipers later fired twice at troops patrolling the Londonderry area, but there were no injuries.

The outbreak of street violence shattered a limited seven-day truce called by the outlawed Irish Republican Army to coincide with the opening of a Catholic community festival in Londonderry on Monday.

An army spokesman said the youths began marching through the streets shortly before midnight Monday after soldiers arrested two IRA suspects in the area.

Police identified one of the suspects as 19-year-old Daniel Kennan, who escaped from a Belfast prison three months ago by switching places with a man being released. The other suspect was not identified.

In other violence Monday, a Royal Ulster Constabulary policeman was shot in the head by sniper fire while driving two colleagues through Coalisland, 45 miles west of Belfast.

In the same shooting, a civilian was hit in the leg but police said he was not seriously hurt.

TOKYO RAIL RAMPAGE

TOKYO (Reuters) — Hundreds of passengers angered by a railway slowdown went on a rampage here tonight, beating up station employees, wrecking computerized ticket machines and smashing windows.

Scored of helmeted riot police were called in to Ueno station, Tokyo's terminal for long-distance trains to the north, but were at one stage forced to withdraw amid jeering from thousands of stranded passengers.

At nearby Akabane station, hundreds of passengers smashed office and train windows and hurled smoke bombs.

Mitchell Facing New Charge

Times News Services

NEW YORK — Former U.S. attorney-general John Mitchell and former commerce department secretary Maurice Stans have become the focal points of a federal grand jury investigation here expected to culminate in criminal indictments this week.

The jury is investigating why a $200,000 payment — made in $100 bills — was made secretly by Robert Vesco to President Nixon's re-election campaign April 10, 1972.

The money, paid when Vesco was under intensive investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission — and after a series of meetings between a Vesco representative and both Stans and Mitchell — was placed in a safe in Stans' office at the finance committee to re-elect the president.

Money from that safe was used to finance the Watergate bugging operation, as well as other facets of the Republican's alleged espionage campaign in 1972.

The grand jury investigation began after Harry Sears, a prominent New Jersey politician (who headed the Committee to Re-Elect the President in New Jersey) testified that he helped arrange for the contribution. "Sears was once an attorney for Vesco."

Sears testified that he, along with another former associate of Vesco, delivered a suitcase to Stans in Washington. The suitcase contained the 2,000 one hundred-dollar bills.

Sears' deposition came in connection with a civil complaint by the SEC charging Vesco and a group of associates with swindling $224 million from mutual funds operated by IOS, Ltd., the Geneva-based financial complex.

Stans was given the money

NDP MAKES MONEY

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The New Democratic Party, a strong advocate of deficit financing, is the only party not currently practising it in Canada.

In the fiscal year ended March 31, all provincial governments had deficits except the three NDP provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and British Columbia.

And in the current fiscal year, the three NDP provinces are the only ones budgeting for a surplus. Liberal governments in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island are hoping for a break-even result.

The Conservative government in Ontario is anticipating a deficit of $402 million in the current fiscal year to lead all provinces in the red side of the ledger.

Quebec is expecting a deficit of $278 million.

Ontario and Quebec reported the biggest deficits in the previous fiscal year as well.

British Columbia is the only one of the three "have" provinces (Ontario, B.C., Alberta) to show a surplus in the previous fiscal year and to be budgeting for a surplus in the current fiscal year.

Of the seven "have-not" provinces, the biggest deficits are racked up by the Liberal government in Quebec and the Tory administration in Newfoundland.

In British Columbia, most of the credit for the surplus in the previous fiscal year belongs to the Social Credit administration.

However, the projected $3 million surplus in the current fiscal year, if achieved, will be the NDP's doing.

The irony is that of all the national political parties, only the NDP is enthusiastic about the use of heavy deficit spending to spur the economy.

Of the free enterprise parties, only the Socreds have been able to avoid deficit spending as a way of life.

On the federal scene both the Liberals and Conservatives have racked up tremendous deficits over the years, the Liberals projecting a move of $975 million into the red in the current fiscal year.

As for the total national debt: Don't ask!?

Manitoba Motorists Save

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba motorists saved an average of 14 per cent on their automobile insurance premiums last year because of Autopac, says the 1971-72 report of the Manitoba Public Insurance Corporation.

The report, tabled Monday in the legislature by Municipal Affairs Minister Howard Pawley, shows the Crown corporation received $37.9 million in premiums for the year ended Oct. 31, 1972.

If private insurance companies had handled this business, motorists in the province would have paid out more than $45 million, the report claims.

Autopac came into effect in Manitoba on Nov. 1, 1971, and the report notes that during the year prior to its introduction, insurance premiums totalled $35.6 million.

"However, it is important to note that during that period, only a small percentage of vehicle owners carried full insurance protection," the report says.

$700,000 INSIDE JOB?

Times News Services

SAINT JOHN, N.B. — An international manhunt is under way for two employees of Brinks Express Co. of Canada Ltd. after $700,000 in small bills was stolen from a company vault here during the Easter weekend.

Canada-wide warrants were issued late Monday for Leslie James Dominey, 32, a driver-guard, and Melvin Edward Downs, 36, an assistant cashier, both of Saint John.

Police throughout Canada and the United States were alerted.

Police today found cars owned by the two missing employees but are still unaware of the whereabouts of the two men or the missing money.

Police were called in Monday morning when the company's electrically-operated safe would not open.

"They said it appeared an adjustment had been made to the timing device and the vault was finally opened at 4 p.m."

The money, all Canadian currency in denominations of $20 and less, appears to have been taken Saturday night.

Dominey and Downs are married but their wives have declined comment on the case.

Cod War Flare-Up

REYKJAVIK (Reuters) — A British trawler rammed and badly damaged an Icelandic patrol boat during the night in the most serious 4600 War clash so far, the coast guard reported here today. A number of blank shots and non-explosive shells were fired by Icelandic vessels during the clashes, which lasted several hours.

LONDON (Reuters) — Police indicated today that they sealed off Downing Street last month for fear of bomb attacks by political extremists.

Britain Taxes Chastity

LONDON (UPI) — Chastity belts have fallen victim to a new government tax.

Not only that, the government refuses to dispense the medieval wrought-iron devices along with contraceptives under Britain's National Health Service.

"It's not fair," said Robin Hugessen, whose firm exports close to 10,000 chastity belts a year, many of them to North America.

Hugessen said Customs and Excise maintains that the belts are items of apparel and therefore subject to Value-Added Tax, a recently-introduced national sales tax.

"It will put 50 pence ($1.25) on the old retail price of five pounds ($12.50)," Hugessen said.

His firm contends the belts are "safety devices" and thus should be exempt.

Hugessen said his company has appealed directly to Anthony Barber, chancellor of the exchequer.

"We remind him of our world-wide reputation and that our belts go to 29 countries, including the Virgin Islands," he said.

"And we hinted that no chancellor would want to go down in history as the man who imposed a tax on chastity."

Colonel Will Turn in PoW 'Cowards'

WASHINGTON (AP) — An air force colonel who commanded United States prisoners in North Vietnam has denounced some PoWs as cowards "who openly collaborated with the enemy" and caused physical harm to comrades.

"I intend to do everything in my power to weed these people out of the system," Col. Theodore Guy said Monday in a telephone interview from Tucson, Ariz. He said there are fewer than 20 alleged collaborators among the 566 returned PoWs. He declined to identify them.

Guy said he was "turned in" by other American prisoners and beaten and tortured because of his efforts to establish communications among the PoWs and to organize camp life and discipline.

Guy also said some PoWs accepted gratuities from their North Vietnamese captors in the form of extra rations and greater freedom within the walls, and "turned their backs on us."

The former camp commander's accusations shattered the facade of harmony among the returned PoWs, bringing into the open for the first time resentments which top Pentagon officials had hoped to smooth over.

Guy acknowledged he had found an official attitude favoring a forgive-and-forget approach, but "I was in Washington last week. I told my story, and now I feel I have support."

Those who did collaborate with the enemy or went against the code of conduct will be identified by me and, after all the evidence is in, I will decide whether charges will be placed.

The 44-year-old colonel, who spent five years in North Vietnamese hands, said he is in a mood to press charges but wants to be sure first that investigators come up with enough evidence to make the charges stick.

Meanwhile, Guy confirmed that he and other senior PoWs are moving to enter black marks in the service records of men they regard as collaborators. A bad efficiency report can wreck a military career.

"In the eyes of the majority of the American people, we are all heroes. This is not true. We had our good and our bad, our heroes and our cowards."

Guy said he knows of PoWs who made propaganda statements without being tortured, as he was.

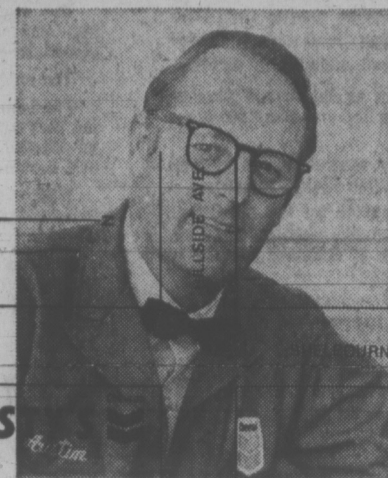

The men who accepted favored treatment from the North Vietnamese "lived pretty good," walking around looking tanned and fit while "the rest of us sat in little, tiny cells."

Heritage Plan Widened

Old Town, 15 individual buildings and two other areas, are suggested as "heritage areas" to be protected by the city.

A report on the heritage idea is being prepared by Ald. Sam Bawlf.

Bawlf wants the city to set up a revolving fund to buy individual buildings in the areas when they come under the threat of being demolished. The city would place a covenant on them to prevent their alteration and would then resell them.

The 15-page report should be made public for discussion next week.

Bawlf, who is in the business of refurbishing historic structures, says the report is a result of his own experience and research.

He is sending copies to Premier Dave Barrett and various cabinet ministers for their consideration in the light of recent provincial legislation which will empower municipalities to protect heritage areas and buildings.

Bawlf says property owners need not fear losing money if their properties fall under the heritage category, because the revolving fund will provide for compensation.

Bawlf says he did not want the areas in question named yet, although he says everybody agrees the Old Town should receive special consideration and protection.

He has proposed that the revolving fund be started off by selling the city-owned Dowell Building on Wharf Street, which has stood vacant and dilapidated for several years.

A price of more than $200,000 has been mentioned and Bawlf feels there will be no shortage of bidders.

ONTARIO KILLS ENERGY TAX

Times News Services
TORONTO — The Ontario government, bowing to pressure from within its own ruling Conservative party and from other sectors in the province, announced today it was withdrawing a seven-per-cent tax on energy sources proposed in its recent budget.

Premier William Davis made the announcement in the legislature to jeers and shouts of "resign" from opposition benches and thumping approval from his own supporters.

The proposed tax was to be on energy sources for heating, lighting and cooking. Manufacturers and heavy industry were exempted from the tax in the budget.

BORDELLOS ON WHEELS

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit police say some practitioners of the world's oldest profession are utilizing the Motor City's best known product by operating motorized bordellos.

Cars and camper trucks converted into rolling bedrooms cruise the downtown areas and the suburbs, and the panders and their ladies offer curb service, officers say.

The camper-bordellos are an innovation on the Detroit scene. Police say they haven't really caught on yet and most of the travelling saleswomen still work out of cars.

"We know what he's doing, but we haven't been able to bust him yet," said vice-squad Patrolman Michael Galloway about one chauffeur-pimp. "We haven't been able to catch him at it."

Police estimate there are between 6,000 and 8,000 prostitutes in the city, and the motorized madams who use cars are becoming a real problem, Galloway said.

Many pull over to the side of a street and flag down prospective customers.

There is nothing illegal about having a bed in the back seat of a car or in a camper, and "nothing in the Motor Vehicle Code that covers the situation, unless they park illegally."

three days after the new campaign contribution reporting law went into effect, but the gift was never reported.

Six months later, Vesco contributed another $50,000 (by check), which was reported.

The entire $250,000 was returned to Vesco nearly three months ago, with the Committee to Re-Elect the President saying that, in view of the charges against him and his firms, "we believe it is in your best interest, as well as ours, that the contributions be returned."

According to the SEC complaint, Vesco launched his plan to "loot" the IOS funds shortly after making the $200,000 payment.

The scheme, SEC alleged, consisted of creating dummy corporations, controlled by Vesco and his associates, to receive investments of fund money.

The bulk of the SEC's complaint involves actions Vesco allegedly took after the secret payment.

Recently, it was learned that Vesco secretly gave more than $50,000 in cash to the Nixon campaign in 1968 and then tried to make contact with administration figures when the SEC began its investigation.

Those approaches were rebuffed, however, with the word that nobody knew anything about the payment.

Meanwhile, U.S. senate sources said Monday investigators have evidence there was an elaborate White House effort to cover up high-level involvement in the Watergate affair.

The evidence indicates presidential aides H. R. Haldeman and John Ehrlichman were among the participants, the sources added.

They said there is no question President Nixon was aware of a coverup effort, perhaps as early as a few days after the break-in at Democratic party headquarters in the Watergate building here last June 17 during the presidential election campaign.

They predicted Ehrlichman, chief of Nixon's domestic affairs council, will be among those forced to resign when the details of the operation become public.

Prosecutor in the Watergate case, Earl Silbert, has told friends privately that Attorney-General Richard Kleindienst once called him into his office early in the Watergate investigation and told him to "go slow" in returning indictments.

SPY OPERATION

The Senate sources said there are indications the president did not know about the Watergate raid until after it occurred, but that he was aware there was a political espionage operation within the Committee for the Re-election of the President.

When former attorney-general John Mitchell resigned as director of the re-election committee two weeks after the break-in, "the president knew why he was resigning, that it was because of Watergate," the sources said.

In other developments:

A lawyer for Nixon's campaign finance committee gave court officials three cartons of secret campaign spending records that had been withheld in apparent violation of an agreement to furnish them last November. He said they include payroll records containing names of two of the Watergate conspirators.

Transcripts of testimony before the Watergate grand jury quoted convicted wire-tapper James McCord as saying under oath that he had been offered executive clemency if he would remain silent about the conspiracy and serve more than a year in jail.

The White House said today President Nixon made no offer of a speedy release from prison in exchange for McCord's silence.

Daily Promises Consultation

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Education Minister Eileen Daily promised Monday there will be no major education changes in B.C. without consulting teachers.

In a speech that was positive but moderate, Daily didn't "drop any bombshells" in her address to 600 delegates to the B.C. Teachers Federation annual convention and said she never intends to. Her promise of consultation with teachers took the wind out of the sails of militants within the organization.

It was the first time in three years an education minister had addressed the teachers' meeting and Daily was greeted with a standing ovation from a receptive crowd which laughed and clapped as she talked of her own teaching experiences.

She told the delegates of the problems she had faced with school boards and education departments that wouldn't listen and they cheered when she told them her doors were open.

"My responsibility," she said, "is to keep open the communication lines between myself and teachers."

The commission on public education can bring about changes in the Public Schools Act, the minister told them, only if it gets constant input from teachers, students and parents.

And the cheers grew louder when she said: "If education is going to meet the needs of children today, you as teachers must be involved in decision making."

Daily's promise that the provincial government will work closely with teachers to bring about changes in education echoed the earlier opening address of outgoing BCTF president Adam Robertson.

In calling for an end to the "mantle of militancy" assumed by teachers last year to fight the Social Credit government, Robertson had told the delegates a "very new and very different" kind of atmosphere prevailed in teacher relations with the NDP government.

In an interview later, Robertson praised the positive statements and actions of the new education minister but said he "wouldn't hazard a guess" as to whether the teachers will heed his call to peace.

"I think there might have been a lot of teachers who thought I presented an exaggerated picture of the militant problem," Robertson said. "But they don't have the provincial view I do."

He said the problem is coming to a head in a power struggle for control of the teachers' federation between forces on the right and on the left. He said he hopes the executive elections Wednesday will see teachers choosing candidates "from the centre, with the chance for input from extremists."

Robertson told the delegates to concentrate on educational rather than political issues and Daily again echoed his feelings when she closed her speech with a reminder that teachers not forget the children in their classrooms.

"Whatever you do here today," she said, "I urge you to keep in mind the children in your classroom."

The minister stayed clear of most issues facing teachers at the three-day convention, commenting only on the BCTF task force which found discrimination against women in B.C. education.

She said her department is trying to promote the idea that women should take more responsibility in the administration of education.

"I encourage women in the teaching profession to apply for principalships, to apply for district superintendent (positions), and let's break the tradition that women can't get those jobs."

Recommendations stemming from the task force on the status of women in B.C. education will be debated at the convention tonight.

The major recommendation calls for employment of a full-time person to work towards improvement of the status of women in the BCTF and in education generally.

CITY TEACHERS SEEK FEDERATION POSTS

Times Staff

VANCOUVER — Two Victoria teachers are among 27 candidates vying for positions on the B.C. Teachers Federation 1973-74 executive.

Both are from Mount View Secondary School and both have adopted centralist platforms.

Bill Broadley, past president of the Greater Victoria Teachers Association (GVTA), is running for first vice president of the BCTF and his election statement at the federation's annual general meeting Monday in Vancouver was well received by the 600 delegates.

"A move too far from the centre," Broadley said, "will produce a reaction a year from now that will lead us on a zig-zag course beset by internal difficulties."

The majority of teachers, he said, want their executive representatives to avoid the radical use of power and confrontation.

The federation needs an executive with a "fundamental belief in the collective wisdom of the majority" and will not be well served by "leaders who move away from the centre."

Describing himself as an "optimistic pragmatist" or a "pragmatic optimist," Broadley, a teacher in Victoria for 18 years, said he wants the federation to be more responsive to individual members, and individual teachers to have more responsibility in the education system.

Running for the post of member-at-large is Jim Ross, current vice president of the GVTA and teacher in Victoria for five years. Like Broadley, Ross sees the need for a central balance in the teachers' executive and calls for "creative tension" — dialogue out of which consensus grows.

He agrees that teachers should take more responsibility and act "as professionals with special information and ideas" for the public.

Four men are running for president of the BCTF, two for first vice president, six for second vice president and 15 for the four vacant at-large positions.

Elections take place Wednesday, last day of the convention.

In the next ten years you'll pay about $180 too much to heat your water with oil.

(That's if oil prices don't go up. Again.)

Or, you can switch to a Cascade electric water heater. First of all, you'll get all the hot water you need. Silently. Dependably. You won't have to fret about fuel delivery. Nor will you have reason to worry about environmental damage. Electricity is clean.

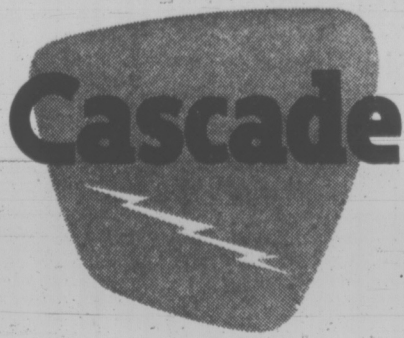

Best of all, on Vancouver Island it's the most economical way to heat water automatically. Compared to oil-fired units, the total cost of a Cascade electric water heater works out to approximately $18.00 less a year* (In some areas you could save over $21.00 a year.*)

If you think $4.13 a month to rent an oil-fired water heater sounds pretty reasonable, consider this:

you'll pay only $1.16 a month to own a Cascade, over the next ten years.* And that's more than reasonable.

Last of all, every Cascade unit carries a ten-year guarantee on the tank. If you wish, convenient financing can be arranged through B.C. Hydro. No matter how you add it all up, you get a lot more than hot water when you switch to Cascade.

*Based on operating conditions and calculations detailed in B.C. Hydro Technical Bulletin CWH 1-73, available at all B.C. Hydro offices.

All the more reason to switch:
Cascade 60 now $50 off!

This offer available through the following dealers until August 31, 1973 and is available on the replacement of a water heater in a residential home only.

Only a Trace of Truce

At this point, it is the fears, rather than the hopes, that accompanied the signing of the Vietnam truce, that are being fulfilled. The peace is "fragile" — the word which External Affairs Minister Sharp says Japanese and numerous other foreign spokesmen used during his recent Asian travels, when urging Canada to remain on the truce commission. Just how fragile may be seen, for example, in Mr. Sharp's report that at the time of his visit, some 7,000 incidents of truce-breaking had been recorded in South Vietnam. Of these, only 31 resulted in requests for investigation; and only two Commission reports had emerged from the complaints.

The whole country is officially "at peace", yet two International Commission for Control and Supervision helicopters were forced down by Northern troops while flying to an agreed destination in South Vietnam. The reason given for the attack was that the helicopters were off the permitted course. Such severe and ruthless reprisals raises the question of why surveillance — accidental or otherwise — is so feared over territory in which presumably no military preparation or action is taking place — or admitted to be taking place. Under such conditions, even "fragile" seems to be an exaggerated description of the peace.

So open are the truce violations, not only in South Vietnam but in the neighboring states of Laos and Cambodia, that the United States is now threatening, at least by implication, that further infringements by Hanoi will result in increasingly severe retaliation by one means or another.

The removal of underwater mines from Hanoi waters, long proceeding at a snail's pace, has been temporarily discontinued as a mark of protest against Hanoi's military movements in the south. Aerial reconnaissance flights over the North have been made by U.S. planes, and several bombing attacks have been staged in Cambodia to aid hard-pressed defenders against Communist advances.

Against this background it is becoming increasingly difficult to carry out the formalities of a truce, including the pretence that such a phenomenon exists. The only real gain of the Paris agreement has been the repatriation of U.S. prisoners and withdrawal of the last of the American troops. But there is no sure guarantee that more fliers will not be involved, that another generation of prisoners may be gathered in, and the dreary business start all over again.

It becomes harder to argue against the proposition that Vietnamese affairs must be settled by Vietnamese, without outside interference. And it is equally clear that the settlement will be based on the proposition that might is right. Certainly, no normal western concepts of agreement-keeping seem to apply in Hanoi-Saigon relations. They do not even appear to be expected. The real tragedy of Vietnam may be only beginning.

Investment

There is public loss as well as considerable personal injustice when a civic employee is moved steadily upward through 23 years of service to the city and is then suddenly judged to be inadequate for what is required in his final and highest post. Total dismissal under such circumstances does not seem logical, inasmuch as there must be alternative offices in which such a person could serve, using the skills and judgment he amassed while being employed by the city. The council which appoints a man to a job should bear some responsibility for its decision, even though its authority to reverse its judgment is beyond question. It is a waste of manpower to settle affairs on an all-or-nothing basis when ability is needed elsewhere in the public service, and is still available.

"... it's a meatless meat-loaf, Harold... A MEATLESS MEAT-LOAF... AND I'M NOT TELLING YOU ONE SINGLE BLESSED THING THAT'S IN IT... JUST EAT IT, OKAY?..."

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Prisoners and Others

Your editorial which was published on March 5, 1973, under the caption "Contempt for the PoWs" presents so slanted a view of the politics of the subcontinent that one is constrained to reply.

Human memory being proverbially short it would not be out of place to remind your readers that the PoWs now held in India and Bangladesh are not the injured innocents they are made out to be. Indeed they were taken into captivity after having been engaged in an eight-month long malevolent orgy of terror against an unarmed people who constituted a majority in the then State of Pakistan.

Even now the leaders of Pakistan show no change of heart or attitude in their politics of confrontation. Mr. Bhutto came to Simla and gave a solemn assurance that he would recognize Bangladesh. However, after recovering occupied Pakistani territory from India he reneged on his solemn pledge and is now hardening his stand on recognition.

Moreover the new draft constitution of Pakistan contains a proviso allowing for the eventual return of "East Pakistan" within the folds of Pakistan. In view of this Bangladesh has legitimate fears that Pakistan could conceivably attempt to enforce its territorial claims against Bangladesh by the force of arms.

Is it therefore so illogical for Bangladesh and India to hold on to the PoWs until hostilities genuinely cease, as visualized by the Geneva Convention, and not proceed with the repatriation of the PoWs upon achieving what is merely a cease-fire?

Since you plead for the PoWs on compassionate grounds one would have expected you to at least mention the predicament of the Bengalis now stranded in Pakistan. There are more numerous than the PoWs and the bulk of them are without any means of livelihood. Considering that they were innocent bystanders, their claim to repatriation should surely have priority over that of the PoWs. — A. H. Murshid, Apt. 1509, 160 Chapel, Ottawa.

Cold Cure

Concerning a cure for the common cold, many years ago an elderly neighbor told me that if I ate honey every day, I would never have another cold. After persevering for a year, I found that he was substantially correct. Possibly, if scientists analyzed honey, they could discover the element in it that does greatly lessen the tendency to colds. — J. P. Thornton, 943 Wilmer St.

Sponging

Along with a great many taxpayers I am disturbed at Rehabilitation Minister Levi's casual attitude that we must forever continue to keep on welfare healthy young people who "will not work." There is another large category who are very choosy as to the kind of work they will accept. These are the youngsters who live at home with their parents and collect welfare for spending money. There are married couples, one collecting welfare while the other surreptitiously has a well-paid job.

During the big depression of the Thirties in New York the home relief system was very carefully administered. Every application was thoroughly checked. No money, only food and shelter vouchers, were distributed and these were delivered personally to the applicant weekly so that a continual check was kept on the need status. Work projects were initiated by municipalities and if welfare cases refused offered jobs they were cut off relief.

It is high time for some of the younger generation to face up to reality and stop sponging on society. — Resentful Taxpayer.

Skilled Help

The Victoria West Community Development Association is interested in establishing an independent facility for senior citizens with the help of a New Horizons funding program, and with the aim of involving them on their own ground, with each other and with the youth in this area.

Many senior citizens have skills that are worthwhile. It is the hope of the Association to involve them with youth and particularly those in need of direction. On a one-to-one basis senior citizens may pass on their skills and establish through working together a relationship of mutual trust, friendship and respect. We hope that through this avenue the children will gain valuable insight toward growth and maturity.

We appeal to Victoria West senior citizens who have skills or talents (i.e. carpentry, gardening, metal work, mechanics, sewing, cooking, fishing, hunting, artistic and organizing talents) to respond and contact Mrs. A. van Noordt, in order that a meeting time can be set.

Several ideas for a fascinating and challenging venture in social and physical development of Vic West will be proposed.

A message for Mrs. van Noordt to call can be phoned in to the Victoria West Neighborhood centre, 384-1934, or write to 610 Pine St. — Mrs. Ann van Noordt, Community Development Worker, For Victoria West Neighborhood Centre, 519 Craigflower Rd.

Planning

May I express, through your paper, some ideas regarding developments in the city. Mr. Erickson was hired, by the city, to draw up a plan for developing the Inner Harbor at a cost of $35,000. Another gentleman, from Seattle, was hired to look into the feasibility of a mall on Government St. and View St. at a cost of $9,000. What about Truncheon Alley and Eaton's Mall?

I think this is ridiculous as city hall is full of plans for development of property from Courtney St. to Pandora and Douglas St. Wharf. Why couldn't the best features from these plans be incorporated into one plan, for the development of this section, by the planning department in City Hall? I haven't a doubt in my mind about the planning department as I believe it to be an excellent one. Why not make use of it?

Thousands of dollars are to be spent on outsiders to prepare plans, and I think this money could be spent to better advantage. For instance, the city requires men with hospital experience to man an efficient ambulance in the city, or maybe a very long ladder fire truck which could be used while combating fires in high rise apartments.

This money could also be used to renovate the old Crystal Garden swimming pool, perhaps as a botanical garden with a tea room, and the property where the Empress Laundry stood turned into a garden with sections planted with plants representing the different countries, represented by ethnic groups living in the city, fashioned along the lines of the English garden in Centennial Square. This would be saving an old building which is wanted by certain groups.

If city council would work as a team rather than one or two wanting his ideas adopted, and learn to make decisions and stay with them, there would be less dissension in council and a more harmonious atmosphere in city hall.

I trust other taxpayers will take more interest in how the taxpayer's money is being spent and express their view. — An Interested Taxpayer.

Hot Water

Many British Columbians are still shaking their heads over the election of a Socialist government in B.C. last fall, however most tried to quiet their fears by saying "let's give them a chance." Six months later, they were saying, "I just can't believe it could happen here." Now, disbelief has been replaced with grave concern and fear of the loss of personal freedom and security of the individual, which has been replaced in most of this session's legislation by "Big Government decision-making process."

Some are comforting themselves by saying, "we'll just have to suffer for three or four years and then we can make a change and start putting it all back together again." They don't realize that that is as impossible as trying to reconstitute berries from jam, and the Socialists really know how to make jam out of free enterprise berries.

I recently read an article entitled "Frogs and Freedom" which describes perfectly what is happening to our freedoms today. It said, there's an old story that says you can't kill a frog by dropping him into boiling water. He reacts so quickly to the sudden heat that he jumps out before he's hurt. But if you put him in cold water and then warm it up gradually, he never decides to jump out till it's too late; by then he's cooked.

"Men are as foolish. Take away their freedom overnight and you've got a violent reaction. But steal it from them gradually (under the guise of peace, security, the people's best interest, or progress) and you can paralyze an entire generation. Look at income tax. It started as a harmless sounding two per cent. It would have been easy to have jumped out of water tepid as that, but like the frog, we waited, while it climbed higher. Try jumping out NOW."

Worst of all we never seem to learn. The legislation will always affect someone else, never us, and the tragedies of the past are always repeated by those who refuse to learn from them.

To seek guidance from the past is not turning the clock backwards, as we are so often told. It is merely a good way to keep out of hot water. — John D. Tisdalle.

Confusing

As a Canadian I suppose I should not comment, or criticize how the U.S. spends its money, but your article "The billion-dollar military hardware" by Simon Winchester of the Manchester Guardian, is at best confusing.

Here is a country prepared to spend one billion dollars on one aircraft carrier when it does not provide federal medical or hospital care except for those citizens over 65 and then only in a very limited way. In addition this is the country where one can still sell one's blood for resale later to a patient in need of such blood. In addition the President has recently sent to Congress recommendations for cuts in educational and other benefits for Vietnam veterans in addition to reductions in social and welfare programs.

With the tragedy of cancer in our midst and other ailments, surely the billion dollars could have been appropriated for saving life rather than in a weapon of frightening capacity for destroying life. It just does not make sense to me, but of course we live in a very crazy world. — M. P. B. Wrixon, 318-1680 Poplar Ave.

From the Times of April 24, 1913:
BERLIN — There are many indications here that the German government and public regard the European situation as critical. A high diplomatic source said today: "Europe has entered another crisis as grave as that which preceded the Austro-Russian demobilization."

A feeling of consternation and helplessness was displayed at yesterday's conference of ambassadors in London. Representatives of all nations, including Russia, agreed that the decision of the powers regarding Scutari must be enforced, but were uncertain how Montenegro was to be coerced into leaving. Austria has issued an ultimatum to Montenegro.

Overloaded Boats

Loss of a youth — one of seven in a 12-foot aluminum boat — off Salt Spring Island Friday night, following the tragedy which claimed three lives in a family of four in a small boat on wind-whipped Butte Lake the week before, brings home a tragic lesson. Too many small craft are being over-loaded for conditions they encounter on the water.

Within the next few weeks the number of people taking to boats of different sizes will swell to summer's peak. Already the toll has been excessive, but from these accidents a lesson should be learned. The seaworthiness of small boats diminishes as weight above normal lowers them in the water. Tragedy is invited by the risk factor involved.

Boating mishaps will occur under almost any circumstances. The hazard should not be increased by putting too many people aboard.

A Low-Pitched Indian Voice

Chief Dan George has spoken quietly but impressively about Canada's Indian problems and contrasted the attitudes shown in this country to those of militant American Indian Movement members at Wounded Knee. There is much to be done to improve the condition of the Indian in Canada, says the chief, but he makes the emphatic point that integration, which he favors, will not be accomplished with guns.

The noted Academy Award nominee provides a balancing viewpoint to be weighed against that of a Canadian AIM member who suggested earlier this month that the events in Wounded Knee might be repeated on this side of the border unless headway toward solution of the Indian question was accelerated.

Chief George points to the progress being made by the council of chiefs who are working in a persuasive way without violence. By such means improvements will be brought about more effectively than by bullets.

C. L. SULZBERGER

The Tenant in the Pacific

MANILA — The United States and the Philippines are now approaching the final phase of renegotiating an American base agreement here designed to assure U.S. support of mobile forces in the Western Pacific after withdrawal from Indochina and Okinawa's reversion to Japan. A joint working group from both nations has completed about 90 per cent of a proposed draft.

This accord, which would guarantee continued facilities at Clark Air Base and Subic Bay Naval Base, is considered by Washington as more important than ever because of changed strategic patterns. Existing U.S. installations are worth more than $2 billion.

The present base agreement negotiated together with a military assistance program in 1947, was the first entered into anywhere by Washington after World War II. Originally designed to endure until 1946, the term was later cut to 1991. No rental is paid to Manila for these bases which contain a fluctuating average of about 20,000 men.

Defence Pact

In 1950 Washington and Manila signed a subsequent mutual defence pact valid indefinitely unless denounced by either party with one year's advance notice. Because of this alliance, Assistant Secretary of State William P. Bundy said at Davao, the Philippines, on Feb. 24, 1966: "Any armed attack against the Philippines would be regarded as an attack against the United States armed forces there and against the United States and would be instantly repelled." He pointed out that this had been officially stated to Filipino Presidents Garcia, Macaragal and Marcos, who remains in power today.

However, Marcos acknowledges that such implied automaticity cannot be relied on. He told me: "We know our treaty provides the U.S. will take action only according to its Constitution, in case of attack here. But if there should be an outright attack on your troops, presumably you will act swiftly. At any rate, then it's your problem."

The security treaty is not up for renegotiation since it remains valid and it is recognized that the U.S. Senate is in no mood to accept any substitute. But both parties agree on the need to replace the base agreement. Moreover, Marcos insists the aid accord is far too small. He places its annual worth at about $12 million while Americans say it comes to $20 million.

In either case, it is considered that the amount of equipment arriving here is too little. Marcos says: "We want the United States to deliver the goods promised."

PRESIDENT MARCOS

The Philippines have the smallest military establishment in Asia, in proportion to population, and they are now engaged in a very serious counter-insurgency operation against Moslem guerrillas in the south.

This is not going well. The rebels, often trained in Sabah, a nearly autonomous state in Malaysian Borneo, and supplied with funds and weapons through there, have shown superiority in equipment and tactics on several fronts. Manila would like more helicopters, mortars and recoilless rifles to quell the uprising.

President Marcos says: "We feel the U.S. hasn't given us the support of an ally which promised assistance, especially in time of crisis. We could understand a shortage during the Vietnam war. But we certainly would like access now to what has been declared surplus material."

Nevertheless, serious as this problem is for the regime, it has not produced anti-American feeling or impinged on the base negotiations. The president himself wants to encourage foreign investment to help carry out his reform program.

Potential Force

Apart from the importance to the U.S. of continued access to the bases, some observers feel it is vital to remain on good terms with the Filipino army. Should any disaster in the south force the departure of Marcos, the army would probably be the only potential force that could stave off political chaos.

At present such a crisis appears unlikely. The existing martial law rule has encouraged economic stability and reduced corruption. The previous society was unquestionably sick and although the press is stupidly fettered now, it tended before to be licentious.

Base renegotiations coincide with the need for a new trade accord when the present one expires next year. The degree of U.S. satisfaction on bases may depend on the degree of Filipino satisfaction on commerce.

If this implied link is not accepted, Manila will almost certainly demand rental for American facilities, something it has so far refrained from doing. "Perhaps we have been poor bargainers," President Marcos says, when reflecting on what Washington pays Spain for similar rights.

Nature Teams Up With Nationalism

By BOB HUNTER
The Sun

For years it seemed as though such issues as environmentalism and nationalism could not possibly have any common cause.

Ultimately, the environment is global. Nationalism, by definition, seeks to carve the globe up into pieces. The two movements seemed mutually exclusive. In fact, they seemed to move in opposite directions.

But history is perverse. And today we see a strange political form stirring like rain-heavy clouds on the horizon. Call it, if you like, "environmental nationalism." Why not call it that? If we can have Progressive Conservatives, which are nothing less than a collection of forward-backwards, there is nothing to au-tomatically rule out the eventual formation of a force which is simultaneously global and anti-global.

The United Nations has already officially recognized the value of the term "environmental aggression." That's something which happens when one country lets poisons from its smoke stacks drift across the border into the lungs of the citizens of another country. Or when a country, such as France, unleashes nuclear radiation which finds its way into the genes of people other than Frenchmen. Or when a country pours chemicals into a river which runs into someone else's territory.

Close to home, the most immediately obvious example of environmental aggression is about to be felt along the West Coast. When Richard Nixon has finished pulling all the strings to allow his buddies in the oil companies to send their supertankers down along our coast, regardless of the risk to our environment, that's environmental aggression.

They're not shooting bullets at us or dropping bombs. But, in the long run, they might as well. An oil spill is a kind of soft black bomb. And our shorelines, by the time the supertankers have finished, will be far worse off than the beaches of Normandy long ago.

Up until this point in time, nationalism in Canada has tended to confine itself to economie questions, cultural questions, political questions. Not until recently has it begun to address itself to the environmental question. And here — at this juncture — Canadian nationalism acquires a tremendous new dimension.

The fact is that it doesn't really matter whether we have the fastest, sharpest, most hip and together department of the environment in the world. It doesn't matter if we keep our own yard in order. It doesn't matter whether our governments — provincial or federal — are sensitive to the needs of our environment. It really doesn't matter at all.

Because our giant neighbor to the south is showing no sign of maturing in terms of environmental awareness. The "energy crisis" is real enough — but, as surely everyone must realize, it is being used by the oil mafia as an excuse to step up the rate of resource depletion, and, incidentally, profits. With one-sixteenth of the world's population, America devours 33 per cent of the world's energy. The beast is insatiable.

In the process of glutting itself, America will yet drag us all down to ruin.

If Canadians are ever going to get serious about trying to preserve this country for future generations, they are going to have to face the fact — sooner or later — that America is not our friend. America, at this moment in history, is the worst enemy our environment has.

It is not the Chinese who are about to wipe out our fisheries. It is not the Russians who are about to spill crude oil all over our estuaries. It is not the Germans or Italians or Japanese who are about to wreck our vulnerable life-giving coast.

The hard truth of the matter is that the single biggest threat to our environment comes from the United States of America.

At the moment, there are few links between the groundswelling environmental movement and the steadily-building nationalist movement in Canada. Environment seems mainly to be a West Coast phenomenon. And nationalism has far too long been an oddity in deepest, darkest Eastern Canada.

But events are pushing the two movements into each other's embrace. And unless I miss my bet entirely, the time is not far away when the two will be one.

India Kills Millions of Jobs 'For the Good of the Country'

By LEWIS M. SIMONS
The Washington Post

NEW DELHI — "Look at us," said Suresh Bhan as he dumped the 50-pound sack of grain off his shoulders and painfully straightened his back. "Do we look like maharajahs?"

With a jerk of his thin arm and a bitter laugh, he turned to half a dozen men working in front of a tiny, cramped stall, piling sacks on to towering heaps. Like Bhan, they wore filthy shorts and undershirts. Their faces streamed with sweat, their hair white with the dust puffing out of the heavy sacks.

"Yet the government has called on us to give up our livings," Bhan said, "just as they called on the rajahs to give up their privy purses — for the good of the country. It is a joke."

If it is a joke, it's on Bhan and the other who earn their livelihood in India's wholesale grain trade. The government this month nationalized the trade, putting an estimated 2.5 million people out of work.

First True Test

The takeover could prove to be the first true test of socialism for Prime Minister Indira Gandhi's government, which is moving relentlessly toward that goal.

In recent years, when she nationalized banking, insurance and public transportation, Mrs. Gandhi had only to step on the feet of the few millionaires who controlled those industries. But in taking over the grain trade she is treading on the toes of hundreds of thousands of small entrepreneurs and their employees.

Besides those involved directly in wholesale operations, retailers will also be affected. Under nationalization, the government will distribute the bulk of the grain it collects to government-run "fair price shops," eliminating the need for large numbers of private shops.

Work for a Few

While some of the workers involved will doubtless find work in a new bureaucracy, only a relative handful would or could be absorbed, as the grain dealers' organization pointed out to Mrs. Gandhi in an "urgent memorandum" dated March 26.

Citing illiteracy and the use of local languages as two of the reasons many of these workers cannot be absorbed, the memorandum — to which Mrs. Gandhi has not yet responded — concluded: "The inevitable result of the takeover... would be to add to the number of millions of unemployed persons in the country."

Mrs. Gandhi is also risking the ire of millions of Indian farmers, the largest sector of the country's 550 million people, demanding that they sell their grain to the government at a fixed price.

Already, farmers' groups in wheat-producing states are threatening not to co-operate with government procurement agents. Smuggling wheat out of cordoned-off surplus states into deficit areas has begun, and large quantities of grain are disappearing from the open market, presumably destined for the black market.

In a nationwide survey The Economic Times, a respected Bombay daily, reported that "wheat is scarce and prices have soared" since nationalization began going into effect state by state.

In weighing the pros and cons of the takeover, several agricultural and economic experts concurred that nationalization of the wholesale grain trade would be a good thing in the short term. But once the current marginal scarcity caused by widespread drought is overcome, these specialists said, the government would find its resources strained beyond capacity.

Producing Problems

The major weaknesses are expected to be the government's inability to procure enough grain from farmers at fixed rates and to mount a large enough apparatus to collect grain in far-flung regions, ship it to central storage points, hold it until it is needed in a deficit area and then redistribute it.

Experts say that the huge cost of maintaining such machinery, in good times as well as bad, will quickly take its toll on government resources—which are critically needed in development anyway — and force either prices or taxes up again.

The new regulations do not establish quotas for individual farmers, but just for each state. This leaves farmers free to withhold as much of their output as they like, to wait for prices to rise on the black market. It also tempts farmers to grow high-yield, low-quality varieties of grain, because the government has not established higher prices for better quality.

Blackmarket Grain

The potentially nightmarish complexities of underground trade in wheat, which is the first grain to be taken over, promise to look like a dream in comparison with what could happen when the wholesale rice trade is nationalized in a few months.

While wheat, the staple for half the country, is produced in the northern part of the country close to the central government apparatus, rice, the second food staple, is grown primarily in the south, far from New Delhi. Mrs. Gandhi said the decision to take over the wholesale business was forced on the government by dealers who last year drove the price of food grains up by as much as 13 per cent through hoarding and speculation.

Officials also say that the government has uncovered numerous cases of dealers financing their operations through private loans, indicating that they were using so-called "black money," income not declared to income tax authorities.

Illiteracy and local languages take away their livelihood

Why Have They Refused to Let Valery Panov Leave Russia?

By ANTHONY LEWIS
New York Times

LENINGRAD — The apartment door opens. There stands a man modest in size but projecting tremendous physical power and beauty. A fringe of beard around his triangular face gives him a saturnine look.

"Panov," he says.

We step into a living room perhaps 10 feet by 16, with chairs, a dining table, a television set, a phonograph — the walls covered with pictures of dancers and musicians. On one wall a short wooden bar has been rigged as a dancer's practice bar.

That room is the universe of one of the world's great ballet dancers: his home, his studio, his stage. For more than a year now it has been the only place where Valery Panov can dance.

Panov was a leading dancer of the Kirov Ballet, Leningrad. In March, 1972, he and his wife, the ballerina Galena Ragozina, applied for exit visas to go to Israel. The Kirov company immediately dismissed him and reduced her to the lowest level of the corps de ballet; she left with him. They did not get the exit permits.

The pressures on Panov have steadily grown. Last May he was charged with spitting on a militiaman's sleeve and spent a week in a cell full of amputees and cripples — an unsavory message. More recently, mail and telegrams from abroad have been cut off. Three months ago his telephone just stopped working. Twice this month he has been stopped on the street by a burly figure who asked him for a cigarette — and then found himself surrounded by men who grabbed him, and they let go.

But the threats may matter less than the sense of confinement. Valery Panov is not a mathematician or a writer whose life is in his head; he is a physical man who must dance to live. At the age of 35 he feels that life force draining away.

"I have a little more strength left to fight," he says. "Then... I must get out or my life is over: there is no more me."

For a visitor from the outside world, seeing the Panovs is like wandering into a novel, a fantasy. In that living room, its ceiling too low to let him leap, he seems caged. Galena is a tiny blonde just 23 years old. She gives an elfin smile and touches his brow when he says, "They tell people I am an evil magician who has cast a spell on her."

In his gesture and expression, Panov is the great artist who knows his true status and treats unpleasant reality almost with disdain. But not far under that surface there is desperation.

He says he is grateful for protests organized in their behalf in New York and London, but he is still not sure that Westerners understand the seriousness of the situation. For example, some who reached him by telephone asked about whether he had enough food and clothes, not about his internal agony.

"When I said they were squeezing me to death," Panov says, "there would be a silence on the telephone as if I had spoiled the game by saying something too serious."

The irony is that Panov is such a Russian figure. He wants to do Russian ballet; he has choreographed Pushkin's "Queen of Spades" and other Russian classics. He thinks Russian dancers and training are the best, the pay and conditions good. But party cultural watchdogs made life impossible, he says, by demanding changes in productions for ideological reasons.

in the Soviet Union, and Panov is probably the most decorated artist who has ever tried to leave for Israel. The symbol is hard to accept.

Of course they are not the only people who have been refused exit visas arbitrarily. The Hermitage Museum's curator of European-American arms and armor, Leonid Tarassuk, was dismissed last year when he applied for a visa. Just a few days ago Tarassuk, who like many with higher education is a reserve military officer, got a call-up notice. If he goes, he believes that will be the end: he will then be treated as having had access to secrets and will never be allowed to leave.

Panov thinks that, despite some relaxation in the application of exit fees, the dangers are increasing for individual Jews who are regarded as prominent examples. He believes their only hope is that they will be let go as part of the arrangement for Leonid Brezhnev's projected visit to the United States: "If we do not get out then, our life is over."

In two weeks in the Soviet Union I have seen much to admire. I think Soviet leaders genuinely want better relations with the United States, and it is right to meet that desire. But as long as such exemplary cruelty remains a part of the system, it will not be possible to forget Valery Panov.

Blades Rally to Gain Tie

MEDICINE HAT — Ralph Kalsen hammered in a goal with seven seconds left on the clock Monday to give Saskatoon Blades a 4-4 tie with Medicine Hat Tigers in the opening game of the Western Canada Hockey League playoff final series.

Blades had to overcome a 3-1 deficit in the third period to pull out the tie before 4,677 fans.

The Saskatoon club, run-away winners in the regular Eastern Division season, bounced back to within one goal when Byron Jackson scored on a power play early in the final period. Ed Johnstone restored Tigers' margin to two goals while Blades were a man short and set the stage for the final surge.

Bill Laing closed the gap by scoring while Medicine Hat's Brad Gassoff was sitting out a minor penalty and Klassen came through to salvage the tie while Saskatoon goalie Ed Humphrey was pulled in favor of an extra attacker.

Don McLeod scored the other goal for Blades in the first period while Ryan Wecker, Boyd Anderson and Dick Jallema scored the other Tiger goals.

Humphrey finished with 21 saves while, at the other end of the ice, Sam Clegg parried 29 shots.

"Clegg came up with two saves in the last minute, but the puck was lying loose before Klassen came in and tipped in the tying goal," said Tiger coach Jack Shupe.

Jackie McLeod, the Blades' coach, praised Humphreys after the contest.

"I said all year Humphreys is the best junior goalie in Canada. I think he proved it out there tonight (Monday)." Second game in the series is scheduled here tonight.

A Status Symbol—at $24,750

The Well-Heeled 200 and Their Love Affair With a Car

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Each year the lure of all that elegance and prestige puts some 200 well-heeled Victorians behind the wheel of a gleaming new luxury car.

They have their choice of everything from the top Volvo model, the 164E at a modest $7,000, to the $24,750 Aston Martin.

"The love affair with the automobile is not over," says local Cadillac salesman Jack Bond.

There are a lot of people around with money and leisure time to spare, and many spend it on cars, he says.

Some 25 Cadillacs are sold here each year, at prices ranging from $7,750 for a two-door Calais to $15,480 for a Fleetwood 75 limousine sedan.

Limousines are sold mainly as official cars for government dignitaries, while other Cadillacs such as the sporty Eldorado, called a "personal luxury specialty car," are for businessmen.

Then, of course, there are the funeral parlors, which generally give their business to Cadillac.

Cadillacs sell first as a status symbol. A typical ad shows a comely wife and 10-year-old daughter waiting beside the family Cadillac as the young tycoon steps out of his private plane at the end of a busy day.

But for some, Cadillac's status value has been tarnished by its image of ostentatious nouveau-riche wealth.

As Vance Packard said in The Status Seekers back in 1959: "As Cadillac developed vivid meaning as a success symbol for newly self-made men, some upper class people of older wealth . . . turned to cars that were less emphatically indicators of success."

As premier, W. A. C. Bennett drove in a chauffeur-driven black 1968 Cadillac.

Premier Dave Barrett has put the car in mothballs and now uses a standard department of highways car. Barrett's own car is a second-hand Volvo.

General Motors' other luxury car, the Oldsmobile 98, sells less well in Victoria.

Local Ford dealers sell 15 Lincoln Continentals ($10,000 to $13,000) a year, chiefly to owners of companies, and 25 to 30 Thunderbirds ($7,000 to $11,000).

Sales of the Chrysler line of cars, which range from $5,000 up to the $12,000 Imperial, are around 100 a year, although only a few would be Imperials.

Chrysler buyers are generally doctors, lawyers, dentists, and retired people who want a good car to drive down to Palm Springs in the winter, says Chrysler salesman Doug Boden.

A Porsche is an image car, not a status car such as the big American cars, says salesman Ted Bowcott. "By driving a Porsche you show you have class and taste, but not so much that you're a rich executive."

Clergymen who would never drive a Cadillac will drive a Porsche, says Bowcott. About five Porsche 911 sports-cars ($9,800 to $14,000) are sold here each year.

Five years ago Mercedes Benz sales in Victoria were negligible.

Last year 47 Mercedes were sold here, the highest per capita sales of any Canadian city, says local sales manager Georg Jendrossek. Prices range from $8,000 for the 220 sedan to $20,740 for the 450 SLC sports coupe.

Mercedes are for the self-made man, says Jendrossek, "for those who have made some achievements in their own lives."

"It is the car that sets the person apart from the average, and a successful person is apart from the average."

The ultimate status car, the Rolls Royce, hasn't been sold in Victoria for nearly a decade, although it's still sold in Vancouver.

"They'll come over at the drop of a hat if anyone's interested (in a Rolls)," says Norman Britnell, manager of the local dealership that did sell Rolls.

Britnell's firm is the only dealer in British Columbia for the English-made Aston Martin sports car, which is probably the most expensive car on sale in the city.

"We can only get 10 a year," he says, because only a few of the handmade cars are produced each year.

The Aston Martin is the James Bond car, with "the aura of the rich playboy" and a top speed of 160 mph, says Britnell.

However, to buy it "you've got to have one awfully good income," so most buyers are retired or semi-retired men over 50.

Fourteen Jaguars ($9,500 to $11,500) were sold last year. A few years ago all Jaguar buyers were over 45, says Britnell, but the last two sold here went to men in their early 30s.

All dealers agree that when a man buys a luxury car, he pays cash.

Marshall McLuhan called the automobile the mechanical bride; but even back in 1965 he thought the honeymoon would soon be over.

"At the heart of the car industry there are men who know that the car is passing, as certainly as the cuspidor was doomed when the lady typist arrived on the business scene," said McLuhan.

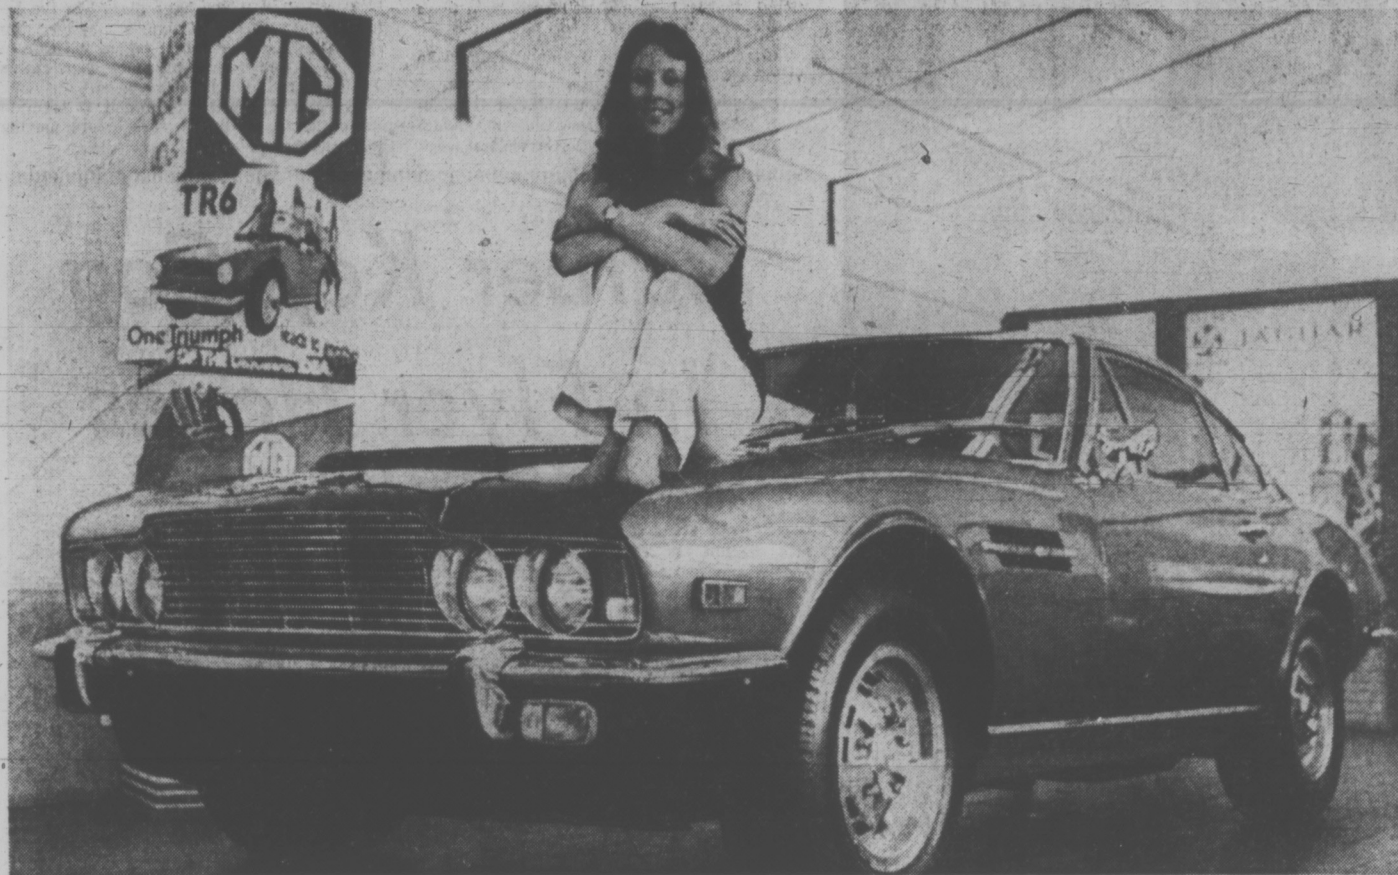

Luxury car buyers don't agree.

Lamborghini Miura SV for a cool $27,000

"The ability of most cars nowadays to attain speeds of 125 mph and over has no function other than to say to the buyer, who even on the open road rarely gets a chance to do 80, 'Don't feel badly, because you are a dubiously satisfactory bedmate. You're a mighty potent fellow. You are Captain Midnight! You are Buck Rogers!'"

Big 'Holleroo' Set to Fight E & N Cutbacks

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Vancouver Island mayors today launched a battle against an application by the CPR to close three stations and remove seven of the nine agents of the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway.

Mayor Jim Quaffe of Duncan said he is organizing a meeting of Island mayors "to raise the biggest holleroo the CPR ever heard."

Quaffe, who led Island mayors in a battle against a CPR bid to discontinue E & N passenger service in 1970, said the Canadian Transport Commission should not allow any cutback because the CTC in 1970 ordered the E & N to upgrade the condition of its railways stations.

"If the CPR is not interested in carrying out its responsibilities, it should turn the railway over to the municipalities who would show them how the railway could be run at a profit."

The CPR proposal: "It will apply to the CTC for permission to close down railway stations in Parksville, Nanaimo and Chemainus."

It will apply to replace its nine station agents with two travelling agents, with the other seven being given employment elsewhere in Canada.

It will offer Vancouver Island customers free telephone calls to its proposed computer centre in Vancouver where they would be able to get information on freight, train schedules and fares.

their tickets on the train rather than in the station.

Quaffe said that if the CPR is not interested in carrying out a thriving passenger service on the Island, it should be made to turn over the railway to the municipalities who, he was sure, could turn it into a profitable enterprise for tourists, regular passengers and freight hauling.

"As well they should be required to give back to the people the land, mineral rights and timber they were given in return for providing a rail service on Vancouver Island."

Quaffe's remarks were echoed by Mayor Gerald

Atterton said the proposed changes would not assist the passenger service but should not harm it. Freight customers, however, should get better service as a result.

He said at present a Vancouver Island customer phones the local agent for freight information and then the agent has to get the data from Vancouver. Now the customer will phone toll-free direct to Vancouver, Atterton said.

In Nanaimo, Mayor Frank Ney wondered how the proposed changes would streamline the service.

"My idea of streamlining is to use electronic equipment efficiently to give service and cut costs. There is no sign of that in this application."

Ney said that if the CPR is sincere in building the service while cutting costs it should install special phones in each station — not pay phones — so passengers can get information.

In addition they should install electronic bulletin boards giving information on schedules and where the trains are at any given time.

"How is a passenger to know if the train is late? Does he have to place a call to Vancouver just to find out if the train is on time? How do you place a toll-free call if there is only a pay phone? How will a tourist know he is supposed to place a call to get information?"

The toll-free number in Vancouver could be one of the best-kept secrets in the province, he said.

He urged all Vancouver Island mayors to prepare briefs to present to the Canadian Transport Commission hearings which will be held on the matter.

While the hearings would be the main battleground, preliminary actions will be taken at the proposed meeting of Island mayors.

As well the issue will be raised at the convention of Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island May 10 in Sidney.

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen said that when hearings are held on the CPR proposals, the railway must be compelled to increase its advertising program.

He said he was not alarmed about the proposed changes but felt that the CPR had been half-hearted in its publicity program.

'Enforcement Lax' Says Restaurateur

The president of the Victoria Restaurant Association said today enforcement of new provincial health regulations has been lax and some of the new rules are impossible to meet.

Gordon Schoor, whose association represents 130 dining places and coffee shops in Greater Victoria, said the stricter standards governing eating places in B.C. are a "farce" if not enforced equally.

It's a mistake to let an individual health inspector decide whether a restaurant deserves a permit, he said. It leaves too much to personal judgment.

He called for "some sort of board," with representation from the restaurant and hotel industry and public health authorities, to rule on issuing permits on closing businesses.

Schoor mentioned two rules which he said are impossible

for "anybody to comply with 100 per cent."

Lighting standards would make customers feel they are sitting under "heat lamps," he said. Food preparation areas must have a minimum lighting intensity of 50 foot-candles and dining areas 30 foot-candles.

And kitchens, or other areas where food is prepared, must have eight complete changes of air per hour, with four changes per hour required for other rooms, he said.

Under certain circumstances, these rules are too strong, he said.

Many restaurants in Greater Victoria are flouting some of the regulations, including the one which prohibits customers passing through a food preparation area to and from washrooms, he added.

The new regulations, which went into effect April 1, are to be enforced by health boards.

"It doesn't matter what you do, you're always wrong," was the first reaction from Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

He is senior public health officer for the Greater Victoria metro health board.

If the rules had been strictly enforced, half the local restaurants would have been closed down and the rest would have had a marvelous time charging twice as much, he said.

While it's true some health inspectors are more lenient than others, Whitbread said they are trained for their job "and I don't know who else would be better able to advise me."

At last count, close to 200 of the new permits had been issued to eating places and another 102 interim permits had been granted. That leaves about 70 restaurants without either kind but his staff is short two health inspectors, he said.

On lighting and air conditioning standards, he said the regulations call for a capability of 30 foot-candles for dining areas but don't say that much must be utilized.

The air changes per hour, while not in the regulations in the past, have been the standard used by health inspectors for many years, he added.

On patrons still passing through kitchen areas to washrooms, Whitbread said the easing of enforcement by the provincial government follows representations from the restaurant industry.

"We're only doing what the lawmakers tell us to do."

The new regulations, which detail numerous standards including what equipment is required, call for the public health authorities to issue permits.

But possession of a permit doesn't mean restaurants can become sloppy, said Whitbread.

He said two restaurants in Victoria were shut down for 24 hours last week "until they cleaned themselves up."

BOATERS FOUND HIGH AND DRY

Two missing Victoria adults and three children were found safe today in their chartered 17½-foot boat.

The coast guard cutter Racer discovered them at the east end of Link Island near Nanaimo. The man, identified only as Robert Borgford of Obed Avenue, anchored the boat after she ran out of fuel.

When the Racer found her she was high and dry. An RCMP launch supplied Borgford with fuel and the boat was expected to be refloated at high tide.

The search was started after the boat failed to return to All-Bay Marina in Sidney where she was rented Friday evening.

Let's Enforce Law On Builders—City

Hiring of a zoning enforcement officer is being considered in Victoria budget discussions.

The officer would co-ordinate the operations of building inspectors and ensure builders — particularly apartment developers — abide by the community's agreed-upon regulations.

The city has rarely prosecuted builders under its building bylaw throughout the extensive redevelopment period of the last 10 years.

In comparison, more than 35,000 prosecutions are carried out every year against ordinary citizens under the city's parking bylaw.

Mayor Peter Pollen is exerting pressure on the city's building and legal department to toughen up their attitude to builders.

He wrote recently to city solicitor Terry O'Grady that there appeared to be more effort put into avoiding court cases than in using them judiciously to enforce the law.

Pollen's impetus elicited a 16-page response from O'Grady.

City engineer Jim Garnett has gone on record several times complaining of a shortage of zoning enforcement staff.

"A zoning enforcement person is absolutely vital to the proper management of this city," Pollen said today.

Opting Out Ban Asked

The planning committee chairman for the proposed Sooke arena said today the entire Sooke electoral area should participate in the financing and parts of it should not be able to opt out.

Jimmy Dunn said the group had met Howard Elder, Sooke director on the Capital Regional District board, on the weekend and the director indicated there may be areas such as Port Renfrew, Shirley and East Sooke which would want to be excluded.

Dunn said a public meeting earlier this month supported a three-mill levy to finance the $300,000 arena which would be located just east of Sooke village. But, he said, if some areas can opt out, it will change the assessment base on which the three mills was projected.

He said the planning committee, which has been looking for a June referendum, will not put forward its proposal until the area to pay the cost is defined. He wants the regional board, which holds a regular meeting Wednesday, to define the area ahead of the vote.

Elder said today he has "the clear impression" that residents want a referendum but "there are segments of the community who honestly just don't want to be in."

But to keep the arena proposal moving ahead, Elder said, he wants the planning committee to bring its proposals to a meeting of the regional district's local works and services committee tonight.

Hydro to Charge Trash Dumpers

The B.C. Hydro and Power Authority is adopting a get-tough policy with people dumping garbage on its rights-of-way, charging them under the Litter Act.

"The dumping is on the increase, and we intend to crack down," a spokesman said today.

Three Nanaimo and Parksville residents were recently fined under the Litter Act which allows fines up to $500, imprisonment for up to six months, or both.

The spokesman said garbage ranging from household garbage and old appliances to car bodies and parts, old washing machines and bathtubs are being dumped on transmission rights-of-way in many parts of Vancouver Island, including the Victoria area.

Ed Marzocco, Hydro production manager for Vancouver Island, says prosecutions will be made without regard for when the garbage was dumped.

As well as being unsightly, the garbage is a health hazard and dangerous to Hydro crews that often have to drive over rights-of-way to get to their work, he said.

Basketball Draft Like Three-Ringed Circus

NEW YORK (AP) — The National Basketball Association draft remained in doubt today with lawyer Louis Nizer, scheduled to go before the Circuit Court of Appeals seeking a temporary restraining order stopping the selection of collegiate players.

Nizer's court appearance was planned for 10 a.m., EST. The NBA draft was to have started two hours later.

If Nizer, representing disgruntled Philadelphia 76ers, succeeds it would be the third postponement of the draft. The league itself delayed the draft two other times as a result of the John Brisker case.

If the NBA is forced to push its draft back again, the American Basketball Association, scheduled to pick on Wednesday, will do likewise. The ABA says it will draft after the NBA does, whenever that occurs.

The issue in the law courts is who will get draft pick No. 4 — Philadelphia or Seattle.

Once that's decided, the issue of who'll draft No. 1 may be decided between Philadelphia and Chicago.

The NBA, however, was holding fast to its plans to go ahead with the selection of players via long-distance telephone hookups pending any court action. Officially, Walter Kennedy, the NBA's commissioner, doesn't know about the latest court wrangle because he hasn't been served with any legal documents.

Developments in the NBA Monday night resembled a three-ring circus performance.

A sidelight, but not connected to the principal issue, was the sudden resignation of Kevin Loughery as coach of the 76ers to go to the rival ABBA's New York Nets as head coach.

The 76ers disclosed a trade with Chicago for the No. 1 draft pick, which is not at issue in the court case, then hedged on it, admitting that it wasn't final.

If the draft does go on today and if Chicago does pick No. 1, then the Bulls were expected to choose Illinois State's Doug Collins. If Philadelphia does the picking first, then the 76ers were expected to select Jim Brewer of Minnesota.

The 76ers announced they had traded the No. 1 draft pick — rightfully theirs because of the worst record in the Eastern Conference — to Chicago.

The trade announced had centre Clifford Ray and other considerations going to Philadelphia in exchange for the No. 1 pick. The rub was that Ray had to pass a physical examination.

The court case comes from Seattle's signing last summer of John Brisker, who was drafted in 1969 by the 76ers.

Brisker played with the now-defunct Pittsburgh Condors of the ABA and was waived out of that league after being acquired by Dallas in a dispersal draft.

Since Philadelphia had, the negotiating rights to Brisker, the 76ers complained. The NBA board of governors told Kennedy to handle the matter.

Kennedy punished Seattle by giving its No. 1 draft choice to the 76ers. Seattle owner Sam Shulman appealed and a federal judge ruled Kennedy had been guilty of misconduct and had violated the league constitution.

The board of governors, in a meeting last Wednesday, reversed Kennedy and gave Seattle its first-round pick back but awarded a bonus pick at the end of the first round to Philadelphia and transferred Seattle's second-round choices, both this year and next, to Philadelphia.

In Kosloff, the 76er owner, said he hired Nizer because "we didn't agree with the outcome of the last meeting."

"The game is getting far off the basketball court and we haven't been the cause of all this. Now we're merely responding to it."

For Winners Only —Some Track Tidbits

There will be no extra charge today — just the usual 10 per cent.

For in view of the fact they will be off and running at Exhibition Park in Vancouver on Wednesday, and four days each and every week for the rest of the spring and summer, herewith is presented that all-time favorite:

"Walker's handy hints to heady horseplayers."

First, of course everyone knows how to read a form sheet, and derive from therein untold secrets that hopefully could lead to a life of affluence, or even a night on the town.

That, in the vernacular of the day, is handicapping, and what, also hopefully, this will be all about.

Now there are several little suggestions that just might help in a moment of need, but with one proviso:

Don't, whatever you do, ever end up on the next day trying to beat the "good thing" you got out of the form chart the night before after hours of study.

That's the cardinal sin of the horseplayer. If your mind is made up don't let the switching odds change it, unless there is otherwise good reason. For it's a known fact that just because a horse is the favorite, it doesn't necessarily follow that it is the best horse in the race. It's just that the bettors think he is and, by their wagers, they make him the public choice. His chances of winning are not improved just because everyone bets on him.

'Best Bets' and 'Overlays'

Besides, if 10 handicappers, instead of two, pick a horse to win, it doesn't increase the horse's chances of winning. It simply lowers the odds on that particular horse. It may not be generally known that many selections in a consensus are often made by the same person.

And really, you can't make money by consistently betting on the day's "best bet" either. Rather, you stand a better chance by playing the "one long." On the subject of statistics, favorites win only about 31 per cent of the time, and that figure holds right across the nation.

On the other hand, don't completely disregard the experts' selections. He may see something you don't. For instance, an overlay is a good bet, often an excellent one.

If both the track's morning line and the top handicapper pick a horse at 2-1, but this same horse is somehow overlooked by the wagering public, and goes off at 4-1 or 6-1, it might not be a bad idea to get on it. At least, here's one time the horse player knows that he's got the percentage in his favor.

The speed horse against the come-from-behinder?

Normally, the rule is to take the speed burner, especially on smaller tracks. However, every rule has an exception, and it's no different with the ponies. If there are two so-called "speed-horses" in the race, beware. They could wear each other out, stop in mid stretch, and the plodder could come flying by in the last couple of jumps. Distance, too, deserves consideration. Some horses, especially claimers, have one distance. When in doubt, leave the race alone.

Paddock Patterns Tell a Lot

A common fallacy is that just because two horses are coupled in the wagering there is twice as much chance of winning. Often only one of the horses is "well-meant" by the stable, and the other may be out only for the exercise.

Sudden lowering of odds on what should be an outsider is also a clue that should be investigated. It can often mean there is "stable money" on the horse. In other words, it may be a fitter horse than the form chart or works show.

What really happens in the paddock? Plenty, if you know what to look for. Often, a winner will stand out. By observing a horse's step, the bloom on his coat, his attitude on parade, a canny horseplayer can detect if his choice looks ready.

Meanwhile, a nervous horse will likely break out in a sweat and possibly run "rank." That means the jockey will have a hard time rating him.

Ah, but for a real secret, tab this tidbit. Normally, if colts are considered more consistent than their female counterparts, that doesn't always hold, and it will be noted that often fillies and mares hold their form better than the colts. One reason could be that the competition is not as tough in their division.

The final tip: Take money.

Two Island Squads Score Tourney Wins

KAMLOOPS — Two out of four Vancouver Island teams scored easy victories Monday in the Kamloops international bantam hockey tournament.

Doug Simpson scored four goals to lead Fuller Lake Flyers to a 9-1 win over Kimberley. Other Fuller Lake scorers were Dale Cook, Don Bodger, Glen Knappett, Grant Easterbrook and David McDonald.

Gord Jones and Pen Packsberry scored two goals each to help Comox down Golden, 5-1. Steve Steigh was the other Comox scorer.

However, Victoria and Port Alberni teams weren't as successful Monday with Victoria being beaten by Richmond and Port Alberni losing to Powell River, both by 5-1 scores. George Fritz was the lone Victoria scorer.

Favored Tampere Bobcats of Finland were bounced from the "A" section Monday after losing a hard-fought 4-3 decision to Vancouver's Riley Park. Vancouver scored two goals in less than a minute late in the game to snatch victory.

HAL LEDYARD DROWNS

Hal Ledyard, a former Canadian Football League quarterback with Winnipeg Blue Bombers, Saskatchewan Roughriders and Ottawa Rough Riders, drowned in a swimming accident in California at the weekend.

Ledyard, 40, a beer company executive, drowned while swimming near Big Sur.

Ledyard retired in 1965 after a five-year stint with the Bombers.

Emile Thinks Change For Test With Hawks

CHICAGO (CP) — Emile Francis doesn't necessarily believe changing horses in midstream will change the outcome, but he's not averse to altering game plans.

His New York Rangers have taken advantage of the five-day rest between games to juggle lineup combinations in an effort to shake up their effectiveness for what could be a final showdown with Chicago Black Hawks tonight.

The Rangers went through an intensive skating program Monday at their hideaway on Long Island before flying here where they tangle with the Hawks, trailing three games to one in the National Hockey League best-of-seven semi-final.

Francis said the full-scale workouts included eight defencemen and five different line combinations. That took some manipulating, and some extra effort by veteran Bobby Rousseau.

"Of course I tried him at centre with Steve Vickers and Mike Murphy. Then I tried a line of Tom Williams at centre between Glen Sather and Rousseau."

"And Bobby also had a crack or two on the point and filled in on another line."

Francis said, "But there's nothing unusual about that."

Rousseau is the type of player regarded as an irregular regular. Besides playing all three forward positions, he also takes a turn on defence if you count the point on the power play.

Francis, however, wouldn't commit himself on his starting goaltender for tonight's contest, scheduled for 8:30 p.m. EST.

Veteran Eddie Giacomin has played most of the playoff games so far, but Francis, who also doubles as general manager, has been known to shake up his team simply by switching goaltenders.

His opposite number with the Hawks, Billy Reay, isn't about to switch in midstream — so far as his goaltender is concerned.

Tony Esposito has been nothing short of brilliant in the series to date, particularly the three that the Hawks have won.

It will not be known until just before game time if Chicago's injured defenceman Keith Magnusen will play. Magnusen suffered a broken jaw when hit by a puck shot by Brad Park in the second game. Magnusen has been practicing with the Hawks and his jaw is protected by a helmet fitted with a special mask.

Sandbaggers Set Pace

Four young Lake Cowichan bowlers consistently rolled above average to carry off the big prize when the Daily Colonist's 10th annual Vancouver Island Tenpin Bowlspiel ended Sunday at Mayfair Lanes.

Sandbaggers Stu and Karen Smith and Jim and Star Elliott defeated Grand Slams of Vancouver 2,476-2,339 in the main event semi-finals and went on to a 2,470-2,324 win over Third Edition of Victoria in the final.

For their win, Sandbaggers picked up the Colohist Trophies and the $500 first prize.

Scorpion Men's Wear — Wendy and Gary Hardisty and June and Gene LeMaitre won the Mayfair Event, downing Captain's Palace, an all-women Victoria team, 2,404-2,357 in the final.

The tournament's other big winners were four Ladysmith men — John Mitchell, George Dick, Gordon Walt and Jack Gallagher — who were competing in their seventh straight bowlspiel.

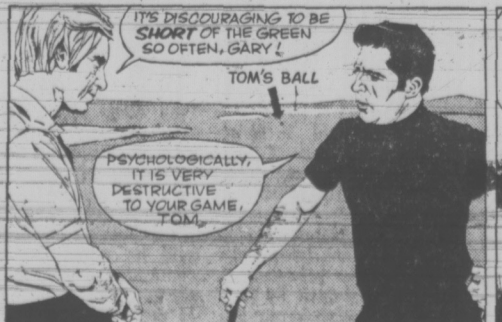

Entered as Johnnie's Service, the four edged Hank's Upholstery of Duncan 2,394-2,346 in the final to take the Gar's Trophies Event.

One of only eight bowlers in the spiel to roll a 600 series, Maureen King, won the trophy for high series by a woman. She had 203, 191 and 233 games for a 617 series to make her the only woman bowler taking part to hit 600.

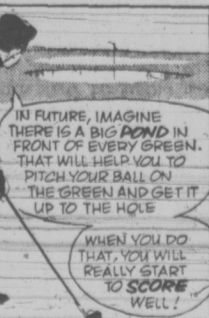

Highest single game by a woman was 231, rolled by Joan Norton.

Dave Annear topped the men's series with 185-260-227-672. And his 260 was also the bowlspiel's highest single game.

WINGS PICK TED GARVIN

DETROIT (AP) — Detroit Red Wings today named Ted Garvin of their International Hockey League Port Huron farm team as their new coach.

Garvin, 52, replaces Johnny Wilson, who was fired April 13.

Garvin's name came up almost immediately after Wilson was fired. General manager Ted Harkness talked with Garvin last week and the two later met team owner Bruce Norris in New York.

Port Huron Wings have played in the International Hockey League's Turner Cup series the last four years, taking the title in 1971 and 1972 but losing four consecutive games to Fort Wayne this season.

Garvin, 52, coached a Junior B team in Sarnia, Ont., for three years before moving to Port Huron.

Barber Key Cog In Flyer Hopes

MONTREAL (CP) — Rookie Bill Barber will be one of coach Fred Shero's key factors tonight as Philadelphia Flyers try to avoid elimination in their Stanley Cup semi-final series against Montreal Canadiens.

The Flyers, down 3-1 in the National Hockey League series, dropped a 4-1 decision to the Canadiens in Philadelphia Sunday.

"I'm down," Barber said afterward. "But you don't stay down too long. I'll be giving everything I have tonight."

Even with a bruised heel, the result of flying into the boards Sunday, Barber must be considered one of Philadelphia's top threats.

A native of Callander, Ont., Barber picked up 30 goals and 34 assists this season, his first in the NHL.

the very vulnerable point position on the power play — along with another junior draft pick, defenceman Tom Bladen.

"They must think a lot of us to give us so much responsibility," he concludes.

But the six-foot, 190 pounder feels that his biggest break was being teamed with Bobby Clarke, the Flyers scoring sensation who netted 37 goals and 67 assists this season.

"If I'm in the open," Barber said, "I can be sure every time that Bobby will have it on my stick."

Bobby Clarke sacrificed everything for me. Every time I looked up I saw the puck. He just kept feeding me and feeding me. What a guy."

If the Flyers win tonight, the sixth game of the series will be played in Philadelphia

Four Are New, Four Old To Quarterfinal Scene

Playing the nine-hole course ...

No. 1: Bill Wakeham, Earl Davies, Greg Barnes and Al MacLeod have been there before, but quarter-final positioning in the Vancouver Island Open tournament is something new for Grant Milliken, Marty Richards, Mike Gray and Jack Wintermute. Barnes also made it to the eighth last year before being beaten by Al Zimmerman. The quarter-finalists pair off next Sunday at Uplands, the semi-finalists go to Colwood on May 6 and finalists show up at Glen Meadows on May 13.

No. 2: Royal Canadian Golf Association nabobs are considering a proposal to tie the 36-hole Willingdon Cup team competition in with the first two qualifying rounds of the Canadian Amateur. They tried it once before, it seems to me, and the team competition took a back-seat role. Obscurity would beckon again, for example, if a hot-shot American came in with a scorching qualifying-round score. The team results would follow "oh, by the way ..." and that doesn't seem proper.

No. 3: The oft-disputed rule which does not allow players to repair spike marks on greens will not be helped by new alloys on the market. A big seller is a new tungsten spike which shows remarkable wearing ability — and gives the alibi-hunter another reason why he missed that three-footer.

No. 4: The most notable twosome failing to qualify for the Vancouver match-play tournament was the partnership of Stan Leonard and Dick Munn. Theirs was one of nine teams tying for the final two spots and missed out in a sudden-death playoff. The new format calls for teams to butt heads in match play, starting next Sunday.

No. 5: Jack Burke, Jr., one of the best with irons, will captain the U.S. Ryder Cup team this year. Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino took such a big lead in Ryder Cup points that they could have passed up all events after the second week in March and still made the team. The 12 players will be named July 1.

No. 6: Major club manufacturers are showing a trend towards flatter lies, particularly in irons. The upright lie has proven to be a bit too difficult for the average golfer.

No. 7: The U.S. Golf Association admits its trial with medal play in determining the U.S. Amateur champion has been a complete and utter flop. The USGA, therefore, will revert to the match-play format that is popular with everybody but the television companies. Hurrah for the USGA.

No. 8: When you realize zone 6 of the B.C. Golf Association extends from the Malahat to Bort McNeill on Vancouver Island and also includes Powell River on the Mainland, then you can appreciate Reg Harwood's efforts. The zone 6 director can't conduct business unless he uses the mails or pays telephone toll charges. In Victoria, zone 1 secretary Leo Derman can hail 20 or 30 to a meeting with local calls.

No. 9: Oak Bay member Doug Abbott counted an ace on the 13th hole Good Friday ... Terry Tweedy and Norm Haskell have advanced to the finals of the Cedar Hill club handicap championship ... Cedar Hill Open is a month away but 30 entries have already been received by tournament officials ... The popular Gordie Howe tournament, if you're wondering, is ready to go again at Colwood later this summer.

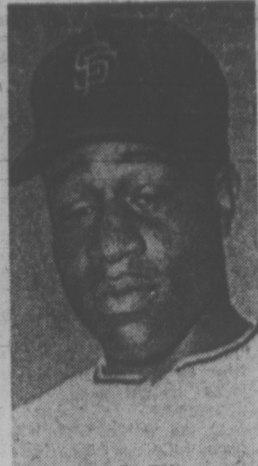

Burrards Get Junior Star

VANCOUVER (CP) — Vancouver Burrards of the Western Lacrosse Association Monday announced they have signed Bill Foote of the Lakeshore, Ont., Maple Leafs.

Foote, 22, is 5-foot-9, 175 pounds and has played junior lacrosse for six years.

Last year, Foote finished third in league scoring, earning 50 goals and 71 assists. He also won the Alan Eagleson Trophy for being the outstanding player in the Junior "A" League.

He plays centre and shoots right-handed.

Young Doc and Old Hart Cure Some of Yankee Ills

By The Associated Press
New York Yankees used a Hart transplant and a would-be doctor to cure some of their baseball ills Monday night.

Designated hitter Jim Ray Hart continued his sensational hitting by driving in two runs with a single and double and rookie George (Doc) Medich, with relief help from Lindy McDaniel, posted his first major league victory as the Yankees ended a two-year string of seven consecutive losses to Milwaukee by defeating the Brewers 5-2.

Since the Yankees acquired Hart from San Francisco Giants last week, the 31-year-old slugger has rapped out eight hits in 13 at-bats with five runs batted in. He singled home one of two fourth-inning runs off loser Bill Parsons and doubled home another as the Yanks added three in the fifth.

While Medich, a third-year medical student at the University of Pittsburgh, is studying toward a career in orthopedics, Hart is taking a cram course in AL pitching.

"In cold weather like this I get stiff not playing in the field," he said, "but I'm able to concentrate more on hitting."

"Being new to the league, it's helped me to be able to sit in the dugout and study the pitchers to learn something about them."

"I don't have to worry about fielding ground balls. I would like to play, naturally, but it would be kind of tough here with a hell of a player like (Graig) Nettles at third."

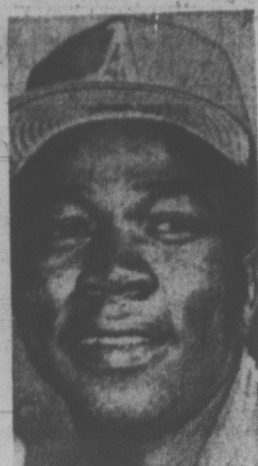

Medich, a 24-year-old right-hander, held the Brewers to one hit and struck out six until the sixth inning, when Pedro Garcia and Bob Coluccio tagged him for solo homers. The 37-year-old McDaniel took over with two on and one out and blanked the Brewers the rest of the way, fanning six more.

Dave Roberts and Jim York scattered eight hits and Doug Rader hit a two-run homer in the second inning for Houston.

Loser Bill Greif had not allowed a run in 15 innings this season when he walked Jim Wynn with one out in the second and Rader, batting only .177, hammered his home run.

The Angels scored three times in the third inning in sending winless John (Blue Moon) Odom to his fourth defeat. With two out and a runner on first, Bobby Valentine singled and Vada Pinson doubled for the first run. Robinson then singled home two more.

JOHN ODOM

CZECH TOUR FOR JUNIOR CHAMPS

OTTAWA (CP) — The winners of the junior hockey Memorial Cup will fly to Czechoslovakia May 15 for a series of exhibition games with a Czech junior team.

Gordon Jukes, executive director of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, made the announcement Monday.

The team will play seven games over 16 days in the first tour of a junior team overseas. Officials hope the trip could lead to development of a world junior championship, perhaps by 1975.

Jukes said the Canadian team is not intended to be an all-star group, but players will be added to the champions if some members of the winning squad are not able to go.

Funeral Service Friday For Ex-Health Minister

Funeral service for Eric Martin, former B.C. health minister, will be held at 1 p.m. Friday in Victoria's Christ Church Cathedral.

Martin, who had suffered from emphysema and bronchitis in recent years, died Monday at Royal Jubilee Hospital. He was 67.

A member of former premier W. A. C. Bennett's first cabinet in 1952 when the Socreds came to power, he was first minister of health and welfare, being named minister of health services and hospital insurance in 1959. He held that post until he retired in 1966 because of ill health.

"I smoked to excess for 30 years, and now I'm reaping the results of my foolishness," he said at the time of his retirement.

In his latter years as a politician, he became an ardent crusader against tobacco, devoting part of his speech each year when his department's estimates were under debate to exhortations against smoking.

Martin gained public prominence in 1945 when the former army sergeant instructor led a group of veterans in an occupation of the Hotel Vancouver to protest lack of housing for returned troops. The hotel had been used as a hostel for veterans but it was learned the building was to be turned back to the Canadian Pacific Railway.

He led a group of about 40 veterans into the hotel where they put up a sign offering rooms for former soldiers. The hotel was filled that night and remained a hostel for some time while negotiations

Following that incident he entered federal politics, running unsuccessfully in an election for the then little-known Social Credit Party.

He later became a Social Credit vice-president and at a party convention in 1952, nominated Bennett for the party's provincial leadership. He was elected for Vancouver-Burrard in 1952 and retained the seat until his retirement.

Born in Winnipeg, he was educated in London, England, and Victoria. After his retirement and still well-remembered for his anti-smoking views, he was dismayed when his wife Margaret, whom he had not been able to convince, won $10,000 in a cigarette company contest.

MARTIN dies at 67

He is survived by his wife, a son Michael and a daughter Mary, all of Victoria. The service Friday will be conducted by Dean Brian Whitlow. Burial will follow at Royal Oak Burial Park.

Ferries Back to Normal

Ferry sailings between Victoria and the lower mainland were back to regular times today after the year's heaviest traffic.

At 7 a.m., B.C. Ferries reported small overloads on regular sailings as Easter travellers heading home provided "continuous heavy traffic."

At mid-morning, ferries still were carrying full loads. Tsawwassen was the busiest terminal of the four serving Vancouver Island and the Greater Vancouver area.

Since Monday noon, waiting times dropped from up to three hours to less than an hour as traffic dwindled and ships caught up to their schedule.

At the weekend there had been mile-long line-ups and more than five-hour delays.

for motorists wanting to get to and from the mainland.

Black Ball Transport maintained its regular sailing schedule to Port Angeles, carrying capacity loads.

Black Ball Transport manager Pat Frumento said ferry travel was at an exceptional level for this time of the pre-tourist season, attributing volume to a late Easter.

School Hangup Solved

With the last building hang-up solved, construction of the new Parkland Secondary School in Sidney is going ahead, Saanich school board chairman Rubymay Parrott said today.

The problem of financing a sewage disposal system has been solved with the Kiwanis Club willing to share in building a sewage system, she said.

The quarter-mile pressure line from the school will be used as well to service a retirement home the Kiwanis are building nearby.

The Kiwanis will pay 15 per cent of the total $55,407 cost of the line, plus 15 per cent of maintenance and operating costs.

The school board's 85-per cent building share, $47,085, will be just $4,000 more than the $43,000 it had hoped to pay for sewage disposal.

"We have this extra money," said Mrs. Parrott. The school board saved money in its choice of school site, next to MacDonald Park, which can cover the extra $4,000, she said.

The school is due to open in September, and eventually will have an enrolment of 1,200 students.

Water Used To Control Earthquakes

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Field tests to tame earthquakes — turning them on and off artificially with water have been conducted successfully in Colorado, the United States interior department said Monday.

The tests involved the injection or withdrawal of water through oil wells penetrating a fault zone deep beneath the surface of the Rangely oil field in northwestern Colorado.

Dr. C. B. Raleigh, of the National Centre for Earthquake Research, said investigation so far showed that stresses in rocks deep in the earth could be relieved. This gave hope, he said, that eventually it might be possible to prevent catastrophic earthquakes of the magnitude that have occurred along San Andreas fault on the Pacific coast.

Healing Substance... Shrinks Piles, Checks Itch

Exclusive healing substance proven to shrink hemorrhoids... and repair damaged tissue.

A renowned research institute has found a unique healing substance with the ability to shrink hemorrhoids painlessly. It relieves itching and discomfort in minutes and speeds up healing of the injured, inflamed tissues.

One hemorrhoidal case history after another reported "very striking improvement." Pain was promptly and gently relieved... actual reduction or retraction (shrinking) took place.

And, most important—this improvement was maintained in cases where clinical observations were continued over a period of many months. Furthermore, these tests and observations were made on patients with a wide variety of hemorrhoidal conditions. All this was accomplished with a healing substance (Bio-Dyne) which quickly helps heal injured cells and stimulates growth of new tissue. Bio-Dyne is offered in ointment and suppository form called Preparation H.

In addition to actually shrinking hemorrhoids, Preparation H lubricates and makes elimination less painful. It helps prevent infection which is a stated cause of hemorrhoids.

Just ask your druggist for Preparation H Suppositories or Preparation H Ointment (with a special applicator).

Save PTA Plea by Parents

By LINDA HUGHES
Times Staff

VANCOUVER — A plea to save parent-teacher associations from slow death through public apathy and ignorance about education was lodged today by B.C. Home and School Federation president Catherine Schoen.

She told delegates at the B.C. Teachers Federation convention that their understanding and encouragement of parent involvement in education may be the deciding factor in the future of their federation.

"British Columbia needs a strong, province-wide organization of laymen," she said, "to keep a watchful eye upon legislation and teacher training, to represent the mythical average citizen on policy-making boards."

But progress in community involvement has been far too slow and parent groups need teacher support, she told the 600 delegates.

Schoen said she felt "a little like Don Quixote tilting, at windmills" in her efforts to give citizens an effective voice in determining B.C.'s educational goals.

At the grassroots level, the parents' spokesman said, principals and teachers are reluctant to implement community-school integration because they fear losing their power.

Education is traditionally a "hierarchical institution" where promotion means an increase in power, she said, and to share that power with a parents' organization would diminish it.

While communities use many excuses for the failure of parent organizations to grow, the real reasons, she said, are based on attitudes developed through years of educational hierarchy.

Where progress has been made, Schoen added, it has been localized and parents have seen no need for "effective and viable provincial organizations."

But at the provincial level, she said, parents have a real opportunity to affect education's goals.

For the past 20 years, the provincial parents' group, formerly the B.C. Parent-Teacher Federation, has been "politely listened to and ignored" by the provincial government, Schoen said, but now the picture has changed.

Like other speakers at the three-day convention, Schoen was hopeful progress could be made under the NDP government.

"We have acquired a provincial government which gives education high priority, and a minister of education who intends to give citizens an effective voice in determining educational goals and priorities."

She said she believes that if the PTA had been strong in 1972, the Social Credit minister of education would not have imposed restrictions upon school board budgets and teacher salary increases.

Schoen said the federation has tried to make its organization "flexible, relevant and functional." But if membership does not increase within the next 12 months, it will have to "withdraw from the lists and leave it to the Don Quixotes of another generation to tilt at the windmills of public apathy and ignorance about education."

Driver Charged

A 28-year-old driver today was charged in provincial court with criminal negligence causing the death of 51-year-old Gordon A. Baker of 3041 Albany.

Larry Howard Caton, 15 Midwood Road, elected trial by judge and jury. A preliminary hearing date was set for June 25.

Baker died March 2 in a two-car accident on Burnside Road after a collision with the Caton vehicle. Both cars were totally wrecked.

Hiking, Picnics, Swimming

Children in the James Bay area should have no excuse for boredom during the Easter holidays.

The James Bay Community School at South Park Elementary has organized activities for every weekday during the holidays.

Today children and staff are enjoying hiking, softball, picnic lunch and a hot dog supper at Beaver Lake Park.

Wednesday the group will meet at the school at 1 p.m. for a walk to the Crystal Pool and swimming until 3 p.m. Thursday those taking part in a bike ride leave the school at 1 p.m. and ride to the University of Victoria for a picnic. Anyone taking part is asked to bring along a snack and fruit juice.

Friday residents in the area will have a chance to take part in the fun. Their door bells will peal as students take part in a scavenger hunt combing the neighborhood for hard-to-find items. The hunt starts at 1:30 p.m. at the school and there will be a prize for the "super scavenger."

The list of judges includes: Windsor Utley, Ian Garroch, David Anderson, paintings and related media; Nita Forrest, water colors; John Charnetski, pottery and sculpture; Christine Stewart, textiles; members of the English department of Malaspina College, writing including fiction, non-fiction and poetry.

Twister Lifts Carport

DUNCAN — A freak twister hit part of the Allenby Mobile Home Park on Allenby Road Monday about 2 p.m., injuring nobody but startling residents.

Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Leeper were sitting outside their mobile home when the wind struck. They saw their neighbor's television antenna buckle and their carport ripped off its concrete pads and hurled, wrecked, partly on the family car.

Mrs. Mary Best, walking with her grandson, also saw the accident. Afraid, she and the child ran for cover under a nearby maple tree.

The twister woke her husband, asleep in the mobile home next to the Leepers, and he said the twister made a U-turn over that section of the park.

Mrs. Ambrose Casagrande says the twister reminded her of the one that hit North Vancouver in 1962 when part of the roof of her house was carried three blocks.

City Fireman Released From Hospital

Fireman Fred Beadle, injured fighting a fire at the Cosack Restaurant Monday morning, has been released from hospital.

He was treated for pulled tendons and a back injury. Earlier it was thought he might have a broken arm.

There is still no estimate of damage to the interior. The fire apparently was caused by an overheated pipe.

CAMOSUN TO DEBATE NEED FOR DAY CARE CENTRE

Camosun College council will hear the pros and cons of opening a college day care centre at a meeting June 4.

A committee investigating the need for a centre will report its findings.

Even before results of a campus survey are tabulated, the need for a centre has been demonstrated, said Mrs. Gerry Tromp, the college council's representative on the committee.

Children of students now attending Camosun would be enough to fill a day care centre, she said. About 25 children are needed to support a centre, she said.

Mothers not now attending the college because they have young children might do so if there were day care facilities on or near the campus, said Mrs. Tromp.

The committee is looking for a suitable building near the campus but so far hasn't found anything suitable.

Funds to get the centre started should be available from the provincial government under its expanded day care program, she said.

He was not involved in the liquor store charge.

TWO MORE LIVE BOMBS FOUND ON VERNON RANGE

VERNON (CP) — Canadian Forces demolition experts found a live two-inch mortar bomb Monday while they were disposing of two live bombs and one smoke bomb found on the military range here during the weekend.

All three live bombs, detonated harmlessly, were similar to the one that killed two Vernon boys two weeks ago.

Dwayne Williment, 9, and Bradley Hanke, 7, found a bomb April 18 and were killed when it exploded. Two other children were injured.

Six bombs have been found in the Vernon area in the past two weeks.

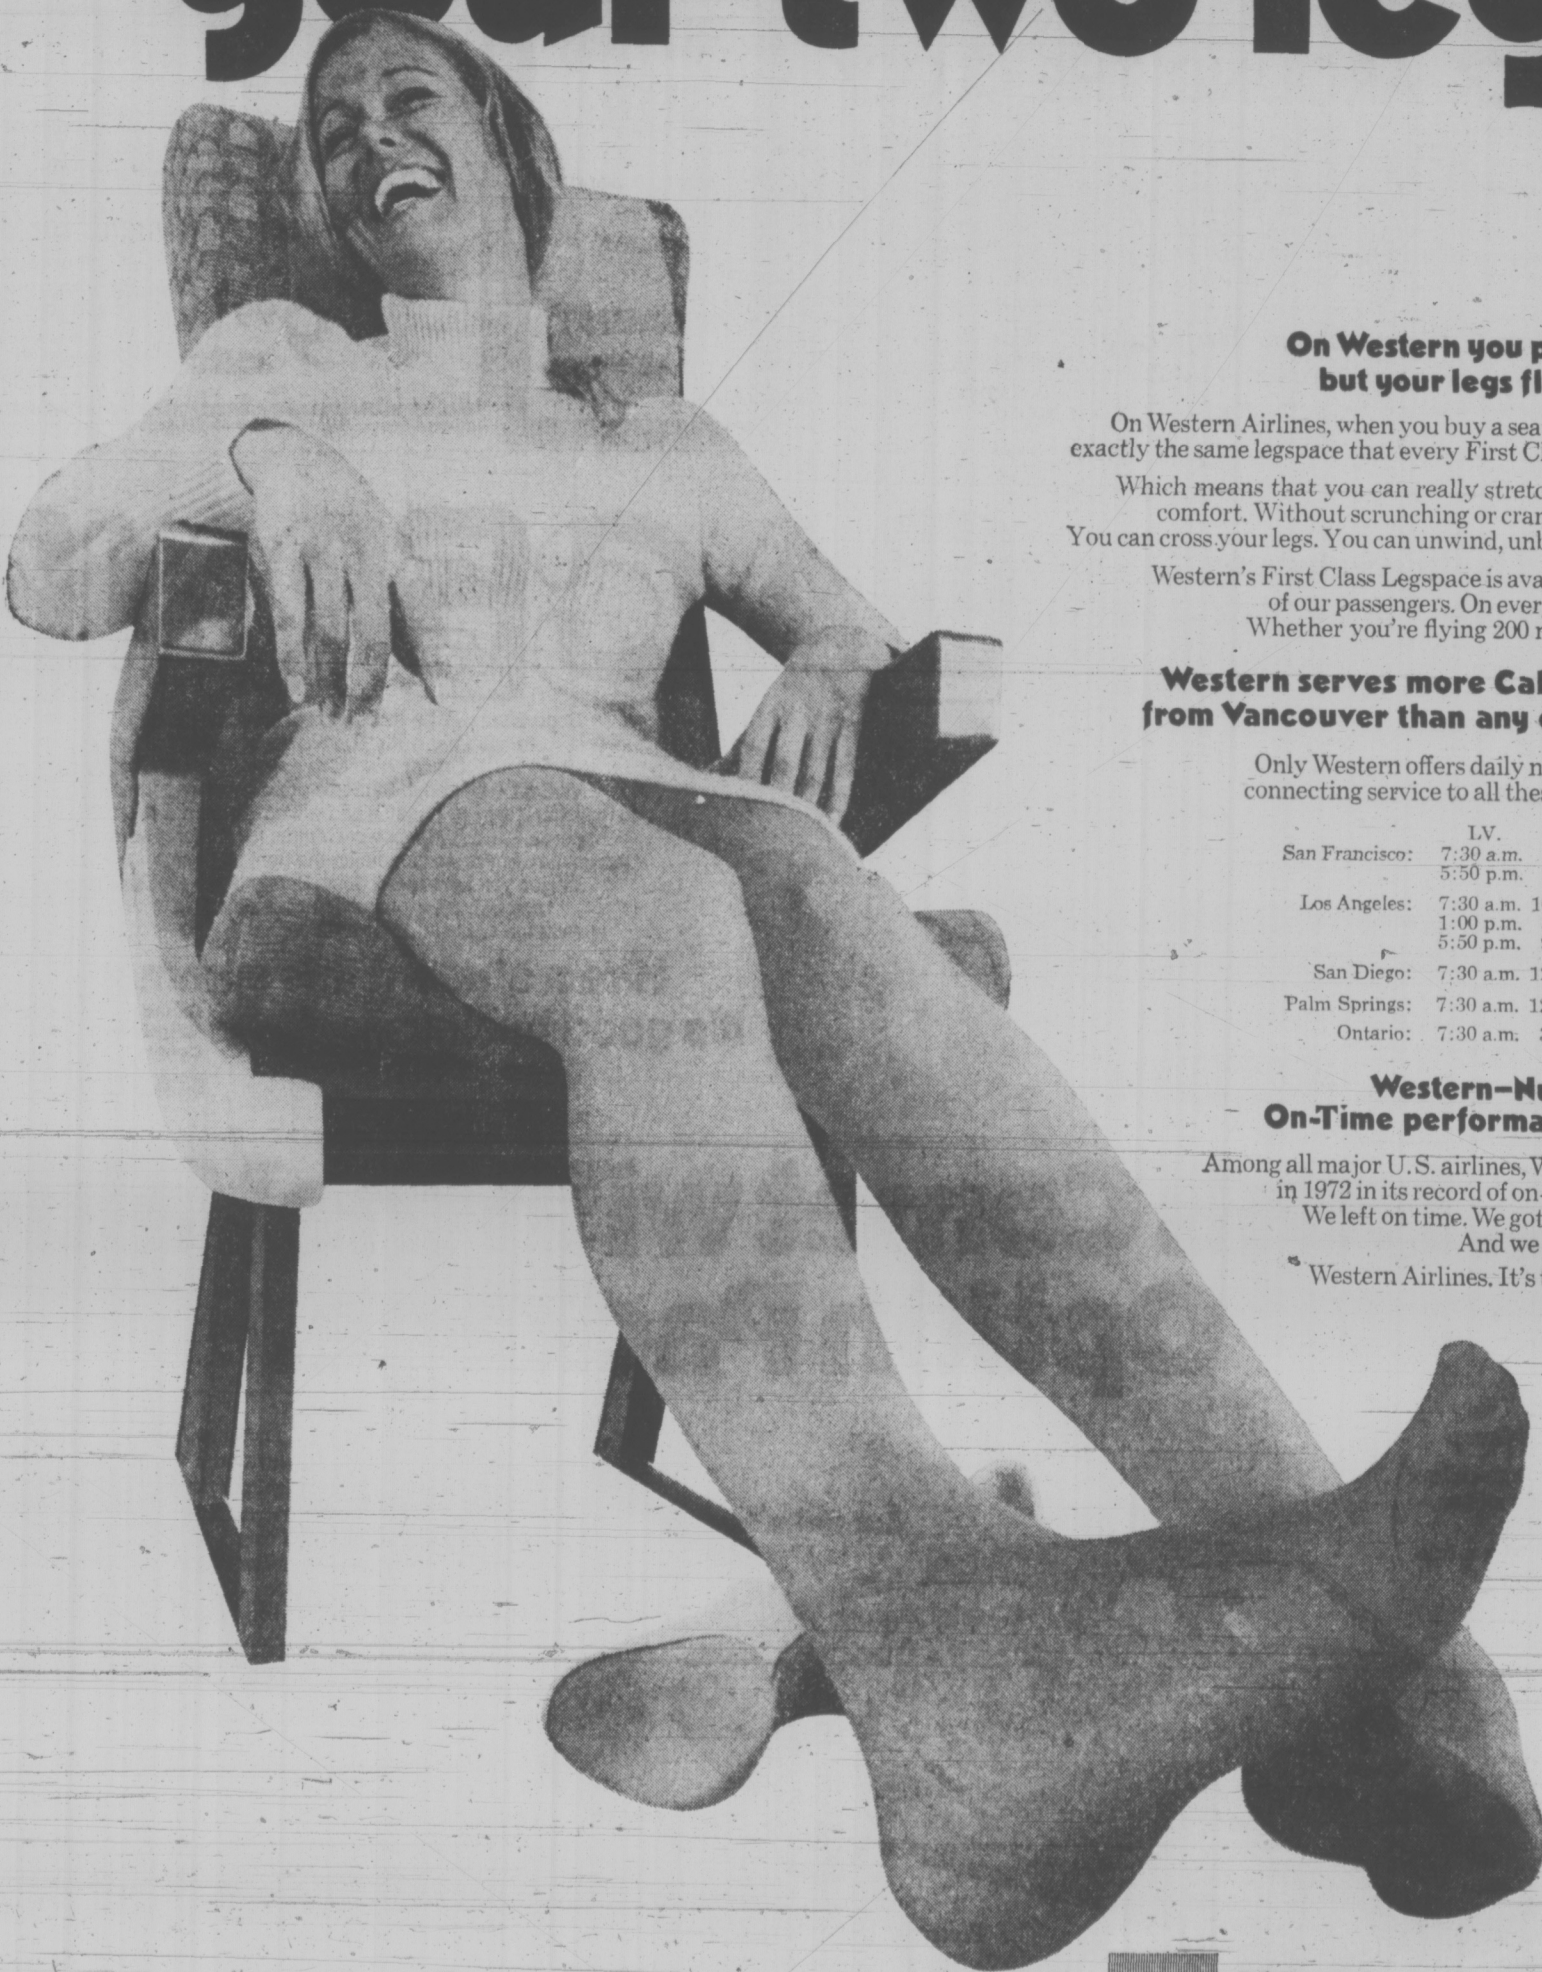

Canadian Forces spokesmen have said there is no need to conduct a thorough sweep of the area.

City council and the British Columbia government have officially requested a sweep, and a petition signed by 2,500 persons is to be sent to the federal government later this week.

To date, four persons have been killed by bombs from the range, used for training during the Second World War. In 1963, two Boy Scouts were killed when mortar bombs exploded.

A search of the area at that time revealed 60 bombs.

THIRD CASE OF DIPHTHERIA

A third case of diphtheria has been reported in Greater Victoria.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior public health officer, said today the latest victim is a 1½-year-old Saanich girl, reported in "good" condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Two cases reported last week remain in "good" condition in hospital. One of the patients is a man and the other a young girl. Diphtheria can be effectively treated in most cases with modern drugs.

The local cases follow an outbreak at Port Alice on northern Vancouver Island earlier this year. About two dozen carriers were found and one girl was diagnosed as having diphtheria.

A person who has been immunized can carry the disease, and possibly spread it, without being affected by the organism.

Whitbread said people in contact with the latest local victim have been checked and found to be free of infection.

While there has been "quite a rush" for immunization last week, he urged any parents who have not had their children inoculated to contact one of the board's health clinics.

Most children are immunized through programs in the school but about one in four is not because the immunization program requires agreement from parents.

'Grounded' After 40-Foot Topple

HAMILTON (CP) — Tony Garden, who fell 40 feet into the Buttermilk Falls gorge here, has been "grounded" for at least a week by his doctor. No bones were broken.

No more climbing for him while 31 stitches in his legs and arms heal, the doctor said Monday after police and firemen had worked frantically among jagged rocks to raise the 13-year-old boy to a waiting ambulance at the top.

Before the Friday rescue, 12-year-old Allister Wood, who saw his friend slip off the craggy face of the 100-foot gorge, stood trembling and ashen.

"I thought he was dead, I really did," said young Allister. "He fell on his face... sorta in a heap," said Allister, "and he wasn't moving."

"I ran over to him, and I just saw blood," he said, turning his blood-stained palms upward. "This is his blood."

"Then he came to and he was screaming. I took off my shirt and put it on his head where he was all cut."

When Allister left Tony with four other youngsters who had been playing together and scrambled up the sheer face of the gorge and flagged down a passing car. He told the woman driver what had happened and she called police.

Allister then went back down the gorge to his young friend.

Fire and police officials descended the gorge with a wooden stretcher lowered from a fire truck crane.

Tony's five young friends went to the top of the gorge to wait for him to be raised.

They told police and reporters that Tony started climbing up.

"We told him to come back down but he wouldn't."

He was about 40 feet up when a rock he was hanging onto gave way and he fell.

HANDICAPPED BOY SEARCH OBJECT

DORNOCH, Ont. (CP) — About 30 provincial police and scores of volunteers set out today in a close-search for a four-year-old boy who they fear can neither hear nor answer them.

"We're hoping to have 100 volunteers besides the police" in the search for Robert Charles Edward Johnson of Mississauga, Ont., missing in bushy, swampy countryside since 10:15 a.m. Monday, said provincial police Constable James Adams at Owen Sound, 20 miles north of here.

He said the boy has difficulty hearing and talking and cannot hear rescuers or call to them as they pass by.

Because of this, he said, searchers are adopting grid patterns in fanning out. Constable Kenneth Flegler, who took part in the search Monday, said: "We're hoping he's still alive. There's a lot of swamp and marsh and there's a danger he may have drowned."

The searchers were attempting "a more careful search by covering more ground than just walking through and calling." The Owen Sound radio station broadcast an appeal for volunteers.

The son of Robert and Carol Johnson, disappeared while out with his dog. Shortly afterwards the dog returned alone. Provincial police were called in about noon. A 10-mile-square area was covered before dark and during the night extra provincial police patrols spotlighted fields in hopes the youngster would wander out of the bush.

Two tracking dogs and a local civilian airplane also took part in the search Monday. Two cruisers drove slowly along back roads in the area all night.

15 Vocational Schools Face College Mergers

The provincial government will "proceed immediately" with the merger of six vocational schools with their nearby community colleges, Education Minister Eileen Daily says.

A letter was sent April 5 to all community college councils and vocational schools to be affected, including the B.C. Vocational School here and Camosun College.

Other vocational schools to be placed under the management of nearby community college councils are in Nanaimo, Kamloops, Kelowna, Prince George and Nelson.

The B.C. Government Employees' Union, which represents some 1,000 vocational instructors and support staff in the vocational schools, is opposing the merger plans.

At a meeting last week with Daily, BCGEU executive presented a brief saying the merger will downgrade vocational education.

"Community colleges are run by men and women with a totally academic orientation," the brief says.

"The result of these mergers will be that vocational education will be rapidly downgraded in terms of funds available for it, quality of instruction, program development and allotment of facilities."

The brief continues: "The entire rationale for the mergers suffers from academic paternalism by implying that those in trades and career training need a bit of liberal arts education to provide a respectable finishing gloss."

Education department officials had assured the union that it would be consulted in all stages of the merger, union officials told Daily, but no such consultation had occurred.

The union is concerned with protecting the vocational employees' interests in the merger, BCGEU administrative assistant Jack Adams said today.

"It is our contention to continue to represent them" even when they are employees of the community colleges, he said.

Provision must also be made for employees who will not wish to leave the civil service and become employees of the colleges, he said.

"Many of them I'm sure won't want to transfer," said Adams.

The union wants other details like sick leave and pensions to be worked out before the merger goes through, and committees have been set up to look at some of these areas, he said.

SEARCH ABANDONED FOR YOUNG BOATER

RCMP today abandoned the search for a 19-year-old boater, four days after the man disappeared north of Salt Spring Island.

Gregory Ralph Lust, of Fulford Harbor, vanished Friday night after a 12-foot aluminum boat with six other young men aboard capsized between Secretary and Mogli Islands.

Six survivors were picked up by a fishing boat shortly after the incident.

Lust and his companions were on their way home to Jackscrew Island.

Garbage Power A Real Shock

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP) — Electric power has been generated from domestic garbage in an experimental plant that Senator Gale McGee says could help solve the world's waste disposal problems.

"This is going to revolutionize the whole problem of garbage disposal," said McGee after witnessing tests of the new plant Monday with a group of government officials and urban engineers from Monaco and the Soviet Union.

The Wyoming Democrat is chairman of a Senate subcommittee on agricultural and environmental appropriations.

The $6-million, five-year pilot project was carried out by the Combustion Power Co. under contract to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

The plant is designed to consume 80 tons of garbage a day, with a "byproduct" of 1,000 kilowatts of electrical power. Monday's test generated 975 kilowatts.

The trash used in the test was unsegregated, containing the usual domestic mishmash of metal, wood, glass and paper.

Combustion Power officials said that if the pilot plant works out it could be the forerunner of garbage-power factories capable of producing 12,000 kilowatts on 400 tons of garbage a day, without air pollution.

Non-combustible items such as sand and ash, gravel, glass and metals will be sold.

The burnable material is converted into hot gases in a combustion chamber, and the gas is then used to operate a turbine for the generation of electricity.

Low-Rise Plan Okay

Mayor Peter Pollen says he is not upset at the prospect of developer Jim Mace building a sprawling low-rise apartment and shopping complex in the heart of James Bay instead of a 29-storey tower prevented this year by the mayor and city council.

Mace's Menzies and Simcoe site, now occupied by a Safeway store originally designed as the first phase in a soaring highrise design, which would have needed a special land-use contract, is zoned Commercial One. The zoning would limit Mace to seven storeys.

Pollen, asked to comment, said today: "Our planners have developed our commercial standards and if Mr. Mace can meet them and get approval from the city's advisory design panel, I suppose it's fine."

He said the city's objective in preventing Mace's highrise scheme was to encourage a development in character with the area's original scale — if the commercial regulations brought this result, the city's objective had been achieved.

Meanwhile, Ald. Percy Frampton said Mace had sunk thousands of dollars into the plans and was not trying to put political pressure on the city.

He said he will view Mace's plans Wednesday.

He added that if the plans abide by the letter of the zoning regulations city council would have no say in the development.

Chinese Art On Display

The largest collection of Chinese art ever viewed in Western Canada will be on display May 2 to June 3 at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Victorians get the opportunity because of a unique trade with the Royal Ontario museum.

Last December Victoria's gallery lent 100 pieces of its Japanese collection to the Toronto museum when it celebrated its 60th anniversary.

In return, the Royal Ontario museum has lent more than 150 pieces of its world-famous Chinese collection to the local gallery.

The collection covers more than 3,000 years of Chinese culture, including neolithic pottery which may date back to 3000 BC and porcelains from the Sung dynasty (960-1279 AD).

Bronzes, paintings and a three-foot Ming ceramic sculpture are included in the display.

LONDON (AP) — Britain's 4,500 former commandos are angry that their name is being used by terrorists.

Congo Maoists Killed

BRAZZAVILLE (AP) —

Lieut. Ange Diawara, head of the Maoist guerrilla movement in the former French Congo, was killed early today by Congolese security forces, Brazzaville Radio announced.

Also killed was Diawara's top lieutenant, Jean-Baptiste Ikoko. Government forces over-ran the rebel headquarters deep in the forest 50 miles from Brazzaville, the broadcast said.

The bodies of Diawara and Ikoko were taken to Brazzaville's Stadium of the Revolution to be exhibited at a mass meeting. The day was declared a public holiday.

Diawara, a former member of the politburo of the ruling Congolese Workers' Party, staged an abortive coup against President Marien N'Gouabi in February, 1972, and later took to the forest with his followers.

Streetcar being restored at hangar

Another Link With Past

At the corner of Government and Belleville, May 1, will stand another link with the city's past — a B.C. Electric streetcar.

At a cost of $15,000, the 28-foot tram is being restored by Paul Class, curator of his own museum, the Trolley Park, in Glenwood, Oregon, who is working in an old hangar at the Victoria airport.

When the trolley car is put on permanent display at the museum May 1, some 30 former Victoria streetcar drivers will be on hand for the ceremonies.

Sixty-four-year-old Freddie Hawkins, of 2830 Cedar Hill, was the last man to drive a streetcar over the Point Ellis Bridge.

"I've done every line," said Hawkins. "Used to do Vic West a lot."

"During '43 and '44, boy, we were really loaded up with people."

In those days fares were six cents for adults and three cents for children. Hawkins' wage was 65 cents an hour.

When the buses took over in 1947, fares went up to a dime.

Asked if he preferred streetcars to buses, Hawkins replied, "I had more fun in the streetcars. You get to know the people."

Scotty Naismith, president of B.C. Electric Pensioners

Association, drove streetcars for seven years.

He remembers when Walter Peddle drove through town with a "group of dignitaries" in 1947. It was the last streetcar run in Victoria.

"They were the safest thing on the road," said Naismith.

All the Victoria trams were equipped with a "dead-man's control," he said.

The driver continually held onto a stick. If anything happened to him the stick would be released and the vehicle automatically stopped.

"There are about 40 or 12 men driving buses who were streetcar drivers and about 25 retired drivers in Victoria," said Naismith.

Asked how fast the old trolleys travelled, Naismith replied, "Too fast."

Premier Dave Barrett, Mayor Peter Pollen and Provincial Secretary Ernie Hall will also be on hand May 1 when the streetcar becomes a permanent exhibit at the museum.

Minister of Recreation and Conservation Robert Williams will present the streetcar to the museum on behalf of B.C. Hydro who subsidized its $15,000 restoration.

MORE DUES FLOWING SOUTH

OTTAWA (CP) — Smouldering resentment among international union leaders at labor statistics collected annually by the federal government could be escalated by new figures released recently.

The Corporation and Labor Unions Returns Act (CALURA) report on unions, published by Statistics Canada, shows that dues and assessments levied on Canadian members of international unions increased by $4.1 million from the previous year to a total of $45.6 million in 1970.

Expenditures in three categories by international unions on Canadian members, on the other hand, increased only slightly to $31.8 million in 1970 from $31.5 million in 1969.

The three categories are salaries and wages paid to union officers and employees resident in Canada, strike benefit payments and pensions and welfare benefits paid to Canadian beneficiaries.

The statistics have aroused the ire of international union leaders and the Canadian Labor Congress (CLC), who say the figures on expenditures do not include true totals of all money spent on Canadian members.

In 1970, 61 per cent of a total of 2,267,526 Canadian union members belonged to Canadian branches of international unions with headquarters in the U.S.

Donald MacDonald, CLC president, says the report is misleading and tends to discredit labor.

The CALURA report does not include money spent by the international unions on administration, publications, research, public relations, postage, professional services, contributions to pensions and welfare plans administered outside the union and depreciation on fixed assets.

In the years from 1965 to 1970, according to CALURA reports, transfers of funds to international unions by Canadian members totalled an apparent surplus of nearly $70 million.

In comparison, figures released recently in the Commons by Herb Braid, parliamentary secretary to Trade Minister Alastair Gillespie, showed that an estimated $1.4 billion will be paid to American residents in 1971 by Canadian companies owned or controlled in the United States.

The corporation payments include interest, dividends, branch profits and business services.

Total income in North American operations for the international unions filing returns under the report was about $700 million. The international unions recorded losses during 1970 of about $10 million when expenditures in both Canada and the United States are included.

OFC Canadian whisky is 8 years old.
Picked in its prime.

At 2-years old Canadian whisky is pale, harsh, unmaturing — and around 12 is darker and beginning to take on a heavy 'woody' taste. In between this time, it becomes golden, mellow, smooth and full-bodied. In our opinion OFC is the prime Canadian whisky.

That's why OFC is only 8 years old. The prime time for taste, try it.

Nazi War Criminal 'Would Do It Again'

RIO DE JANEIRO — Klaus Altmann, now in jail in Bolivia for being a Nazi war criminal, is quoted as telling a Brazilian newspaper he would act the same way a thousand times if he was reborn a thousand times.

In a series of articles ending Monday, the paper (O Globo) published an interview with Altmann, who as Klaus Barbie, was Nazi SS elite guard Commander in Lyon, France.

During the interview, the paper says, he admitted he returned to France in 1966 and placed a wreath on the grave of resistance leader Jean Moulin — the man he tortured to death.

Asked whether he did this from remorse, he is quoted as saying: "No, just because Jean Moulin was my best enemy. The most difficult, the most worthy."

Altmann is quoted as saying: "In war everybody kills. In war there are no good men and no bad men."

"I am a convinced Nazi. I admire the Nazi discipline and I am proud of having been a commander of the best sections of the Third Reich and if I was born a thousand times, a thousand times I would do the same as I did."

BONN — Soviet Leader Leonid Brezhnev will visit Bonn May 18 to 22, the West German government announced today. Brezhnev's visit, for talks with Chancellor Willy Brandt, will come after Brandt meets with President Nixon May 1-2 in Washington. It will be the first visit to West Germany by a top Soviet leader.

TORONTO — T. Lindsay Crossley, one of the pioneers in Canadian pulp and paper technology, died here Sunday. He was 85. Although he had no formal academic training, he pursued a 60-year career as an analytical chemist and prepared and edited technical books for workers in the pulp and paper industry. He continued as a chemist until he was 85.

NEW YORK — Dr. W. Kenneth Riland, 61, who has treated President Nixon, presidential assistant Henry Kissinger and other notables, pleaded not guilty in federal court Monday to an indictment alleging that he did not pay $39,000 in taxes on more than $82,000 unreported income from 1966 through 1970. He was released without bail after being fingerprinted and photographed.

AUCKLAND — Three masked men seized a Welsh millionaire supermarket operator today and mobilized almost the entire police force in a major kidnapping hunt in the New Zealand capital, but it turned out to be a student prank. Police said Albert Gubay was understood to have agreed to his own kidnapping to help publicize a student appeal for charity. But Insp. Ross Dallow, in charge of the full-scale alert, said later: "We were not amused."

TOKYO — A plan for Emperor Hirohito to visit the United States this year has been abandoned, the foreign ministry said today. The decision follows pressure from opposition parties, who said an imperial visit would be used by the government for political purposes, which would contravene the postwar constitution.

OAKLAND, Calif. — Weldon Meade Kennedy, convicted of the mutilation slayings of two teen-agers, was sentenced to two consecutive life terms Monday. Superior Court Judge Alan Lindsay said that under California law the two life terms would have to merge into one. On the stand, Kennedy told jurors he "sometimes felt like a vampire."

BELGRADE — President Tito told a meeting of all the top political leaders of Yugoslavia Monday the country did not have the "faintest intention" of abandoning either its non-aligned foreign policy or its internal social system of employees' self-management. Nixon Must Buy Off Protectionists

By HOBART ROWEN
Washington Post

WASHINGTON — President Nixon's proposals for sweeping new powers dealing with trade matters have generally been well received, "under the circumstances," as the Wall Street Journal put it. The "circumstances," of course, refer to the rising tide of protectionism that seems to be sweeping the country. And what the president has done is to make concessions to protectionist forces in the hope that he can avoid being saddled with extremes, like the Burke-Hartke quota bill.

QUESTION

But the real question that remains unanswered is whether the president, despite the rhetoric of his message, can buy off the protectionist forces, that is to say, whether one can make peace with the devil.

In other times, the main thrust of the proposed legislation would have been assessed as in-ward looking, and not as on the side of free trade. He asks not only for authority to get rid of existing trade barriers, but to erect new ones.

Thus, the president wants "a revision and extension of my authority to raise barriers against countries which unreasonably or unjustifiably restrict our exports."

AUTHORITY

He would be able to call upon a whole panoply of devices — higher tariffs, quotas, orderly marketing agreements — all keyed to a less restrictive test for determining whether imports are really hurting a domestic industry.

And wholly outside of international constraints, he asks for "more flexible authority to raise or lower import restrictions on a temporary basis to help correct deficits or surpluses in our (balance of) payments positions. Such restraints could be applied to imports from all countries across the board or only to those countries which fail to correct a persistent and excessive surplus in their global payments position."

NIXON ROUND

On the positive side, looking forward to what may become the "Nixon round" of trade negotiations to be finished by 1975, the president needs and wants the broad power to "eliminate, reduce, or increase customs duties in the context of negotiated agreements."

Now, such a package amounts to a sweeping delegation of power from congress to the president to do almost anything he wants to: He could move toward the free trade side, or he could use his new powers in a highly protectionist way.

There is almost no doubt that if the presidential proposals became law — and that is easier said than done — he would act in certain cases that this government considers dictated by "unfair" treatment from other countries that those other countries would label protectionist.

ANOTHER WAY

Those committed to "liberal" or free trade know from experience that one of the most useful lines of resistance to the protectionist push is to be able to insist: "We'd like to do something for you, but we have no power."

That's another way of saying that the protectionist powers Nixon asks for may be dangerous to have lying around: the political pressures for protection brought to bear by powerful business groups could become enormous. And whatever faith might be reposed in Nixon's over-all anti-protectionist sentiment, no one can say what a successor would do, or, indeed, how the attitude of this administration might shift with John Conally in charge of foreign policy.

The justification for the proposal — at least among those who hail its "realism" — is that it constitutes a minimum concession to the protectionist instincts of George Meany and the AFL-CIO, who would like to go all the way with mandatory quotas.

DAILY PROBLEMS

"The president has got to have the ability to manage day to day problems," is the way that his special trade representative, William Eberle puts it. "If some of our competitors knew that we would react (to unfair trade practices) they wouldn't act in the first place."

Eberle thinks that its useless to talk in terms of free trade vs. protectionism. "That's the language of the '30s. We're talking about continuing to increase world trade, vs. a highly restrictive program to curb imports, which will really hurt jobs."

So there's the ambivalence, and the administration knows it's walking a tight-rope. The feeling for going protectionist is clearly there in congress, and what emerges remains to be seen. Eberle fears that there will be demands on the hill for automatic triggers for import relief, robbing the president of discretionary authority.

That what can happen in a world where the focus has shifted so dramatically that to get authority to liberalize trade, one must also provide the power to restrict it.

WE RUN A VERY

It's the car that makes the deal.

Pontiac Catalina

Catalina
2-Door Hardtop.

You have your reasons for driving a big car. And we'll lay odds that one of your reasons is wanting a "big-car" ride and another is wanting lots of room. Chalk up two points for Pontiac.

You can't buy another car at a Catalina price that has a longer wheelbase.

And a long-striding wheelbase pays off plenty in smoothness on the road. And big roominess inside. A full-size Pontiac is a cut above.

You get Turbo Hydra-matic transmission, variable-ratio power steering, power front disc brakes and a big V8—all standard.

Along with such features as a coolant overflow system to help prevent engine overheating and strong hydraulic bumpers for added front end protection.

As for Pontiac's rich interiors, just try and top them. Or try and top the nice things you can do with a few interior options.

Want a blue carpet in your new Catalina, for instance? Or an orange one? It can be arranged, depending on your interior trim.

One car in Pontiac's price class offers air conditioning as standard equipment. Well, you can order extra-cost factory-installed air conditioning for your Catalina—and have the prestige of a Pontiac for about the same money. Now's the time to see your dealer.

His Wide-Track Pontiacs offer you a great deal to think about.

Some of the equipment shown or mentioned is optional at extra cost.

Widow Refuses to Commit Husband to the Devil's Own Hole

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The ashes of one member of a foursome have been sprinkled on a country club golf course here, but a second golfer's ashes haven't and the two survivors refuse to shed much light on the bizarre pact that started it all.

Mrs. Chester (Chick) Guy confirmed Monday that her husband's ashes were sprinkled last week on the 15th tee at Hyde Park Country Club. The par-three hole is known as The Devil's Own to club members.

"It is true," said Mrs. Guy contacted in Ft. Lauderdale, Fla.

For nearly 20 years, Guy, Tony Hense, Bob Anderson, and Virgil Parrish made up a regular foursome.

Hense died first at the age of 73 in December but his wife says she refused to comply with the pact, drawn up by her husband, that the four have their ashes scattered in a selected place on the course.

"Tony wanted to be in the trap on 15 to the right of the green because it once took him 15 strokes to get out of there," Anderson said.

"He swore every time he saw it," said Hense's widow.

"No," said Hense's widow.

"It was the 16th bunker because he spent more time there than any place else."

But Hense's ashes were not distributed in either place because "I wouldn't have it," said Mrs. Hense. "I think it's utterly awful."

"The whole thing was Tony's idea. The four of them had been playing golf for years and years. Tony made them all promise to do it."

Parrish, who Mrs. Hense said was assigned to take care of the arrangements, refused to discuss it with reporters. He also refused to elaborate on the story behind the pact.

"Every time those boys step on that tee, they'll remember Chick," said Mrs. Hense.

Anderson said he doubted that.

"No, I don't have any of those feelings. Maybe we will think of him, especially if we hit a bad shot."

He Starves to Cut Speed

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Inventor Brian Corrigan has figured out what he feels is a fool-proof method of ensuring no competitor steals his novel speed-warning system for motorists.

He is prepared to starve to keep the cost of the invention down.

The unique safety device developed by Corrigan and co-inventor Barry Ganton records the speed of vehicles electronically and flashes a "too fast" warning at motorists exceeding the speed limit.

Corrigan, 38, who left a full-time job as an instrument technician at Northwood Pulp Ltd. here to develop the system, says he and his wife and nine children have come close to starvation in three years of development work.

"We've already lost our house since coming to Canada and had our furniture repossessed," says Corrigan, who first conceived the idea for the system while spending 13 years in the United Kingdom as an aircraft engineer with the Royal Air Force and with British Aircraft Corporation.

He said he spent six weeks on welfare during nine months when he worked full-time on the system and now is looking for a part-time sales position to tide him over until the project gains the acceptance he believes it deserves. He said that at times the family, with children ranging in ages from three to 14 years, got by on gifts of food and clothing from friends.

"Everything is poised now for us to go into business selling the system," said Corrigan. "I'm sure we're going to get a break-through very soon."

The device was tested on Highway 16 near the outskirts of Prince George last month, resulting in a 20 per cent drop in speeding.

Members of city council have complimented the inventors, Prince George school board officials have expressed interest in the idea for traffic control in school zones and local RCMP officials are enthusiastic about the invention.

"I think he may have something here," says Cpl. Sandy Fraser of the city detachment. "At first I didn't think it would work, but now I feel there are many uses for it."

Fraser said the system could supplement radar for catching speeding motorists and be used for traffic counts to determine congested areas.

Corrigan said he has had inquiries from other municipalities in B.C. about the system and has received tacit support from the provincial department of industrial development, trade and commerce.

Asked if he worries about somebody else stealing the idea and marketing the device before him, Corrigan replied, "I lay awake at nights sometimes thinking about it."

"But I have the most effective method of beating anyone else. I'll starve myself to death, if necessary, to keep down the cost of the system."

The test model, which cost $11,000 to develop over a three-year period, was offered to the city as a gift. The city will pay the $830 installation costs when the system is located permanently at a main highway junction. Additional units can be built at a cost of about $3,650.

The system incorporates a metal and wood box, suspended above the road that flashes the words "too fast" on a dark blue screen at speeding motorists.

The flashing blue sign is out of action temporarily while Highway 16 is widened to four lanes, but will be erected again next month when the highway is re-opened.

B.C. highways department officials rejected the device initially as "gadgetry and not too relevant to highways problems," said Corrigan. But they issued a permit to test the system after city engineering officials approved the project.

PEKING (CP) — Factory worker Chung Yu Chun shook hands in lively fashion Monday with visiting Canadian doctors.

He extended a hand that once had been severed from his body for more than an hour as a result of an accident, then sewn back on by Chinese surgeons.

Chung was one of almost 20 injured, recovering or restored patients the Canadians saw at Chi Shuei Tan Hospital in a display of Chinese skill at repairing everything from complex fractures suffered in falls off bicycles to stitching back severed arms.

But most of the 16-strong Canadian medical mission were more impressed with the world-wide medical potential of work under way in development of ancient Chinese herbal medicines as remedies for a wide variety of ailments.

After observing drug development work in a university, Dr. John Evans, president of the University of Toronto, described herbal drug potential as among the world's richest resources in medicine.

Researchers at the Chinese institute analysed hundreds of natural compounds used for thousands of years for special ailments. The old remedies employ everything from wild plants and shellfish to snakes and turtles.

When active ingredients are isolated, a particular drug can be concentrated in pill form or, if the natural source is scarce, duplicated synthetically.

From the so-called Barefoot Doctors' Bluebook — a little guide listing and illustrating about 2,000 herbal drugs used by rural peasant medical men — Dr. Douglas Wallace of Ottawa cited a few that might be useful elsewhere.

Securinine, for example, has been used successfully in the treatment of paralysis known as Bell's palsy and in polio, Dr. Wallace said. Another, simply No. 654, has been used to treat shock in acute meningitis.

Overfeeding Comes Later

I have read several articles recently which accuse North American mothers of overfeeding their babies. "Fully 97 per cent of all infants," these articles assert, "when permitted to eat only as much as they wish, will consume sufficient quantities to insure normal development."

Unfortunately, my last infant was among the three per cent who, left to their own dietary whimsies, would cheerfully starve. He didn't refuse to eat anything, just food. And their aren't many vitamins in dust balls.

In desperation, I took to cavorting around the kitchen wearing goggles and a white scarf, waving a spoonful of strained beets, flapping my arms and chortling, "Here comes The Spirit of St. Louis. Open the hangar!"

Whereupon he would clap both hands over the hangar door and eye both me and The Spirit of St. Louis with equal distaste.

When he grew older, I attempted to expand his dietary horizons by constructing sliced pineapple faces with ripe olive noses, shredded carrot hair, and two vitamins for eyes. I made snowmen out of his mashed potatoes, tied his egg noodles into bows, and strung out his peas to spell "Eat me, Eric."

It didn't help. For the first five years of his life he ate nothing but Cheese Whiz and toothpaste.

Suddenly at the age of six he opened his maw for good. He might as well have begun eating five dollar bills. The rolled roast that once did two enclosures as hot roast beef sandwiches before bowing out as hash is now gone in one meal. Our son ends up sucking on the string and demanding a peanut and butter and jelly sandwich.

I send him to school with four honey sandwiches, two carrots, three apples, a banana, and half a chocolate cake. And he eats every bit of it. At ten o'clock recess.

It would be some consolation if I could see where it was going, if he developed muscles or grew a beard. Believe it or not, he gained more when he was eating Cheez Whiz and toothpaste.

Simple Curry Revives Leftover Easter Ham

By MARY MOORE

Last week when I gave you the method for roasting your Easter ham, I added a note saying I would give you a recipe for Ham Curry to use up your leftover ham in a special way. You will need at least one pound lean ham for this to serve 4 or 5 people.

CURRIED HAM WITH RICE

(serves 4 or 5)

3 tbsp. margarine
1/2 c. chopped onion
1/2 c. chopped celery
3 tsp. flour
2 tsp. curry powder (or more to taste)
1 10-oz. can cream of mushroom soup
1/2 c. 10 per cent cream
1 tsp. lemon juice
1 lb. cooked or leftover baked ham cut into 1/2 inch cubes cooked rice (see below)

curry condiments (see below)

In a pot or frying pan melt the margarine, add the onion and celery and gently saute for 5 or 6 minutes. Blend in flour and curry powder. Add mushroom soup, cream, lemon juice and stir until thick. Add cooked cubed ham and heat through.

To serve: Rice to 4 or 5 bring to boil 2 1/2 cups water with 1/2 teaspoon salt and 2 teaspoons butter. Add 1 cup raw long grain rice, bring to boil. Cover. Turn off heat for 5 minutes. Turn on heat as low as possible for 25 minutes.

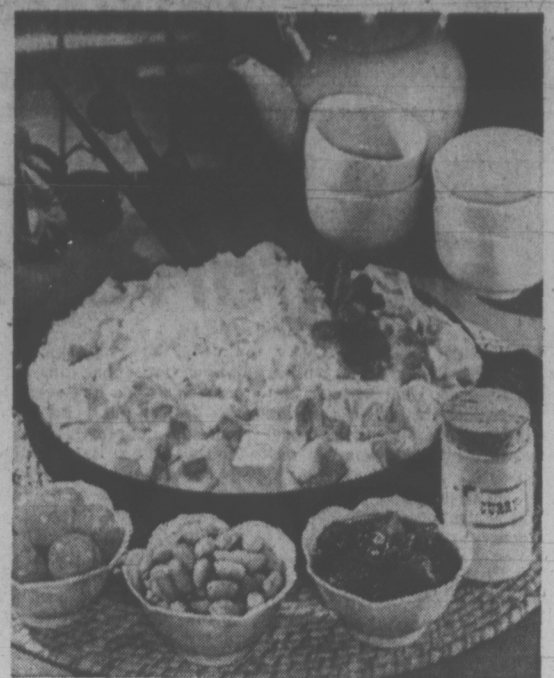

Spoon cooked rice in a border around sides of preheated platter. Pour ham curry in centre. Garnish attractively with sprigs of parsley. Or pile rice in centre of platter and surround with border of ham curry and garnish with watercress.

Serve with curry condiments such as chutney, chopped peanuts or almonds, drained mandarin oranges, chopped banana (drizzled with lemon juice to keep them from browning), raisins and toasted coconut.

This is one of the simplest curry dishes you can make. You might like to try the same recipe using pre-cooked chunks of stewing beef or lamb—well trimmed.

Any leftover rice or curried meat can be lumped together and stored in the refrigerator and reheated for next day's lunch.

Condiments fill out leftover meal

"Get Back to Basics"

DEAR ABBY: You printed a letter from a woman who felt guilty because she had put her senile, incontinent father in a nursing home. Her guilt was reinforced when she was reminded how her father had diapered her and put up with her childish babbling. To compare a child with an elderly person is ridiculous.

A child can be diapered in public in a stroller, an elderly person cannot. A child can be left in a playpen. An elderly person cannot. A child learns and matures in time. An older person becomes worse. The old person who can get around thinks he is capable of "cooking" and using matches and has to be watched every moment.

It's easy to get a baby sitter. Try to get someone to sit with an old person. Relatives won't even help.

So, after eight years when I couldn't take it any more, I found the nicest, cleanest nursing home I could afford and I took my elderly father there. I said goodbye with tears in my eyes to someone who didn't even know me.

Then I went home and started to be a wife and mother again. I looked at my husband with grateful eyes for his willingness to pay for the care of my father in a nursing home. (It isn't cheap).

Then the letters started to come from my brothers and sisters who had never offered to keep Dad for one day. They said, "You put Dad in a nursing home. How could you?" I sign myself what my father always called me. — Princess.

DEAR ABBY: Tell me if I am out of order. I have asked our two daughters, ages 18 and 20 to kindly wear bras when they are home. They both say they don't like to wear them and they refuse to do so. Their 15-year-old sister (who lives at home) has picked up the no-bra style from the older girls and she sneaks out of the house without one even though I have told her time and time again that I did not want her going to school without a bra.

This no-bra business has ruined our home. All my daughters need bras, and I think they look terrible without them. Should I insist, or drop the whole thing? — Mother.

DEAR MOTHER: Drop the whole thing. That's what they're doing.

DEAR ABBY: How long should a couple wait to get married following a divorce? I have been divorced for three years, but the man I am going to marry has been divorced only a few months. We have known each other for a very long time and are both over forty. I am not talking about the amount of time it is considered "legal" to get married again. I mean how long should we wait to avoid gossip? — Impatient.

DEAR IMPATIENT: Go ahead and marry the man and don't worry about gossip. After all, a divorce isn't the same as a death. There is no "mourning" period when one loses a mate in the divorce court.

DEAR ABBY: I wonder how much longer these girls will wear their hair long and straight as a horse's tail?

The other afternoon we went to a friend's home for a barbecue where the daughters served the food. It was a bright sunny day and I could see hair shining in the food. I assure you, I didn't eat a thing. — Rather Starve.

DEAR RATHER: You should have eaten. It's what you can't see that's risky.

It is sometimes difficult to describe a free publication without getting lost in superlatives. Better Baking and Proper Frying belongs into this category.

This 20-page booklet offers expert advice for the preparation of quality dishes and hints on how to judge your own efforts. It also contains a list of invaluable trouble shooters.

You will learn for instance, what you may have done wrong if your cake breaks or cracks and what you can do about it. It also points out why your pastry dough may be leather or hard to work with and how to do a better job next time. In addition, there are lots of tempting recipes.

A large part of the booklet is devoted to frying. One of the safety tips urges you always to remove the pan from the heat when you leave the kitchen. Also, keep handles turned inward and immediately wipe up any grease that may have spilled on the floor. To reduce splattering when you fry frozen food, blot off excess frost before you put it into the hot fat.

This is the only free cookbook I know that reveals the point system used by the experts who judge cooking and baking contests. For instance, they allot 65 per cent of the points to the eating quality of a cake, the rest is for appearance. With pies, 75 per cent of the points are given for eating quality and 25 per cent for appearance. You can easily compare your results with this rating system.

Clothing Cost May Jump '50 Per Cent'

TORONTO (CP) — Clothing prices may jump 20 to 50 per cent this fall, a Toronto tailor says.

"I don't remember when prices took a year-to-year jump like that and I've been in the business more than 40 years," said Orme Hawman in an interview.

He said a pair of men's slacks now selling at $29.95 will be $35 next fall. Women's lines, now priced at $9.95 will retail at $11.95.

Other clothing industry sources said a shortage of wool artificial fibres and leather is mainly behind the increase.

The price of a pound of unwashed wool on the farm was as low as 21 cents in 1971, rose to 34 cents early in 1972 and in October last year started rising sharply.

Price Eases

A high of just $1 a pound was hit in March this year before wool eased off to about 80 cents this week.

Added to inflation in wages in mills, the higher raw wool price means that the price of woolen fabrics has about doubled in the past year.

Hawman, a custom tailor, said woolen cloth for men's sport jackets that sold for $6 a yard a year ago now costs $14.

He added that when other costs were added, a custom tailored sports jacket that sold for $110 this season will cost $150 as old stocks of material are used up.

First Year

At J. Michael's Ladies Wear, a nine-store suit and coat chain, manager Allan Kaplan said this is the first year manufacturers have not quoted firm prices through the end of the season they're designed for.

When it comes time to re-order, the price may have gone up, he said. His firm, which normally puts fall fashions into its warehouse in August, has ordered earlier than ever for delivery starting in June to beat as much of the increase as possible.

"Wool and leather are fantastic commodities in price this year," Mr. Kaplan said. "Increases can be 20 to even 75 per cent in some lines. The consumer is going to be hit everywhere this fall."

Industry sources said some clothmakers are trying to reduce the wool increase impact

Parents 'Have' 300th Child

PRINCE RUPERT (AP) — Mr. and Mrs. Ben Cunliffe have just had their 300th child in eight years. The Cunliffes are house parents at the Prince Rupert Receiving Home, a facility for youngsters between homes in this north-coastal British Columbia city.

"Mr. and Mrs. C." as the children call them, feed, clothe and care for the children until they return to their own parents, or, in some cases, are sent to Vancouver for adoption.

The receiving home includes a four-bed ward for boys, a four-bed ward for girls and two small single rooms used for the extremely young or ailing children.

Mrs. Cunliffe says her husband is a gourmet cook and admits with laughter that she has seen more of him the last eight years than many couples see of each other in a lifetime.

They split the housework. If Cunliffe gets tired of cooking, Mrs. Cunliffe takes over and he does the laundry.

They generally have eight children under one roof at any given time. The Cunliffes buy their orange juice by the case, a hind quarter of beef lasts only six weeks and they do from four to eight loads of laundry a day.

Mr. and Mrs. Cunliffe came here from Vancouver nine years ago, have a 17-year-old son of their own, four grown children and eight grand-children.

Traditions Help Keep Reserve Secure

CAUGHNAWAGA, Que. (CP) — Her name is Kwa-ran-ko-ta-kwen, or Tearing Down the Skies.

"But you may call me Esther," she says.

Esther Phillips is a Mohawk Indian who has lived on this reserve just south of Montreal since the day she was born 52 years ago and has never considered living anywhere else.

She teaches Indian children the Mohawk language. Caughnawaga is a community where strictly defined traditions and roles lend comfort and security to a life that isn't always easy.

Friday nights, says Mrs. Phillips, the women stay home waiting for their men.

About 75 per cent of the men are away all week, working on high steel construction in the United States, and they don't get home until late in the evening.

Saturday nights everyone gathers at the Legion Hall and the women catch up on the week's news. That's when they find out who fell off what steel construction and how.

Then on Sunday nights, the men leave again and the women settle down for another week on the reserve with the children.

From the outside, Caughnawaga can look like any small town, with its population of 4,500 living in ordinary houses.

Esther is amused by the Sunday afternoon curiosity seekers who visit the reserve.

"Sometimes I'm sitting on my porch when these people stop and ask me: 'Could you please tell us where the Indian reserve is?' And I say:

"You're on it. We're all Indians. And they have surprised looks on their faces and drive off."

But the reserve is not like any other community, she says. Her advice to young Indians is: "Stay — definitely stay. I'd never leave and the young Indians would never be happy living anywhere else, because we have a different way of life."

"We like to be in groups, together with our families. Even though a lot of my girl friends are married to white men, they always come back to the reserve for summer."

"It's one big party and there's such a close kinship among ourselves."

She shops in the downtown department stores but never uses credit and prefers to buy essentials on the reserve because they are cheaper.

Keeping the family home in good repair is important to the Phillips. When there is a job to be done they hire Indian workers because it is good for the community's economy.

It gets cold in Caughnawaga in winter. A biting wind cuts in low and hard from the St. Lawrence River and drives the snow high against the homes. Yet the main source of heat is an imposing ornate wood stove.

"I can't get rid of it," she says. "We like to retain a little of our old ways."

Until eight years ago she drew water from a garden pump, or fetched it with two pails and a yoke from the river.

She looks at the river now and says: "Just think, I used to swim there and all the women would go down and sit on its banks with their sandwiches and coffee. Now the white man has polluted that river. You can't even eat one fish. Those good times have gone — forever."

Grey Panthers Ready to Lobby

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Maggie Kuhn doesn't mind being called old. But she does mind the senior citizen tag. And that's why the 67-year-old Philadelphian organized the Grey Panthers.

"Our society automatically scraps people just like old automobiles," she says. "It's the Detroit syndrome, but the latest models are not always the best."

She and about 600 other Grey Panthers across the United States are lobbying for improved living conditions for older citizens. Their efforts range from attempts to get reduced fares on public transportation to better medical care.

She calls herself an "older adult who is initiating change by rocking the boat." Her targets are government officials, bankers, "the fat cats of big industry and anyone else who tries to run the lives of the elderly."

By threatening to block trolley cars with wheelchairs and canes, the Grey Panthers succeeded in getting Southeastern Pennsylvania Transportation Authority to cut fares to 10 cents for senior citizens during non-rush hour periods.

With the help of consumer advocate Ralph Nader, the group got Philadelphia's largest bank to set up a special savings account for the elderly with four free money orders a month and no minimum balance, plus a no-collateral loan policy. Now the First Pennsylvania Bank and Trust Co. is considering a plan on financial counselling for their older clients.

Margaret Kuhn, white-haired and weighing 95 pounds, organized the Grey Panthers three years ago with the help of five other elderly persons. Now the group has chapters in New York, Syracuse, N.Y.; Dayton, Ohio; Denver; Chicago; Los An-

BOSTON (AP) — Attired in grass skirts and other bare trimmings, more than 1,000 women in the Boston area are belly-dancing their way to a healthier, happier, sexier life.

The women, ranging in age up to 60, are taking a seven-week course in the ancient dancing art performed in some Oriental lands and U.S. nightclubs.

Interest is high in the course, which two professional dancers offer four nights a week to a series of one-hour classes.

The women are secretaries, students, mothers, housewives and teachers and they all have their own reasons for taking the course.

Mrs. Frank Fushi, a grandmother, dances with girls in their early 20s, although she is entering 60s.

"I've been associated with a dance school and I like dancing, so I decided to take the course," Mrs. Fushi said.

She said dancing has done wonders for her. "I feel supple, less inhibited," she said. "But my husband is very shy about it."

Belly Dancing A Happy Step

Some of the girls didn't tell their husbands or boy-friends when they started taking courses, said Gigi Brookfield.

"Most of the people who first came here were ashamed," she said. "Everytime the door would open they were afraid it was somebody they knew. But, now they are over that."

Mrs. Brookfield, took the course "because I think it is very sexy."

"I've tried everything, but I think this the sexiest. I don't care about the physical conditioning aspect of it. Men like to watch it and it is great fun."

"My husband loves it," Dorothy Hollingsworth said. "Right after the first class, he one is going to get old and people in a technical society are frightened about that."

"Grey Panthers is a fun name," says Maggie. "It's a symbol of social action and social change and there's a certain militancy, rather than just a docile acceptance of what our country's doing."

To those in her age group who are turned off by the name, she reacts defensively:

"You may still be a pussy-cat if you're not willing to take on the giants. We have nothing to lose but loneliness and boredom."

The Grey Panthers plan to zero in next on the American Medical Association. When the association meets in New York's Americana Hotel in June, the Panthers will be there plugging for a national health program.

"Our boss calls us his harem. Sometimes, when we're all alone, we dance around the office."

The youngest students at the Isis Revan Oriental Academy are eight years old. They take the belly dancing course because their mothers are interested in having their child learn a skill and express themselves with their bodies instead of being hung up like they are," Miss Revan said.

Miss Revan and teacher Dan Beaumont operate four studios in the Boston area. Both danced professionally before teaching, and both hold degrees in dance.

New Service for our Customers

Canadian Pacific and the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway plan to add a new link to their growing network of successful Customer Service centres across Canada, with the establishment of a centre at Vancouver. This centre will provide customers with a faster, more efficient and direct service covering all our operations.

At Victoria and Nanaimo you will be able to get in touch with the new centre by continuing to use numbers listed in your local telephone directory for all rail and B.C.C.S. ticketing. Elsewhere on Vancouver Island you simply ask your long-distance telephone operator for a toll-free Zenith number. Or you can call in one of the Mobile Supervisors, who are specially trained to provide you with individual assistance.

Through this new centre you will be able to: obtain information on all our services, rail, air, ships, transport, hotels and telecommunications; make reservations; send telegrams. You can call 24 hours a day, 7 days a week. Experienced staff will be on hand to give you the information or assistance you need — when you need it. Mobile Supervisors will help you select types of freight cars, complete bills of lading, handle accounts, and look after your transportation needs. Their service will be faster and more convenient because they will come to see you.

The implementation of this CP Services centre is subject to the approval of the Canadian Transport Commission with whom application has been filed to remove station agents.

We plan to call on many of our customers and other interested parties in the near future to explain just how the new system will help them do business better.

WAR FOOTING FOR ACCIDENTS

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dr. Marian Weiss, a rehabilitation consultant to the World Health Organization, said Monday countries must fight rising traffic accidents "as a war project."

He suggested better preventive measures, improved treatment techniques including field hospitals along arterial roads and helicopter ambulances on patrol, and a more comprehensive and integrated rehabilitation program.

Weiss produced a memo he prepared for W. H. O., that said in part: "It can be taken that world figures for the number of people severely injured in traffic accidents approach the statistics of casualties in the last war (Second World War)."

VANCOUVER (CP) — Norman La Rue, chief-elect of the Kamloops Indian Band, said Monday the federal government should, by Order-in-Council, stop the inclusion of reserve lands in the amalgamation of the city of Kamloops and outlying areas scheduled for May 1.

Chief La Rue said the amalgamation, ordered by the British Columbia government, should be stopped "at least until such a time as the Indian people have had a democratic opportunity to examine such a move and decide the matter by vote."

Chief La Rue said: "If the question of the amalgamation is not put to a referendum to be ratified by a majority of the electors of the Kamloops Indian reserve I will most definitely have my legal adviser bring the issue before the courts."

"Falling any negotiations with the Kamloops band we will be forced to resort to a positive action, non-violent in nature, on the day of the proposed amalgamation by blockading the Yellowhead Highway," he said.

Last week Len Marchand, MP for the Kamloops area and Parliamentary secretary to the Minister of Indian Affairs, said he would recommend to Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien that the inclusion of a substantial portion of the Kamloops reserve be taken before the courts.

"The Department is clearly abrogating its responsibilities as trustee of the Indian people," Chief La Rue said.

Cathedral Building Doomed

VANCOUVER (CP) — No way has yet been found to save the 84-year-old Christ Church-Cathedral building, associate minister Bob Pyne said Monday. "Quite frankly, it appears to us that the alternatives are not real when you get down to the nitty gritty," Pyne said.

Vancouver city council on April 3 gave church officials and the congregation about a month to seek alternatives to the proposal to tear down the present downtown building and replace it with a new church building with an 18-storey office tower on top.

Distillery Talks Open

VANCOUVER (CP) — Negotiations opened here today between Local 69 of the Distillery Workers Union and representatives of Seagram's Limited. The local's 180 members have been on strike at Seagram's plants in New Westminster and Vancouver since March 1, in defiance of the union's international headquarters.

Local president Keith Sheedy says the local negotiators will walk out of the talks if a representative of the international is allowed to sit in.

Quest for Gold Halted

CHILLIWACK (CP) — A stray log has forced a Chilliwack father-and-son team to abandon their month-old quest for gold at a storied Fraser River sand bar near Yale. Nolan McIsaac, said Monday he and his son, Gary, who invented a special rig that allowed drilling from the river rather than the shore, were knocked out of commission by the log which sent their machine floating out of control down the river for more than a mile before they could beach it. During their several weeks on the river, McIsaac said they drilled a number of holes and found some very fine gold dust but not the motherlode.

LOS ANGELES (WP) — The man who classified the Pentagon papers "top secret-sensitive" testified in court here Monday that he did so routinely and without regard to government rules and regulations concerning protection of the "national defence."

In fact, said Leslie H. Gelb, a former Pentagon official who directed the task force that compiled the papers, he was not even aware at the time of the existence of Executive Order 10501, the guideline issued by President Eisenhower in 1954 to govern security classification.

The only training or instruction he ever had in security matters, Gelb explained, was watching "a movie which had the theme, 'Beware of blondes who are excessively friendly — they may be Russian spies.'"

Gelb said his sole criteria for giving the documents a "top secret" label were that some of the source documents were classified at that level and that "virtually everything" else he handled at the Pentagon had similar marking.

The word "sensitive" was added — despite the lack of any legal basis for it — because the documents were then regarded as "politically sensitive" they talked about and characterized the positions of high-level policy makers," he testified.

Some parts of the defence department history of American involvement in Southeast Asia were drawn from unclassified sources, Gelb acknowledged.

But "because of my failure to instruct the secretaries to the contrary, they just typed 'top secret-sensitive' on everything," without regard to its significance, he said candidly.

Sale One Week Away For the Famous RR Brand

LONDON (Reuter) — Shortly after breakfast May 1, emissaries from some of the world's great companies are expected to call at a London bank hoping to buy the proudest name in the car business.

Each bidder for Rolls-Royce Motors will have to put down a deposit of $17.5 million plus a banker's guarantee that he is good for the balance of his offer. To have any hope of success, the offer would have to be between $75-125 million.

The winning bid could well come from an American, Japanese or other foreign firm. But under the rules of sale, any non-British buyer would be barred from using the name Rolls-Royce or the famous interlinked "RR" trademark.

A foreign purchaser would be entitled, however, to build the celebrated automobiles without altering the elegant styling and distinctive radiator grill.

FIRM WENT BANKRUPT
The Rolls-Royce car division found itself in the hands of the official receiver in 1971 following the crash of the parent company due to losses incurred in building airplane engines.

The firm had been spending heavily on development of the RB-211 engine for the Lockheed Tri Star airliner before going bankrupt.

The British government nationalized the aero-engine section of Rolls-Royce to prevent the collapse of important defence and international contracts.

The car division has since been run at a tidy profit by the receiver, Rupert Nicholson. The current year's profit is put at around $10 million.

But Nicholson is obliged to part with Rolls-Royce at the highest possible market price to help pay the creditors and shareholders who suffered in the parent company's collapse.

All bidders are being guaranteed anonymity.

There is no guarantee that the highest bid will be accepted.

Nicholson might decide that a better price could be obtained by selling shares on the stock market.

The result will be made public May 4.

G.I. Drug Count: 20 Per Cent Hooked

WASHINGTON (WP) — The evidence of heroin use by G.I.s serving in South Vietnam was four times as heavy as had been previously estimated, the U.S. Army disclosed Monday.

The Pentagon said that a follow-up study of returning war veterans has shown that 35 per cent of the army-enlisted men in South Vietnam tried heroin and that 20 per cent of the G.I.s surveyed reported becoming dependent on the drug at one time or another during their tours of duty.

The army previously had estimated a 5-per cent heroin use rate, based on compulsory urine screening tests.

However, the army said that only a tiny fraction — 1.3 per cent — of the Vietnam heroin users are still addicted today. The much celebrated "heroin epidemic" among servicemen in Southeast Asia in 1971 and 1972 has left the United States with only 2,000 to 3,000 drug dependent veterans, the Pentagon claimed.

Significantly, only about three per cent of the G.I. heroin users from Vietnam were in treatment during the study, meaning that the vast majority of drug users "kicked" the opiate habit by themselves.

Army drug experts explained that only 18 per cent of the G.I. drug users in Vietnam reported ever taking heroin intravenously and that only 8 per cent said they regularly injected the drug. Most of the remainder, the army said, mixed the heroin with tobacco and smoked it, resulting in a reduced absorption rate.

The army's findings on Vietnam drug use were contained in an interim report of a $400,000 study conducted under contract by Washington University of St. Louis. The report was presented Monday at the Pentagon by Dr. Richard S. Wilbur, assistant secretary of defence for health and environment.

The study was based on interviews with 920 veterans selected from among the 13,240 soldiers who returned from Vietnam in September, 1971, and served in the war during the peak narcotics use months beginning in October, 1970.

Surprisingly, Wilbur reported that 62 per cent of the drug users studied had voluntarily joined the army, even though the wartime army consisted mainly of draftees. Not surprisingly, the drug users generally were young, undereducated, single, had records of previous arrests and came from large cities.

Examination of the military records of the study group, Wilbur said, showed that nearly 12 per cent showed drug-positive during their Vietnam narcotics screening tests. He said the difference between that rate and the army's previously claimed 8 per cent narcotics use rate is attributed to the fact that the lower figure included officers and servicewomen.

ALIENS IN BUSH

SEATTLE (AP) — Federal officials will raid a reforestation project on Weyerhaeuser Timber Co. land within the next 10 days to ferret out alien laborers illegally in the country, an immigration official says.

John P. Boyd, district director of the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service, declined to identify the exact location but said it would be in western Washington.

Boyd said his office was "going to visit in the very near future" a tree-planting project suspected of employing so-called "wetback" laborers.

Weyerhaeuser spokesman Bernje Orell said Monday "We do not condone illegal activity."

Boyd said there currently are "several cases pending against smugglers and transporters of aliens in this state. We have enough evidence to take the matter to a grand jury. But I'm not at liberty to discuss this further."

He said the tree planting and seeding season is ending — with one possible exception.

"... and we are going to pay a surprise visit there next week."

SECRET COWBOYS URGED FOR MANITOBA

Times News Service

WINNIPEG — Undercover cowboys, riding the Manitoba range to clamp down on an increase in rustling, were suggested in the legislature, Monday.

Harry Enns, a Tory M.L.A., said the "Manitoba Rangers" could be recruited from the ranks of RCMP officers much the same as policemen are now seconded to drug-squad detail.

Attorney-General A. H. Mackling said rustling in the province had increased threefold in the past year.

Chamber Slams 'Confusion'

REGINA (CP) — The president of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce said Monday that opposition parties are distorting and creating some confusion about the federal government's proposed corporation tax cuts.

A. John Ellis said: "Some of our opposition friends in Ottawa have been making statements which seem to distort the whole picture."

Ellis told members of the Regina Chamber and Rotary Club that while he agreed with some opposition views, he believes the budget is responsible and deserves the approval of Parliament.

The budget, presented by Finance Minister Turner last February, calls for a reduction to 40 from 49 per cent on taxable income for manufacturers and processors. It also recommends fast write-off provisions.

Snowmobile Clamps Set

REGINA (CP) — Legislation to require licensing and insuring of power toboggans and the licensing of their drivers has been distributed in the legislature.

The bill would set the age limit for an operator's licence at 16.

The regulations would only apply to machines being driven on public property and set speed limits.

Premature Reaping From Bad Sowing

Thinning seedlings of vegetables or flowers sown outdoors is the penalty we pay for sowing seeds too lavishly. If we want to practice economy we learn to sow thinly, thus saving seeds for a later sowing and saving much thinning time.

Going a few steps further, we shall avoid unnecessary loss of plant nutrients that would be consumed by seedlings which are later discarded. Even though they go to the compost heap, they have used soil nutrients required immediately by the seedlings we allow to remain.

But supposing we have already sown thinly and wisely, some removal will still be needed. Carrots and beets need spacing an inch apart before they can develop to a useable size. The first thinning is done when these seedlings are two to three inches tall.

Onion seedlings can be successfully transplanted, each one in a tiny hole, with the bulbous part not too deeply buried.

I have successfully transplanted beets when they are tiny but not carrots, though some gardening writers mention it.

Crowded seedlings lack air circulation among them. The whole batch may succumb to a fungus disease in damp humid weather. By thinning gradually at 10 to 14 day intervals, we leave enough seedlings to protect one another and shelter the soil from drying winds and hot sunshine. Also we have something to eat from the larger thinnings.

When thinning, press the soil around remaining seedlings, and if soil tends to be dry, water gently. Transplanting of seedlings is best done either on an overcast showery day, or when sunlight has passed from the plot of ground.

Temporary shade from old cedar shakes, or even a piece of ship lap leaning on a couple of wood pegs in the ground by the row on the sunny side, will shield vegetable rows for a few days.

Lettuce seedlings transplant easily if the base of the leaves are not set below soil level. In heavy soils it helps to sprinkle a half inch of sand on the surface around lettuce for early spring transplants. You will have lettuce leaves for eating, and transplants will be sizeable for use over many weeks since they will be different sizes when you set them out.

Radishes can usually be left until thinnings are big enough to eat, unless seeding has been very thick. Pull the young radishes with the idea of leaving spaces for the others to grow.

Beets can be used as soon as four or five leaves grow. Cook tops and roots together for a few minutes.

Swiss chard can be transplanted, as can most spinach varieties, but usually we continue thinning and using, leaving more space between remaining plants.

Peas, beans, corn and other large seeded plants should not require thinning. If they do, try transplanting to fill in gaps or make a new row, taking a trowelful of soil with each transplant.

SOLUTION WEDNESDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

When today's deal arose in the National Championships held in Denver this past summer, aggressive bidding by North led to an ambitious contract in which the play was complicated by entry problems. Sitting North and South were Pat Cayne and Andre Burger, the wives of internationally renowned experts; Jimmy Cayne and Chuck Burger.

Neither side vulnerable. North deals.

The bidding:

1♠ Pass 2♥ Pass

Opening lead: Seven of ♠.

Mrs. Burger won the opening spade lead with her king, after which she led a low club. When West played low, dummy's queen captured the trick. She returned to the South hand via the ace of spades, and led her remaining club, which West took with his ace.

Declarer now had plenty of black-suit winners in dummy—but unfortunately, she had no entry to the board to cash them. She resolved this problem by letting the opponents do her work for her.

After winning his ace of clubs, West led a low heart, East's eight being taken by South's queen. Declarer then cashed the ace and king of hearts, after which she led her remaining heart, West taking the trick with his jack. On the last three heart leads, a spade and two diamonds were discarded from dummy.

West, appreciating that declarer had no entry to dummy, now shifted to a low diamond, which East won with the ace. East returned the jack of diamonds, and Mrs. Burger played low from the South hand. The defenders were now lost. If West overtook the jack with the king, he would make winners out of South's remaining diamonds. And if East's diamond jack were permitted to win the trick—as it was—East would have no choice but to return either a club or a spade, thus enabling declarer to capture the rest of the tricks.

In retrospect, the defenders could have wiggled out of declarer's net at trick five if West, after winning the club ace, had shifted to a low diamond. East would have won his ace and returned the diamond jack. Whether South played the queen or didn't, a heart would next be led by the defender who won the diamond trick. Played in this fashion, South would have ended up losing three diamonds, one club, and one heart.

GRENADA RIOT TRAPS TOURISTS

Times News Services

Hundreds of tourists, including dozens of Canadians, are trapped on the tiny Caribbean island of Grenada after three days of disturbances that have closed island's only airport.

Shooting broke out at the airport Monday in a clash between police and about 500 demonstrators.

The demonstrators were dispersed by tear gas. Three were reported slightly injured.

The protest, organized by the opposition Jewel political movement, concerned the alleged fatal shooting of a young man by a policeman last Friday.

On Sunday, the demonstrators closed the airport on this West Indies island by littering the runway with oil drums, bottles, stones and other obstacles.

The runway was cleared Monday morning, but later the terminal building was stoned, leading to the exchange of gunfire.

The airport remained closed.

The island government has issued a warning that only persons with legal business will be allowed near the airport, located on the east coast of the mountainous island.

Wally Crouter, a Toronto disc jockey flew to Barbados Friday, then by private plane to Grenada Saturday.

In Grenada "there was a riot going on ... and on Friday a policeman shot and killed a boy ... that really heated things up," he said.

For his return trip, home Sunday Crouter boarded a private plane.

"The rioters had put oil barrels and other barricades on the runway but the pilot was able to get up," he said.

"They had tried to damage the plane too" so the pilot landed on a gravel strip on a nearby island to check the tail assembly of the twin-engine aircraft. "The plane checked out okay so we took off again for Barbados."

Two Toronto tourists, Scott and Mary McGreggor, say they went to Grenada airport Sunday but found their flight cancelled.

McGreggor, an Air Canada employee, attempted to arrange a sea charter to the nearby island of St. Vincent. Prices for the 90-mile sea trip had jumped to $100 a person.

U.S. Claims Justification To End Pact

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The United States today accused North Vietnam of inexcusable violations of the peace agreement, including illegal movement of 30,000 men and 400 tanks into South Vietnam.

It rejected as "utterly groundless" earlier Hanoi allegations of U.S. truce violations and said the North Vietnamese attitude was justification for Washington to suspend its observance of the Paris peace accord in whole or part.

Hanoi also was accused formally of conducting a campaign of terror, assassination and political obstruction.

The U.S. charges were contained in a lengthy diplomatic note dated April 20. It was dispatched last weekend to the International Conference on Vietnam.

The state department made public the note following a charge in New York on Monday by President Nixon's chief foreign affairs adviser, Henry Kissinger, that North Vietnam had engaged in systematic and cynical violations of the end-of-the-war settlement.

The note said North Vietnam had sent to South Vietnam 400 tanks and armored vehicles, 300 artillery pieces and "vast quantities of ammunition and vehicles" in violation of the arrangements since they took effect Jan. 28.

It also said Hanoi had moved 27,000 tons of military supplies through the demilitarized zone to South Vietnam and 26,000 tons into Laos.

Meanwhile, U.S. planes in some of their heaviest raids of the renewed Cambodian bombing campaign stalled a Communist drive just below Phnom Penh and government troops swept in today to regain patches of lost territory, field reports said.

B-52s, flying from Thailand with 30-ton bombloads, struck within five miles of the southern suburb of Takhmau, hit by rifle fire overnight.

Military sources reported that in separate raids farther south of the capital, nearly 60 B-52s dumped an estimated 900 tons of explosives just before dawn today around the rebel-threatened provincial capital of Takeo, 55 miles from Phnom Penh.

Government soldiers reportedly inflicted heavy casualties on Communist soldiers there Monday.

Air raids five to 10 miles below Phnom Penh rocked the capital for four straight hours before sunrise today in what military sources said was some of the most intense bombing of the air campaign in Cambodia, now in its 48th consecutive day.

Today's stepped-up air activity was designed to clear the way for expected government counterattacks against Communist troops who have surrounded the capital and severed all its major supply routes.

Vital supplies of fuel, ammunition and food were unloaded here today from eight ships that broke through a Communist blockade on the Mekong River.

The military command said one crew member was killed and four wounded when the convoy came under fire three times, once inside South Vietnam and twice in Cambodia.

In Saigon, the Viet Cong said today they will allow members of the International Commission of Control and Supervision to re-examine on Thursday the wreckage of an April 7 helicopter crash in northern South Vietnam in which four ICCS officers, including a Canadian, were killed.

In a letter to the ICCS military committee, the Viet Cong said they are prepared to receive an ICCS team in northern Quang Tri province to re-inspect the crashed helicopter and retrieve a second one that landed safely nearby.

The re-inspection is intended to settle a growing dispute whether the two helicopters were on course when flying an approved mission over Communist-held territory in Quang Tri.

The Viet Cong also agreed today with the Saigon regime to begin the first release of political prisoners held by the two sides.

INDIA EYES CIG BAN

NEW DELHI (AP) — The government said Monday it is studying legislation to outlaw smoking in India.

Deputy Health Minister A. K. Kisku told parliament that the Tuberculosis Association of India and the Indian Association for Chest Diseases had passed a resolution against smoking and requested a legal ban on the habit.

"The proposal is already under consideration of the government of India in consultation with the state governments," Kisku said. He did not say how such a prohibition would be enforced.

Derry Teens Riot

BELFAST (UPI) — Roman Catholic youths rioted at a housing complex on the outskirts of Londonderry early today, burning cars, smashing windows and showering British troops with stones.

Snipers later fired twice at troops patrolling the Londonderry area, but there were no injuries.

The outbreak of street violence shattered a limited, seven-day truce called by the outlawed Irish Republican Army to coincide with the opening of a Catholic community festival in Londonderry on Monday.

An army spokesman said the youths began marching through the streets shortly before midnight Monday, after soldiers arrested two IRA suspects in the area.

Police identified one of the suspects as 19-year-old Daniel Kennan, who escaped from a Belfast prison three months ago by switching places with a man being released. The other suspect was not identified.

In other violence Monday, a Royal Ulster Constabulary policeman was shot in the head by sniper fire while driving two colleagues through Coalisland, 45 miles west of Belfast.

In the same shooting, a civilian was hit in the leg but police said he was not seriously hurt.

TOKYO RAIL RAMPAGE

TOKYO (Reuters) — Hundreds of passengers angered by a railway slowdown went on a rampage here tonight, beating up station employees, wrecking computerized ticket machines and smashing windows.

Scored of helmeted riot police were called in to Ueno station, Tokyo's terminal for long-distance trains to the north, but were at one stage forced to withdraw amid fear from thousands of stranded passengers.

At nearby Akabane station, hundreds of passengers smashed office and train windows and hurled smoke bombs.

Mitchell Facing New Charge

Times News Services

NEW YORK — Former U.S. attorney-general John Mitchell and former commerce department secretary Maurice Stans have become the focal points of a federal grand jury investigation here expected to culminate in criminal indictments this week.

The jury is investigating why a $200,000 payment — made in 100 bills — was made secretly by Robert Vesco to President Nixon's re-election campaign April 10, 1972.

The money, paid when Vesco was under intensive investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission — and after a series of meetings between a Vesco representative and both Stans and Mitchell — was placed in a safe in Stans' office at the finance committee to re-elect the president.

Money from that safe was used to finance the Watergate bugging operation, as well as other facets of the Republic's alleged espionage campaign in 1972.

The grand jury investigation began after Harry Sears, a prominent New Jersey politician (who headed the Committee to Re-Elect the President in New Jersey) testified that he helped arrange for the contribution. Sears was once an attorney for Vesco.

Sears testified that he, along with another former associate of Vesco, delivered a suitcase to Stans in Washington. The suitcase contained the 2,000 one hundred-dollar bills.

Sears' deposition came in connection with a civil complaint by the SEC charging Vesco and a group of associates with swindling $224 million from mutual funds operated by IOS, Ltd., the Geneva-based financial company.

Stans was given the money

NDP MAKES MONEY

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

The New Democratic Party, a strong advocate of deficit financing, is the only party not currently practising it in Canada.

In the fiscal year ended March 31, all provincial governments had deficits except the three NDP provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

And in the current fiscal year, the three NDP provinces are the only ones budgeting for a surplus. Liberal governments in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island are hoping for a break-even result.

The Conservative government in Ontario is anticipating

a deficit of $402 million in the current fiscal year to lead all provinces in the red side of the ledger.

Quebec is expecting a deficit of $278 million.

Ontario and Quebec reported the biggest deficits in the previous fiscal year as well.

British Columbia is the only one of the three "have" provinces (Ontario, B.C., Alberta) to show a surplus in the previous fiscal year and to be budgeting for a surplus in the current fiscal year.

Of the seven "have-not" provinces, the biggest deficits are racked up by the Liberal government in Quebec and the Tory administration in Newfoundland.

In British Columbia, most of the credit for the surplus in the previous fiscal year belongs to the Social Credit administration.

However, the projected $3 million surplus in the current fiscal year, if achieved, will be the NDP's doing.

The irony is that of all the national political parties, only the NDP is enthusiastic about the use of heavy deficit spending as a way of life.

Of the free enterprise parties, only the Socreds have been able to avoid deficit spending as a way of life.

On the federal scene both the Liberals and Conservatives have racked up tremendous deficits over the years, the Liberals projecting a move of $975 million into the red in the current fiscal year.

As for the total national debt: Don't ask?

All They Want Is A Beer

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Vern and Shirley Hupp may have six very dry weeks ahead of them while the Liquor Control Board and local beer parlor managers argue over LCB regulations.

Hupp, 22, and his 19-year-old wife were recently ordered out of a local beer parlor because they don't possess the photograph-bearing LCB identity cards to prove their ages.

No card, no beer, the waiter said.

When the Hupps asked a liquor store for applications for the identification cards they were told the cards are no longer issued by the LCB and new British Columbia identity cards will not be available until June 1.

Beer parlor manager Dave Kline says, however, his waiters will continue to insist upon the LCB card.

Kline said LCB regulations stipulate only passports or LCB cards are acceptable proof of age.

A spokesman at the LCB head office in Victoria said the cards are not mandatory. They are being phased out because it is no longer possible to get the pictures taken for them, he said.

"I'm no trouble-maker," said Hupp. "I'd just like them to get this straightened out so we can go in and have a beer."

Bombing Feared

LONDON (Reuters) — Police indicated today that they sealed off Downing Street last month for fear of bomb attacks by political extremists.

Britain Taxes Chastity

LONDON (UPI) — Chastity belts have fallen victim to a new government tax.

Not only that, the government refuses to dispense the medieval wrought-iron devices along with contraceptives under Britain's National Health Service.

"It's not fair," said Robin Huggess, whose firm exports close to 10,000 chastity belts a year, many of them to North America.

Huggess said Customs and Excise maintains that the belts are items of apparel and therefore subject to Value-Added Tax, a recently-introduced national sales tax.

"It will put 50 pence ($1.25) on the old retail price of five pounds ($12.50)," Huggess said.

His firm contends the belts are "safety devices" and thus should be exempt.

Huggess said his company has appealed directly to Anthony Barber, chancellor of the exchequer.

"We remind him of our world-wide reputation and that our belts go to 29 countries, including the Virgin Islands," he said.

"And we hinted that no chancellor would want to go down in history as the man who imposed a tax on chastity."

Manitoba Motorists Save

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba motorists saved an average of 14 per cent on their automobile insurance premiums last year because of Autopac, says the 1971-72 report of the Manitoba Public Insurance Corporation.

The report, tabled Monday in the legislature by Municipal Affairs Minister Howard Pawley, shows the Crown corporation received $37.9 million in premiums for the year ended Oct. 31, 1972.

If private insurance companies had handled this business, motorists in the province would have paid out more than $45 million, the report claims.

Autopac came into effect in Manitoba on Nov. 1, 1971, and the report notes that during the year prior to its introduction, insurance premiums totalled $35.6 million.

"However, it is important to note that during that period, only a small percentage of vehicle owners carried full insurance protection," the report says.

It notes that in addition to improving the insurance coverage of many residents, Autopac also spared motorists from annual rate increases assessed in 1971 and subsequent increases in premiums.

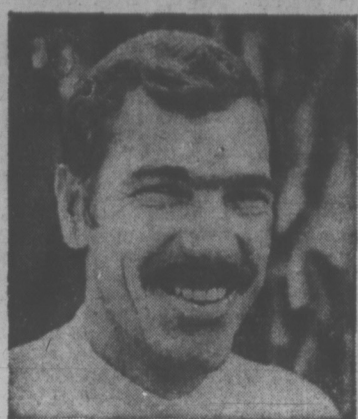

The corporation had an excess of revenues over expenses of $1.7 million. After making provision for unreported claims, a total of $739,100 was transferred to a reserve to stabilize premiums.

The report notes that rates are also being kept down by interest earned on premiums that are invested. Interest earnings totalled $1.6 million in 1972 on short-term investments of $17.8 million, and the corporation had committed $6.2 million as of Oct. 31 for the purchase of long-term debentures.

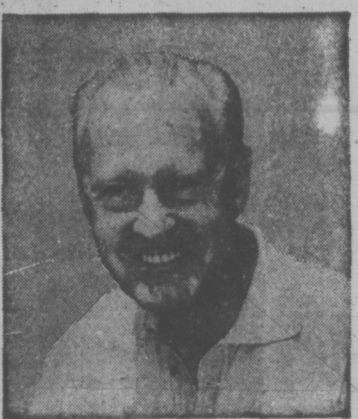

The corporation's audited balance sheet for the year shows assets and liabilities of $26.5 million. Organizational expenses totalled $3.5 million, including grants of $1.2 million to former agents who opted out of the compulsory government-run plan.

CHICAGO (AP) — Commodities futures came under liquidation on the Board of Trade today as many investors terminated holdings in advance of a U.S. government report dealing with stocks of grains.

Losses in corn, wheat and soybeans ranged from around 2 1/2 to eight cents a bushel but these were trimmed before the close.

The weather continued rather bleak in the lower portion of the Midwestern and the Southern U.S. today and while this influenced some buyers of futures, sellers were more numerous and active.

Prices in the major pits were weak on the opening and generally held at these levels and below through most of the session.

There was an attempt at a rally in the last hour but not all commodities moved in the same direction.

A Status Symbol—at $24,750

The Well-Heeled 200 and Their Love Affair With a Car

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Each year the lure of all that elegance and prestige puts some 200 well-heeled Victorians behind the wheel of a gleaming new luxury car.

They have their choice of everything from the top Volvo model, the 164E at a modest $7,000, to the $24,750 Aston Martin.

"The love affair with the automobile is not over," says local Cadillac salesman Jack Bond.

There are a lot of people around with money and leisure time to spare, and many spend it on cars, he says.

Some 25 Cadillacs are sold here each year, at prices ranging from $7,750 for a two-door Calais to $35,480 for a Fleetwood 75 limousine sedan.

Limousines are sold mainly as official cars for government dignitaries, while other Cadillacs such as the sporty Eldorado, called a "personal luxury specialty car," are for businessmen.

Then, of course, there are the funeral parlors, which generally give their business to Cadillac.

Cadillacs sell first as a status symbol. A typical ad

shows a comely wife and 10-year-old daughter waiting beside the family Cadillac as the young tycoon steps out of his private plane at the end of a busy day.

But for some, Cadillac's status value has been tarnished by its image of ostentatious nouveau-riche wealth.

As Vance Packard said in The Status Seekers back in 1959: "As Cadillac developed vivid meaning as a success symbol for newly self-made men, some upper class people of older wealth . . . turned to cars that were less emphatically indicators of success."

As premier, W. A. C. Bennett drove in a chauffeur-driven black 1968 Cadillac.

Premier Dave Barrett has put the car in mothballs and now uses a standard department of highways car. Barrett's own car is a second-hand Volvo.

General Motors' other luxury car, the Oldsmobile 98 sells less well in Victoria.

Local Ford dealers sell 15 Lincoln Continentals ($10,000 to $13,000) a year, chiefly to owners of companies, and 25 to 30 Thunderbirds ($7,000 to $11,000).

Sales of the Chrysler line of cars, which range from $5,000 up to the $12,000 Imperial, are around 100 a year, although only a few would be Imperials.

Chrysler buyers are generally doctors, lawyers, dentists, and retired people who want a good car to drive down to Palm Springs in the winter, says Chrysler salesman Doug Boden.

A Porsche is an image car, not a status car such as the big American cars, says salesman Ted Bowcott. "By driving a Porsche you show you have class and taste, but not so much that you're a rich executive."

Clergymen who would never drive a Cadillac will drive a Porsche, says Bowcott. About five Porsche 911 sports cars ($9,800 to $14,000) are sold here each year.

Five years ago Mercedes-Benz sales in Victoria were negligible.

Last year 47 Mercedes were sold here, the highest per capita sales of any Canadian city, says local sales manager Georg Jendrossek. Prices range from $8,000 for the 220 sedan to $20,740 for the 450 SLC sports coupe.

Mercedes are for the self-made man, says Jendrossek, "for those who have made some achievements in their own lives."

"It is the car that sets the person apart from the average, and a successful person is apart from the average."

The ultimate status car, the Rolls Royce, hasn't been sold in Victoria for nearly a decade, although it's still sold in Vancouver.

"They'll come over at the drop of a hat if anyone's interested (in a Rolls)," says Norman Britnell, manager of the local dealership that did sell Rolls.

Britnell's firm is the only dealer in British Columbia for the English-made Aston Martin sports car, which is probably the most expensive car on sale in the city.

"We can only get 10 a year," he says, because only a few of the handmade cars are produced each year.

The Aston Martin is the James Bond car, with "the aura of the rich playboy" and a top speed of 160 mph, says Britnell.

However, to buy it "you've got to have one awfully good income," so most buyers are retired or semi-retired men over 50.

Fourteen Jaguars ($9,500 to $11,500) were sold last year. A few years ago all Jaguar buyers were over 45, says Britnell, but the last two sold here went to men in their early 30s.

All dealers agree that when a man buys a luxury car, he pays cash.

Marshall McLuhan called the automobile the mechanical bride. But even back in 1965, he thought the honeymoon would soon be over.

"At the heart of the car industry there are men who know that the car is passing, as certainly as the cuspidor was doomed when the lady typist arrived on the business scene," said McLuhan.

Luxury car buyers don't agree.

Lamborghini Miura SV for a cool $27,000

The ability of most cars nowadays to attain speeds of 125 mph and over has no function other than to say to the buyer, who even on the open road rarely gets a chance to do 80. Don't feel badly, because you are a dubiously satisfactory bedmate. You're a mighty potent fellow. You are Captain Midnight! You are Buck Rogers!

Big 'Holleroo' Set to Fight E&N Cutbacks

By AL FORREST
Times Staff

Vancouver Island mayors today launched a battle against an application by the CPR to close three stations and remove seven of the nine agents of the Esquimalt & Nanaimo Railway.

Mayor Jim Quaife of Duncan said he is organizing a meeting of Island mayors "to raise the biggest holleroo the CPR ever heard."

Quaife, who led Island mayors in a battle against a CPR bid to discontinue E&N passenger service in 1970, said the Canadian Transport Commission should not allow any cutback because the CTC in 1970 ordered the E&N to upgrade the condition of its railway stations.

"If the CPR is not interested in carrying out its responsibilities it should turn the railway over to the municipalities who would show them how the railway could be run at a profit."

The CPR proposal:

—It will apply to the CTC for permission to close down railway stations in Parksville, Nanaimo and Chemainus.

—It will apply to replace its nine station agents with two travelling agents, with the other seven being given employment elsewhere in Canada.

—It will offer Vancouver Island customers free telephone calls to its proposed computer centre in Vancouver where they would be able to get information on freight, train schedules and fares.

—Passengers would buy

their tickets on the train rather than in the station.

Quaife said that if the CPR is not interested in carrying out a thriving passenger service on the Island, it should be made to turn over the railway to the municipalities who, he was sure, could turn it into a profitable enterprise for tourists, regular passengers and freight hauling.

"As well they should be required to give back to the people the land, mineral rights and timber they were given in return for providing a rail service on Vancouver Island."

Quaife's remarks were echoed by Mayor Gerald

Atterton said the proposed changes would not assist the passenger service but should not harm it. Freight customers, however, would get better service as a result.

He said at present a Vancouver Island customer phones the local agent for freight information and then the agent has to get the data from Vancouver. Now the customer will phone toll-free direct to Vancouver, Atterton said.

In Nanaimo, Mayor Frank Ney wondered how the proposed changes would streamline the service.

"My idea of streamlining is to use electronic equipment efficiently to give service and cut costs. There is no sign of that in this application."

Ney said that if the CPR is sincere in building the service while cutting costs it should install special phones in each station — not pay phones — so passengers can get information.

In addition they should install electronic bulletin boards giving information on schedules and where the trains are at any given time.

"How is a passenger to know if the train is late? Does he have to place a call to Vancouver just to find out if the train is on time? How do you place a toll-free call if there is only a pay phone? How will a tourist know he is supposed to phone Vancouver to get information?"

The toll-free number in Vancouver could be one of the best-kept secrets in the province, he said.

He urged all Vancouver Island mayors to prepare briefs to present to the Canadian Transport Commission hearings which will be held on the matter.

While the hearings would be the main battleground, preliminary actions will be taken at the proposed meeting of Island mayors.

As well the issue will be raised at the convention of Associated Chambers of Commerce of Vancouver Island May 10 in Sidney.

Victoria Mayor Peter Pollen said that when hearings are held on the CPR proposals, the railway must be compelled to increase its advertising program.

He said he was not alarmed about the proposed changes but felt that the CPR had been half-hearted in its publicity program.

Smith of North Cowichan who said the CPR had no right to retain the land and timber holdings if it was not interested in providing a service to the Island. (Chemainus is in North Cowichan municipality).

He said he will encourage all mayors affected by the proposal to attend a meeting to fight any cutback.

In Vancouver, CPR spokesman Harry Atterton defended the proposed closure of stations as "a streamlining of service, not a cutback."

He said the public should realize there was no attempt to discontinue the passenger service but only to make it more efficient.

"This is the total package. We are not planning any other changes or reduction in service at this time."

Nor is there any plan at this time to apply for a discontinuance of passenger service as was done in 1970, he said, although he could not rule out such an application in the future.

'Enforcement Lax' Says Restaurateur

The president of the Victoria Restaurant Association said today enforcement of new provincial health regulations has been lax and some of the new rules are impossible to meet.

Gordon Schoor, whose association represents 130 dining places and coffee shops in Greater Victoria, said the stricter standards governing eating places in B.C. are a "farce" if not enforced equally.

It's a mistake to let an individual health inspector decide whether a restaurant deserves a permit, he said. It leaves too much to personal judgment.

He called for "some sort of board" with representation from the restaurant and hotel industry and public health authorities, to rule on issuing permits on closing businesses.

Schoor mentioned two rules which he said are impossible

for "anybody to comply with 100 per cent."

Lighting standards would make customers feel they are sitting under "heat lamps," he said. Food preparation areas must have a minimum lighting intensity of 50 foot-candles and dining areas 30 foot-candles.

And kitchens, or other areas where food is prepared, must have eight complete changes of air per hour, with four changes per hour required for other rooms, he said.

Under certain circumstances, these rules are too strong, he said.

Many restaurants in Greater Victoria are flouting some of the regulations, including the one which prohibits customers passing through a food preparation area to and from washrooms, he added.

The new regulations, which went into effect April 1, are to be enforced by health boards.

"It doesn't matter what you do, you're always wrong," was the first reaction from Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread.

He is senior public health officer for the Greater Victoria metro health board.

If the rules had been strictly enforced, half the local restaurants would have been closed down and the rest would have had a marvelous time charging twice as much, he said.

While it's true some health inspectors are more lenient than others, Whitbread said they are trained for their job "and I don't know who else would be better able to advise me."

At last count, close to 200 of the new permits had been issued to eating places and another 102 interim permits had been granted. That leaves about 70 restaurants without either kind but his staff's short two health inspectors, he said.

On lighting and air conditioning standards, he said the regulations call for a capability of 30 foot-candles for dining areas but don't say that much must be utilized.

The air changes per hour, while not in the regulations in the past, have been the standard used by health inspectors for many years, he added.

On patrons still passing through kitchen areas to washrooms, Whitbread said the easing of enforcement by the provincial government follows representations from the restaurant industry.

"We're only doing what the lawmakers tell us to do."

The new regulations, which detail numerous standards including what equipment is required, call for the public health authorities to issue permits.

But possession of a permit doesn't mean restaurants can become sloppy, said Whitbread.

He said two restaurants in Victoria were shut down for 24 hours last week "until they cleaned themselves up."

BOATERS FOUND HIGH AND DRY

Two missing Victoria adults and three children were found safe today in their chartered 17½-foot boat.

The coast guard cutter Racer discovered them at the east end of Link Island near Nanaimo. The man, identified only as Robert Borgford of Obed Avenue, anchored the boat after she ran out of fuel.

When the Racer found her she was high and dry. An RCMP launch supplied Borgford with fuel and the boat was expected to be refloated at high tide.

The search was started after the boat failed to return to All-Bay Marina in Sidney where she was rented Friday evening.

Why Not Builders In Enforcing Law?

Hiring of a zoning enforcement officer is being considered in Victoria budget discussions.

The officer would co-ordinate the operations of building inspectors and ensure builders — particularly apartment developers — abide by the community's agreed-upon regulations.

The city has rarely prosecuted builders under its building bylaw throughout the extensive redevelopment period of the last 10 years.

In comparison, more than 35,000 prosecutions are carried out every year against ordinary citizens under the city's parking bylaw.

Mayor Peter Pollen is exerting pressure on the city's building and legal department to toughen up their attitude to builders.

He wrote recently to city solicitor Terry O'Grady that there appeared to be more effort put into avoiding court cases than in using them judiciously to enforce the law.

Pollen's impetus elicited a 16-page response from O'Grady.

City engineer Jim Garnett has gone on record several times complaining of a shortage of zoning enforcement staff.

"A zoning enforcement person is absolutely vital to the proper management of this city," Pollen said today.

The planning committee chairman for the proposed Sooke arena said today the entire Sooke electoral area should participate in the financing and parts of it should not be able to opt out.

Jimmy Dunn said the group had met Howard Elder, Sooke director on the Capital Regional District board, on the weekend and the director indicated there may be areas such as Port Renfrew, Shirley and East Sooke which will want to be excluded.

Dunn said a public meeting earlier this month supported a three-mill levy to finance the $500,000 arena which would be located just east of Sooke village. But, he said, if some areas can opt out, it will change the assessment base on which the three mills was projected.

He said the planning committee, which has been looking for a June referendum, will not put forward its proposal until the area to pay the cost is defined. He wants the regional board, which holds a regular meeting Wednesday, to define the area ahead of the vote.

Elder said today he has "the clear impression" that residents want a referendum but "there are segments of the community who honestly just don't want to be in."

But to keep the arena proposal moving ahead, Elder said he wants the planning committee to bring its proposals to a meeting of the regional district's local works and services committee tonight.

Hydro to Charge Trash Dumpers

The B.C. Hydro and Power Authority is adopting a get-tough policy with people dumping garbage on its rights-of-way, charging them under the Litter Act.

"The dumping is on the increase and we intend to crack down," a spokesman said today.

Three Nanaimo and Parksville residents were recently fined under the Litter Act which allows fines up to $500, imprisonment for up to six months, or both.

The spokesman said garbage ranging from household garbage and old appliances to car bodies and parts, old washing machines and bathtubs are being dumped on transmission rights-of-way in many parts of Vancouver Island, including the Victoria area.

Ed Marzocco, Hydro production manager for Vancouver

Island, says prosecutions will be made without regard for when the garbage was dumped.

As well as being unsightly, the garbage is a health hazard and dangerous to Hydro crews that often have to drive over rights-of-way to get to their work, he said.

15 Vocational Schools Face College Mergers

The provincial government will "proceed immediately" with the merger of six vocational schools with their nearby community colleges, Education Minister Eileen Daily says.

A letter was sent April 5 to all community college councils and vocational schools to be affected.

Other vocational schools to be placed under the management of nearby community college councils are in Nanaimo, Kamloops, Kelowna, Prince George and Nelson.

The B.C. Government Employees' Union, which represents some 1,000 vocational instructors and support staff in the vocational schools, is opposing the merger plans.

At a meeting last week with Daily, BCGEU executive presented a brief saying the merger will downgrade vocational education.

"Community colleges are run by men and women with a totally academic orientation," the brief says.

"The result of these mergers will be that vocational education will be rapidly downgraded in terms of funds available for it, quality of instruction, program development and allotment of facilities."

The brief continues: "The entire rationale for the mergers suffers from academic paternalism by implying that those in trades and career training need a bit of liberal arts education to provide a respectable finishing gloss."

Education department officials had assured the union that it would be consulted in all stages of the merger, union officials told Daily, but no such consultation had occurred.

Congo Maoists Killed

BRAZZAVILLE (AP)

Lieut. Ange Diawara, head of the Maoist guerrilla movement in the former French Congo, was killed early today by Congolese security forces, Brazzaville Radio announced.

Also killed was Diawara's top lieutenant, Jean-Baptiste Ikoko. Government forces overran the rebel headquarters deep in the forest 50 miles from Brazzaville, the broadcast said.

The bodies of Diawara and Ikoko were taken to Congo's stadium of the Revolution to be exhibited at a mass meeting. The day was declared a public holiday.

Diawara, a former member of the politburo of the ruling Congolese Workers' Party, staged an abortive coup against President Marien N'Gouabi in February, 1972, and later took to the forest with his followers.

Cyprus Violence

NICOSIA (AP) - Explosions during the night wrecked two parked cars in Larnaca on the south coast, ending an Easter lull in the violent contention between supporters of President Makarios and the underground guerrilla leader, Gen. George Grivas. It was the first violence reported in nine days.

The union is concerned with protecting the vocational employees' interests in the merger, BCGEU administrative assistant Jack Adams said today.

"It is our contention to continue to represent them" even when they are employees of the community colleges, he said.

Provision must also be made for employees who will not wish to leave the civil service and become employees of the colleges, he said.

"Many of them I'm sure won't want to transfer," said Adams.

The union wants other details like sick leave and pensions to be worked out before the merger goes through, and committees have been set up to look at some of these areas, he said.

SEARCH ABANDONED FOR YOUNG BOATER

RCMP today abandoned the search for a 19-year-old boater, four days after the man disappeared north of Salt Spring Island.

Gregory Ralph Lust, of Fulford Harbor, vanished Friday night after a 12-foot aluminum boat with six other young men aboard capsized between Secretary and Mogli Islands.

Six survivors were picked up by a fishing boat shortly after the incident.

Lust and his companions were on their way home to Jackscrew Island.

Garbage Power A Real Shock

MENLO PARK, Calif. (AP)
Electric power has been generated from domestic garbage in an experimental plant that Senator Gale McGee says could help solve the world's waste disposal problems.

"This is going to revolutionize the whole problem of garbage disposal," said McGee after witnessing tests of the new plant Monday with a group of government officials and urban engineers from Monaco and the Soviet Union.

The Wyoming Democrat is chairman of a Senate subcommittee on agricultural and environmental appropriations.

The $6-million, five-year pilot project was carried out by the Combustion Power Co. under contract to the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA).

The plant is designed to consume 80 tons of garbage a day, with a "byproduct" of 1,000 kilowatts of electrical power, Monday's test generated 975 kilowatts.

The trash used in the test was unsegregated, containing the usual domestic mishmash of metal, wood, glass and paper.

Combustion Power officials said that if the pilot plant works out it could be the forerunner of garbage-power factories capable of producing 12,000 kilowatts on 400 tons of garbage a day, without air pollution.

Non-combustible items such as sand and ash, gravel, glass and metals will be sold.

The burnable material is converted into hot gases in a combustion chamber, and the gas is then used to operate a turbine for the generation of electricity.

Chinese Art On Display

The largest collection of Chinese art ever viewed in Western Canada will be on display May 2 to June 3 at the Art Gallery of Greater Victoria.

Victorians get the opportunity because of a unique trade with the Royal Ontario museum.

Last December Victoria's gallery lent 100 pieces of its Japanese collection to the Toronto museum when it celebrated its 50th anniversary.

In return, the Royal Ontario museum has lent more than 150 pieces of its world-famous Chinese collection to the local gallery.

The collection covers more than 3,000 years of Chinese culture, including neolithic pottery which may date back to 3000 BC and porcelains from the Sung dynasty (960-1279 AD).

Bronzes, paintings and a three-foot Ming ceramic sculpture are included in the display.

The recommendations will then go to the Pollution Control Board and likely be adopted as policy for the treatment of municipal discharges throughout the province.

The inquiry is the fifth and last in a series held over the last three years. Previous inquiries have examined waste discharges from the forest products, mining, chemical and petroleum, food processing and agricultural industries.

Anik Off Course

OTTAWA (CP) - Canada's second communications satellite, Anik II, drifted slightly off course today as it moved toward its permanent orbit.

THIRD CASE OF DIPHTHERIA

A third case of diphtheria has been reported in Greater Victoria.

Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread, senior public health officer, said today the latest victim is a 1 1/2-year-old Saanich girl, reported in "good" condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

Two cases reported last week remain in "good" condition in hospital. One of the patients is a man and the other a young girl. Diphtheria can be effectively treated in most cases with modern drugs.

The local cases follow an outbreak at Port Alberni on northern Vancouver Island earlier this year. About two dozen carriers were found and one girl was diagnosed as having diphtheria.

A person who has been immunized can carry the disease, and possibly spread it, without being affected by the organism.

Whitbread said people in contact with the latest local victim have been checked and found to be free of infection.

While there has been "quite a rush" for immunization last week, he urged any parents who have not had their children inoculated to contact one of the board's health clinics.

Most children are immunized through programs in the school but about one in four is not because the immunization program requires agreement from parents.

'Grounded' After 40-Foot Topple

HAMILTON (CP) - Tony

Garden, who fell 40 feet into the Buttermilk Falls gorge here, has been "grounded" for at least a week by his doctor. No bones were broken.

No more climbing for him while 31 stitches in his legs and arms heal, the doctor said Monday after police and firemen had worked frantically among jagged rocks to raise the 13-year-old boy to a waiting ambulance at the top.

Before the Friday rescue, 12-year-old Allister Wood, who saw his friend slip off the craggy face of the 100-foot gorge, stood trembling and ashen.

"I thought he was dead. I really did," said young Allister.

"He fell on his face... sorta in a heap," said Allister, "and he wasn't moving."

"I ran over to him and I just saw blood," he said, turning his blood-stained palms upward. "This is his blood."

"Then he came to and he was screaming. I took off my shirt and put it on his head where he was all cut."

Then Allister left Tony with four other youngsters who had been playing together and scrambled up the sheer face of the gorge and flagged down a passing car. He told the woman driver what had happened and she called police.

Allister then went back down the gorge to his young friend.

Fire and police official descended the gorge with a wooden stretcher lowered from a fire truck crane.

Tony's five young friends went to the top of the gorge to wait for him to be raised.

GRENADA RIOT TRAPS TOURISTS

Times News Services

Hundreds of tourists, including dozens of Canadians, are trapped on the tiny Caribbean island of Grenada after three days of disturbances that have closed island's only airport.

Shooting broke out at the airport Monday in a clash between police and about 500 demonstrators.

The demonstrators were dispersed by tear gas. Three were reported slightly injured.

The protest, organized by the opposition Jewel political movement, concerned the alleged fatal shooting of a young man by a policeman last Friday.

On Sunday, the demonstrators closed the airport on this West Indies island by littering the runway with oil drums, bottles, stones and other obstacles.

The runway was cleared Monday morning, but later the terminal building was stoned, leading to the exchange of gunfire.

The airport remained closed.

The island government has issued a warning that only persons with legal business will be allowed near the airport, located on the east coast of the mountainous island.

Wally Crouter, a Toronto disc jockey flew to Barbados Friday, then by private plane to Grenada Saturday.

In Grenada "there was a riot going on and on Friday a policeman shot and killed a boy ... that really heated things up," he said.

For his return trip home Sunday Crouter boarded a private plane.

"The rioters had put oil barrels and other barricades on the runway but the pilot was able to get up," he said.

"They had tried to damage the plane too" so the pilot landed on a gravel strip on a nearby island to check the tail assembly of the twin-engine aircraft. "The plane checked out okay so we took off again for Barbados."

Two Toronto tourists, Scott and Mary McGregor, say they went to Grenada airport Sunday but found their flight cancelled.

McGregor, an Air Canada employee, attempted to arrange a sea charter to the nearby island of St. Vincent. Prices for the 90-mile sea trip had jumped to $100 a person.

U.S. Claims Justification To End Pact

Times News Services

WASHINGTON — The United States today accused North Vietnam of inexcusable violations of the peace agreement, including illegal movement of 30,000 men and 400 tanks into South Vietnam.

It rejected as "utterly groundless" earlier Hanoi allegations of U.S. truce violations and said the North Vietnamese attitude was justification for Washington to suspend its observance of the Paris peace accord in whole or part.

Hanoi also was accused formally of conducting a campaign of terror, assassination and political obstruction.

The U.S. charges were contained in a lengthy diplomatic note dated April 20. It was dispatched last weekend to the International Conference on Vietnam.

The state department made public the note following a charge in New York on Monday by President Nixon's chief foreign affairs adviser, Henry Kissinger, that North Vietnam had engaged in systematic and cynical violations of the end-of-war settlement.

The note said North Vietnam had sent to South Vietnam 400 tanks and armored vehicles, 300 artillery pieces and "vast quantities of ammunition and vehicles" in violation of the arrangements since they took effect Jan. 28.

It also said Hanoi had moved 27,000 tons of military supplies through the demilitarized zone to South Vietnam and 26,000 tons into Laos.

Meanwhile, U.S. planes in some of their heaviest raids of the renewed Cambodian bombing campaign stalled a Communist drive just below Phnom Penh and government troops swept in today to regain patches of lost territory, field reports said.

B-52s, flying from Thailand with 30-ton bombloads, struck within five miles of the southern suburb of Takhmau, hit by rifle fire overnight.

Military sources reported that in separate raids farther south of the capital, nearly 60 B-52s dumped an estimated 900 tons of explosives just before dawn today around the rebel-threatened provincial capital of Takeo, 55 miles from Phnom Penh.

Government soldiers reportedly inflicted heavy casualties on Communist soldiers there Monday.

Air raids five to 10 miles below Phnom Penh rocked the capital for four straight hours before sunrise today in what military sources said was some of the most intense bombing of the air campaign in Cambodia, now in its 48th consecutive day.

Today's stepped-up air activity was designed to clear the way for expected government counter-attacks against Communist troops who have surrounded the capital and severed all its major supply routes.

Vital supplies of fuel, ammunition and food were unloaded here today from eight ships that broke through a Communist blockade on the Mekong River.

The military command said one crew member was killed and four wounded, when the convoy came under fire three times, once inside South Vietnam and twice in Cambodia.

In Saigon, the Viet Cong said today they will allow members of the International Commission of Control and Supervision to re-examine on Thursday the wreckage of an April 7 helicopter crash in northern South Vietnam in which four ICCS officers, including a Canadian, were killed.

In a letter to the ICCS military committee, the Viet Cong said they are prepared to receive an ICCS team in northern Quang Tri province to re-inspect the crashed helicopter and retrieve a second one that landed safely nearby.

The re-inspection is intended to settle a growing dispute whether the two helicopters were on course when flying an approved mission over Communist-held territory in Quang Tri.

The Viet Cong also agreed today with the Saigon regime to begin the first release of political prisoners held by the two sides.

INDIA EYES CIG BAN

NEW DELHI (AP) — The government said Monday it is studying legislation to outlaw smoking in India.

Deputy Health Minister A. K. Kisku told Parliament that the Tuberculosis Association of India and the Indian Association for Chest Diseases had passed a resolution against smoking and requested a legal ban on the habit.

"The proposal is already under consideration of the government of India in consultation with the state governments," Kisku said.

He did not say how such a prohibition would be enforced.

Derry Teens Riot

BELFAST (UPI) — Roman Catholic youths rioted at a housing complex on the outskirts of Londonderry early today, burning cars, smashing windows and showering British troops with stones.

Snipers later fired twice at troops patrolling the Londonderry area, but there were no injuries.

The outbreak of street violence shattered a limited seven-day truce called by the outlawed Irish Republican Army to coincide with the opening of a Catholic community festival in Londonderry on Monday.

An army spokesman said the youths began marching through the streets shortly before midnight Monday after soldiers arrested two IRA suspects in the area.

Police identified one of the suspects as 19-year-old Daniel Kennan, who escaped from a Belfast prison three months ago by switching places with a man being released.

TOKYO RAIL RAMPAGE

TOKYO (Reuters) — Hundreds of passengers angered by a railway slowdown went on a rampage here tonight, beating up station employees, wrecking computerized ticket machines and smashing windows.

Scored of helmeted riot police were called in to Ueno station, Tokyo's terminal for long-distance trains to the north, but were at one stage forced to withdraw amid jeering from thousands of stranded passengers.

Mitchell Facing New Charge

Times News Services

NEW YORK — Former U.S. attorney-general John Mitchell and former commerce department secretary Maurice Stans have become the focal points of a federal grand jury investigation here expected to culminate in criminal indictments this week.

The jury is investigating why a $200,000 payment — made in $100 bills — was made secretly by Robert Vesco to President Nixon's re-election campaign April 10, 1972.

The money, paid when Vesco was under intensive investigation by the Securities and Exchange Commission — and after a series of meetings between a Vesco representative and both Stans and Mitchell — was placed in a safe in Stans' office at the finance committee to re-elect the president.

Money from that safe was used to finance the Watergate bugging operation, as well as other facets of the Republican's alleged espionage campaign in 1972.

The grand jury investigation began after Harry Sears, a prominent New Jersey politician (who headed the Committee to Re-Elect the President in New Jersey) testified that he helped arrange for the contribution. Sears was once an attorney for Vesco.

Sears testified that he, along with another former associate of Vesco, delivered a suitcase to Stans in Washington. The suitcase contained the 2,000 one hundred-dollar bills.

Sears' deposition came in connection with a civil complaint by the SEC charging Vesco and a group of associates with swindling $224 million from mutual funds operated by IOS, Ltd., the Geneva-based financial complex.

Stans was given the money

Britain Taxes Chastity

LONDON (UPI) — Chastity belts have fallen victim to a new government tax.

Not only that, the government refuses to dispense the medieval wrought-iron devices along with contraceptives under Britain's National Health Service.

"It's not fair," said Robin Huggessen, whose firm exports close to 10,000 chastity belts a year, many of them to North America.

Huggessen said Customs and Excise maintains that the belts are items of apparel and therefore subject to Value-Added Tax, a recently introduced national sales tax.

"It will put 50 pence ($1.25) on the old retail price of five pounds ($12.50)," Huggessen said.

His firm contends the belts are "safety devices" and thus should be exempt.

Huggessen said his company has appealed directly to Anthony Barber, chancellor of the exchequer.

"We remind him of our world-wide reputation and that our belts go to 29 countries, including the Virgin Islands," he said.

"And we hinted that no chancellor would want to go down in history as the man who imposed a tax on chastity."

ROLLING HOME: When 12-year-old Sydney Carter's straps broke on his roller skates during a 16-mile walkathon in Toronto in aid of crippled children, he carried them for six miles, then sat on them to coast downhill. Sydney was one of an estimated 5,000 taking part in the walk.

NDP MAKES MONEY

By Al FORREST
Times Staff

The New Democratic Party, a strong advocate of deficit financing, is the only party not currently practising it in Canada.

In the fiscal year ended March 31, all provincial governments had deficits except the three NDP provinces, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia.

And in the current fiscal year, the three NDP provinces are the only ones budgeting for a surplus. Liberal governments in Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island are hoping for a break-even result.

The Conservative government in Ontario is anticipating a deficit of $402 million in the current fiscal year to lead all provinces in the red side of the ledger.

Quebec is expecting a deficit of $278 million.

Ontario and Quebec reported the biggest deficits in the previous fiscal year as well.

British Columbia is the only one of the three "have-not" provinces to show a surplus in the previous fiscal year and to be budgeting for a surplus in the current fiscal year.

Of the seven "have-not" provinces, the biggest deficits are racked up by the Liberal government in Quebec and the Tory administration in Newfoundland.

In British Columbia, most of the credit for the surplus in the previous fiscal year belongs to the Social Credit administration.

However, the projected $3 million surplus in the current fiscal year, if achieved, will be the NDP's doing.

The irony is that of all the national political parties, only the NDP is enthusiastic about the use of heavy deficit spending to spur the economy.

Of the free enterprise parties, only the Liberals have been able to avoid deficit spending as a way of life.

On the federal scene both the Liberals and Conservatives have racked up tremendous deficits over the years, the Liberals projecting a move of $975 million into the red in the current fiscal year.

As for the total national debt: Don't ask!?

Manitoba Motorists Save

WINNIPEG (CP) — Manitoba motorists saved an average of 14 per cent on their automobile insurance premiums last year because of Autopac, says the 1971-72 report of the Manitoba Public Insurance Corporation.

The report, tabled Monday in the legislature by Municipal Affairs Minister Howard Pawley, shows the Crown corporation received $37.9 million in premiums for the year ended Oct. 31, 1972.

If private insurance companies had handled this business, motorists in the province would have paid out more than $45 million, the report claims.

Autopac came into effect in Manitoba on Nov. 1, 1971, and the report notes that during the year prior to its introduction, insurance premiums totalled $35.6 million.

"However, it is important to note that during that period, only a small percentage of vehicle owners carried full insurance protection," the report says.

$700,000 INSIDE JOB?

Times News Services

SAINT JOHN, N.B. — An international manhunt is under way for two employees of Brinks Express Co. of Canada Ltd. after $700,000 in small bills was stolen from a company vault here during the Easter weekend.

Canada-wide warrants were issued late Monday for Leslie James Dominey, 32, a driver-guard, and Melvin Edward Downs, 36, an assistant cashier, both of Saint John.

Police throughout Canada and the United States were alerted.

Police today found cars owned by the two missing employees but are still unaware of the whereabouts of the two men or the missing money.

Police were called in Monday morning when the company's electrically-operated safe would not open.

They said it appeared an adjustment had been made to the timing device and the vault was finally opened at 4 p.m.

The money, all Canadian currency in denominations of $20 and less, appears to have been taken Saturday night.

Dominey and Downs are

declined comment on the case.

All They Want Is A Beer

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — Vern and Shirley Hupp may have six very dry weeks ahead of them while the Liquor Control Board and local beer parlor managers argue over LCB regulations.

Hupp, 22, and his 19-year-old wife were recently ordered out of a local beer parlor because they don't possess the photograph-bearing LCB identity cards to prove their ages.

No card, no beer, the waiter said.

When the Hupps asked a liquor store for applications for the identification cards they were told the cards are no longer issued by the LCB and "new British Columbia identity cards will not be available until June 1.

Beer parlor manager Dave Kline says, however, his waiters will continue to insist upon the LCB card.

Kline said LCB regulations stipulate only passports, or LCB cards are acceptable proof of age.

A spokesman at the LCB head office in Victoria said the cards are not mandatory. They are being phased out because it is no longer possible to get the pictures taken for them, he said.

"I'm no trouble-maker," said Hupp. "I'd just like them to get this straightened out so we can go in and have a beer."
